HOLD IMPORTANT MEETING

Aldermen Favor Small Bond Issue For Street Improvements

President Blakemore was an important factor in the action taken Monday evening at the closing session of the Aldermen before the usual summer vacation. His vote, making a tie, caused the board to refuse to accept the Sunday opening act, and he took the floor and spoke against the plan of the Finance committee to bond $30,000 of street improvement matters, and undoubtedly prevented the two-thirds favorable vote such an order required. His suggestion to issue $12,000 serial bonds for the same purposes was also adopted before the meeting closed.

The board kept close to its term, maintained through the past six months, and held one of the most protracted meetings for several years, adjournment being reached at 1.30 Tuesday morning.

President Blakemore presided and Aldermen Alley, Barker and Hatch were absent.

Petitions of F. C. McGourty for auto express license and of John J. Bird for transfer of pool table license to Elmwood street were granted. Other petitions received were for liquor transportation permit from F. C. McGourty, claims from Mary E. Lakeman, for corn dress, N. E. Paine for damages caused by drain, and the Franciscan Sisters for laying out of Manet road.

Petitions for street sprinkling on California street, Knowles street and Maremont street, of the Gas Light Co. to open North street for gas main, of W. A. Richardson for sewer in Forest avenue, were subsequently granted. Petition of Max Cantor to transfer junk license to Beech street was refused.

On recommendation of committees, $68.85 was awarded Andrew Farrell to settle claim, the Edison Co. was granted pole locations on Page road, Old England road, Court street, Irvington road, Upland road, and Auburn street, a wagon license was granted V. U. Fogwill, leave to withdraw was given on claims of James H. Sargent and George R. Furneaux, sewers were ordered in Boylston and Jackson streets, Brae Burn road, Forest avenue, Beacon street and Ashmont avenue, street sprinkling ordered on Langley road, Gardner street, and Elmore street, gift of land adjoining the Newton Highlands playground was accepted with thanks to the donor, leave to withdraw granted on matter of improvement of Clark street and to J. E. Buckley on abatement of sewer assessment, $4.00 a month Soldiers relief was granted Mary A. Sullivan, polling places for state primary Sept. 23 were designated, additional appropriations were made as follows, Veterans Pensions $2, Poor out of City Home $700, Sick Poor $500, Collection of Ashes $4,000, Water services $8,100, Water conduit $175, $18,000 additional voted for sewer on Commonwealth avenue, grant made for city expenses to Sept. 15, agreement authorized for sewerage from Riverside Recreation grounds, various transfers of appropriations were authorized, additional appropriations for certain receipt accounts were authorized and former orders relating thereto were rescinded, display of fireworks authorized on July 4th and the bells ordered rung on that date.

Alderman Bemis said that the board had already ordered something like $15,000 in street widenings and improvements, charged directly to the tax levy of 1913, and something like $4000 more were advanced from the city treasury. In addition there were pending several other street matters of a similar nature and the Finance committee had favored an issue of serial bonds for $30,000 for these purposes to run ten years.

President Blakemore took the floor and said that the Finance committee last fall had presented a budget, which had been changed by the board and the grand total had been lost sight of. This had resulted in various schemes for issuing bonds for matters which had never been bonded in the past. In his opinion most of these plans were unsafe and he quoted freely from the Boston Finance commission on the matter. He agreed that a high tax rate was most undesirable but he thought a dishonest tax rate was still worse. He believed the committee had gone too far in placing such items as curbing and city planning matters in the bond issue, as the city should do such things every year and pay for them out of the yearly tax levy.

The present plan is reversing our policy and the real way to keep the tax levy down was to be frugal in our expenditures. He favored striking out the street widening and curbing items from the bond issue.

Alderman Pratt said that the curbing items were directly connected with the street improvement matters in the list and are a proper charge to such work. Only enough curbing had been included, however, to make the total an even $30,000. While he agreed with President Blakemore in most of his statements, he called attention to the fact that the tax rate would be extremely high if these items are not included. The committee had given the matter the most careful consideration, turning down several schemes for bond issues, and approved the present order for street improvements.

Alderman Cox said that a high tax rate was up to the aldermen, and now we want to duck the responsibility. He thought it more fitting to bond the repairing of old school houses, or to accept all our present private streets. He suggested that the city ought to go into the business of putting all streets in proper condition for acceptance and suggested the curbstones might prove to be tombstones.

Alderman Bemis said that everyone approved the pay you go policy but we cannot do just as we would like all the time. The method suggested is justified and expedient. The items included in the bond issue are so classified in the new statute on municipal indebtedness operative next year, and we are therefore well within the scope of sound municipal finance. He questioned the lack of president and called attention to several bond issues now in existence for similar purposes.

Aldermen Rice, Richardson and Sullivan spoke briefly. President Blakemore suggested that something like $14,000 be taken out of the list.

Alderman Pratt said that there was no question but what the work was all good work, all construction, and not maintenance. To the criticism that the items were mostly small, he said that if it was one large job, there would be no question as to the propriety of bonding and he could see no

THE NEW RAILROAD LAW

Mr. Ellis Answers Mr. Washburn's Recent Letter

June 30th, 1913.
Editor "Newton Graphic," Newton, Massachusetts.

Dear Sirs:—I thank you for printing the letter of my genial personal friend, Mr. Robert M. Washburn, on the new Railroad Law, but I wish instead of indulging in personalities he had given us what neither he nor any one else has yet done, some reason why these financial sections, 15 and 16, should not have been included. The nearest he comes to it is perhaps in his statement that,—

"A duly authorized representative of the lobby, in the earlier part of the session, called upon me, and told me, that if the financial sections remained in the Bill they would leave no stone unturned to secure its passage, but if, on the other hand, they were repudiated from the Bill they would leave no stone unturned to defeat the Bill. Not being, as some would say, of a practical turn of mind, this attitude somewhat grated upon my sensibilities, and I was somewhat attracted to the other course."

I am not as familiar with the railroad lobby as is apparently Mr. Washburn, and no such statements were made to me, nor had I any reason to believe that they were. But in the earlier part of the session the financial sections were not included in the Bill. It was late in the session when they were included and it was at this time that Mr. Washburn stated that while he had formerly opposed the insertion of these sections, he had looked into the matter carefully and was ready to report the Bill and stand for it as a whole, including these financial sections, which he did. This, in view of his statement above quoted, must have been after his interview with the railroad lobbyist.

Later through the public press, and without consultation with the Committee, whose spokesman he was supposed to be, he repudiated these sections. In his communication last week he says—"My cause for leaving them was the revelation before the Interstate Commerce Commission and I felt it a folly to endorse the further and easier raising of money on the part of the New Haven Road, until the question raised before that Commission—"Is their business management wise?" had been adjudicated." As a matter of fact there were no revelations before the Interstate Commerce Commission of any moment that were not included in the Report made to the Massachusetts Legislature in 1911 by the Validation Commission (the appointment of which Commission Mr. Washburn, then Chairman of the Railroad Committee, I think had a large hand in promoting.) It is hardly conceivable that Mr. Washburn, with his active interest in the New Haven Railroad, had not read this Report, a copy of which was given to every member of the Legislature, and some of the recommendations of this Validation Commission were the basis for the financial sections as passed; but in the statement quoted above from Mr. Washburn's letter there is one of the strongest arguments for these sections, in that they give the newly constituted Railroad Commission mandatory powers, not only over the rates and facilities of the Roads, as recommended by Mr. Washburn, but over the expenditure as well as the raising of money.

ANNUAL OUTING

Massachusetts Editors Visit Portland and Its Beautiful Harbor

The Massachusetts Press Association, composed of editors and publishers of the state, held its annual outing during the last week end, making its headquarters at Peaks Island House, Portland, Harbor, Maine. The party, which included about 75 editors, their wives and daughters, took the day boat for Portland on Friday morning and had an uneventful voyage, except for seasickness, arriving in Portland in the afternoon. Peaks Island, which is but twenty minutes ferry from the city was soon reached and one of mine host Rowe's famous suppers enjoyed with a real appetite.

Saturday morning thru the courtesy of the Portland Railroad Company, the party enjoyed a trolley trip about the city witnessing in passing, a street parade of a wild west show, and including a trip to Riverton, a small amusement park some five miles from the city. The afternoon was spent on a small steamer making a trip about Portland harbor and its numerous islands, trip which was enjoyable in every respect. On one of the islands, a forest fire was in progress and as we came opposite, the flames reached the water's edge. It was a thrilling, as well as a most beautiful sight, to see the flames shoot from tree to tree, enveloping the entire tree in a single second with a mantle of flames, and often times reaching a hundred feet in the air above the tree. The fire was fought by several hundred soldiers from a nearby fort, as well as by the Portland fire boat and burned for several hours, fortunately without damage to any of the cottages nearby.

Saturday evening the hotel management, which, by the way, is first-class in every way, provided music for a dance. On Sunday, after church, the party took a long sail down the harbor to Orr's Island where an ordinary, very ordinary shore dinner was served. The sail, however, was most delightful, as the steamer touched many islands and the day was most enjoyable. Monday, the Portland Railroad Company provided a trolley trip to Old Orchard beach, where at most short notice, a short auto ride was given thru the town, and refreshments served at Brunswick hotel. The magnificent beach, which was seen by many for the first time, was admired by all.

The usual banquet was held Monday evening and the day boat taken for home early on Tuesday morning.

BOSTON NEARER EUROPE

Boston is just 24 hours nearer Europe than New York.

This was proven recently by the arrival of two Hamburg-American liners in Hamburg 24 hours apart, although they had sailed from Boston and New York at nearly the same hour on June 7.

A letter received yesterday by Frank W. Hodgdon, chief engineer of the Directors of the Port of Boston, from F. W. Dean in Hamburg, who sailed aboard the Cincinnati on June 7, gives the proof.

Mr. Dean in his letter says that the Cleveland, a sister ship, which is built exactly like the Cincinnati and makes the same speed, left New York harbor almost at the same hour as the Cincinnati left Boston.

The steamers arrived 24 hours apart, the Cincinnati docking at Hamburg exactly 24 hours ahead of her sister ship.

PROPER USE OF FATS

SHOULD BE KEPT SEPARATELY
AFTER HOME RENDERING.

German Housewives Have Good Method With Suet—Old-Fashioned Manner of Clarifying Fat From the Soup Kettle.

Fats that are derived from the cooking of bacon, ham, chicken, beef and other meats should be kept, each in its own receptacle, to be used for different purposes.

Home rendering of both suet and leaf lard has its advantages, because the product is generally superior to what can be bought for the same price.

Both suet and leaf lard require cooking in order to loosen the fat from the tougher membrane that holds it. For this purpose the material is cut in small pieces and covered with water and allowed to cook slowly for some time until no more water remains and the scrap has turned to a light brown.

A better method for suet is that used by German housewives, who economize on butter by the use of beef fat more than do American housekeepers. The suet is cut in small pieces and covered with water, in which it is allowed to soak for a day, the water being changed once in the time. It is then drained and put into an iron kettle with one-half tea cup of skim milk to every pound of the suet. It should be cooked very slowly.

When it has partly cooled it should be carefully poured off. This fat has no unpleasant taste or odor, and in many recipes may be substituted for part of the butter. Some cooks add a pound of leaf lard to four or five of the suet; this makes a softer fat, as lard has a lower melting point than beef fat.

An old-fashioned method of clarifying fat from the soup kettle, or from cooked meats, so that it may be used in the kitchen, is to add the cold fat to a liberal quantity of cold water, then heat slowly and let cook for an hour or more. When cold, the cake of fat is removed and the lower portion, which will contain the small particles of meat, etc., should be scraped away and the white, clean fat saved. If the flavor or color of both are not satisfactory the process may be repeated several times. Another method which is often recommended is to cook a number of slices of raw potato in the boiling fat.

When an ice chest is used, fat in small quantities may be easily kept sweet for cooking purposes. If lard is rendered at home in quantity sufficient for a long time, it should be kept covered in tins or earthen jars, in a cool, dry place.

Mustard Pickle.

One large head of cauliflower, one quart of white button onions, one dozen dill pickles, two quarts of vinegar, one teaspoonful mustard seed, two teaspoonfuls celery seed, two cupfuls of sugar, three-quarters of a cup of flour, one-quarter of a pound of ground mustard, one tablespoonful of turmeric powder. Divide cauliflower in pieces and boil it and the onions in salted water until about half done, drain, cut up dill pickles; mix flour, mustard and turmeric with a little cold water and add this to the boiling vinegar in which the sugar and celery and mustard seeds have been placed, let boil for five minutes, then pour over the pickle. This makes about one gallon of fine mustard pickle and is easy to prepare.

Rhubarb Flummary.

Peel and cut up 2½ pounds of rhubarb; put in a basin with a little cold water, not enough to quite cover it. Place a plate over the top and cook it until soft in the oven. Dissolve one heaping tablespoonful of powdered gelatin in half a cup of boiling water, add strained juice of rhubarb and stir until dissolved. With a wooden spoon rub the cooked rhubarb through a sieve, then add to gelatin, with seven tablespoonfuls of whipped cream and eight tablespoonfuls of sugar. Set this on the fire to reheat, but do not allow to boil, stirring all the time. Pour into wet moulds, turn out when firm and serve with custard around them.

Orange Cake.

Two cups sugar, one-half cup cold water, two and one-half cups flour, one-half teaspoon soda, pinch salt, one teaspoon cream tartar, five eggs, keeping out two whites, one orange, grated rind and juice; beat egg whites to a stiff froth and fold in after other ingredients all well beaten. Bake in two layers and put together with boiled frosting, made with two cups sugar, the juice of one orange and whites of two eggs.

Tomato Pie.

One pint of chopped green tomatoes, five apples chopped, two cups of sugar, one cup of molasses, one-half cup of vinegar, three tablespoonfuls of flour, spice of all kinds. Put whole raisins and bits of butter on top before putting on the upper crust. Makes one large or two small pies.

Banana Sherbet.

Boil three pints of water and three cups of sugar for ten minutes, then strain and chill. Strain the juice from three lemons and two large oranges, add the pulp of three bananas pressed through a sieve, stir in the chilled syrup, pack in salt and ice, freeze and let stand one or more hours to ripen.

ICE BOX EASILY MADE

KITCHEN RECEPTACLE MAY BE PUT TOGETHER AT HOME.

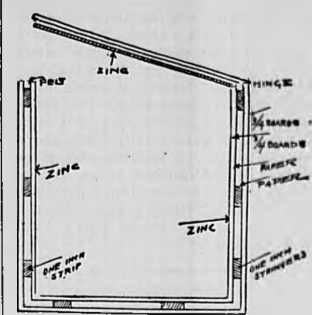

Inexpensive and Really Cleaner and More Sanitary Than Those Packed With Sawdust and Other Materials.

The construction of a good ice box consists essentially of two boxes made of tongued and grooved lumber three-fourths of an inch thick. The two boxes were made of such dimensions that the smaller one will fit into the larger one with an inch to spare all around and on the bottom, the boxes being held firmly together by having inch strips nailed to the inside of the larger one at intervals of a foot apart.

Before these strips are put in place, building paper should be tacked to the inside of the outer box, and to the outside of the inner one, then after the paper is on, the space between the boxes is carefully measured and the inch strips planed down so that it will be a snug fit when the box is placed within the other.

The construction of the cover is the same as the sides and bottom, except that there is a flange at the front and sides of the cover.

The corners of the outside box are strengthened and made tighter by having a strip of building paper tacked over them, and corner boards

an inch thick nailed over it, like the corner-boards of a building.

Cleats nailed on the bottom at each end will strengthen the box and make it more easy to move about.

The inside of the box is lined with zinc or galvanized iron, the latter being much cheaper, and just as good for several years.

After the box is put together a strip of thin lumber covers the upper space between the boxes, thus making a dead-air space.

A short piece of half-inch pipe is inserted in the bottom of the box to provide drainage, and the lower end of this outlet should be kept immersed in a vessel of water to prevent air getting into the box.

This ice box is much cleaner and more sanitary than those packed with sawdust and similar materials.

Apple Sago.

To make apple sago put 1 cup sago in a quart of tepid water with a pinch of salt, and soak 1 hour. Take 6 or 8 apples, pare and core or quartered and steamed tender, and put in the pudding dish. Boil and stir the sago until clear, adding water to make it thin, and pour it over the apples. Bake 1 hour. This is good hot with butter and sugar. As apples are hard to get now, make it this way: One quart milk, 4 tablespoonfuls sago boiled in the milk till soft. Set dish in kettle of hot water and let the sago swell gradually. Beat up 3 eggs and stir into cooked milk and sago; salt and sugar to taste. Then put in oven and bake very lightly. Serve with creamy sauce.

Vermont Blueberry Cake.

Cream together half a cupful of butter and a scant cupful of granulated sugar, adding one well-beaten egg, a tiny pinch of grated nutmeg, half a teaspoonful of lemon juice, half a cupful of sweet milk, and two heaping teaspoonfuls of baking powder sifted with sufficient pastry flour to form a cake batter. Beat the mixture until very light and fold in a large cupful of blueberries. Bake in a shallow oblong pan in a rather quick oven for 25 minutes. When baked, dust the top thickly with powdered sugar and serve hot. Cut into squares or the squares may be torn lightly apart and spread with butter.

Corn Sifters.

A new way of eating corn on the cob is to salt the corn hulls while on the cob with a small nickel "sifter," says the New York Times. This cuts five rows of the corn hulls at one time, so that one eats the grain and leaves the hulls on the cob, or it is used to extract, for cooking, the milky grains from the hulls and leaves all the hard part on the cob as waste. The "sifter" cost 35 cents each. When used at table, of course there must be individual provision in the number placed.

Pineapple Sauce for Fritters.

To the syrup drained from the pineapple slices and heated to boiling point, add a cup of sugar, sifted with a level tablespoonful of cornstarch; let boil six or eight minutes; tint with green color paste or liquid if desired. Add the juice of half a lemon and kirsch to taste.

Sauces.

Separate, roll in a little butter, salt and pepper. Put in a small paper bag, seal up and place on broiler. Allow 20 minutes in a very hot oven.

The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon at the family residence at 281 Otis street. Impressive services were conducted at 1.30 by Rev. J. Edgar Park, pastor of the West Newton Congregational Church, assisted by Dr. George A. Gordon of the Old South Church, Boston.

The burial was in the family lot at Mount Auburn Cemetery.

Bachelors and Insanity.

More bachelors than married men go insane, according to a report submitted to the secretary of the Interior. Many married men have their thinking done for them, and consequently, do not have so great a strain on their thinking faculty.—Nashville Tennessean.

"The Boy and the Man."

Every boy wishes to be a man, but the measure of a man is not that of age, nor strength, nor stature, nor possessions nor position. That which makes a man is a quality of spirit; it is courage, honor, integrity of character, and the resolute purpose to know what is true and to do what is right. The central quality of manliness around which all others must be built up is that of a sense of honor.—St. Nicholas.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE—"Her Husband's Wife," a comedy of sparkling dialogue by A. E. Thomas, will be the attraction to be presented by the Eleanor Gordon Players, at the Plymouth Theatre, Boston, beginning on Monday night. The play presents a novel, clever, brilliant and witty story that is jammed with laughter from beginning to end. The story of "Her Husband's Wife" is distinctly novel.

Novel, clever, brilliant, witty, clean and wholesome, it is a safe assertion that "Her Husband's Wife" is a play second to none in strength and appeal, a "first prize" play in the list of those being presented in stock.

The play was produced originally by Klaw and Erlanger and staged under the personal direction of Henry Miller. It will have the full strength of Manager Birch's excellent company. The same popular-priced Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday matinees will prevail. Don't fail to see this remarkable organization.

Tripolitan Home Life.

There is a vivid picture of home life in Tripoli in Mrs. Mabel Loomis Todd's recent volume: "Another day I went to a house of quite different social order, where a poor woman with a crooked spine had asked to see the foreigner. She was sewing at a little machine low on the floor turned by hand, like those used by Malays, her knees higher than her head—but that was apparently a favorite attitude of both sexes. Flat on the floor lay an old woman sound asleep, merely a neighbor in for a while to take this surprising means of promoting social hilarity. But she wore a good deal of jewelry, was artistically tattooed and, upon waking showed strong, short white teeth in a friendly smile. The poor little deformed woman seemed pathetically glad to see us and began to talk at once of the coming eclipse, of her fear that it might injure her and that she should not dare to go to the roof to see it; also asking me to use my influence to render it as harmless as possible."

Chaperons for the Young.

Queen Mary is said to have deplored the easy fashion in which mothers have allowed their girls to run about at their own sweet will during the last few seasons. Anyhow the chaperon has been reinstated at girl and boy dances. Of course, girl and boy dances, so called, are for those already out in the world; but the new "fapper dances" are quite a different thing and are given for girls of fourteen to sixteen and their friends. These entertainments are run on the lines that have made them so popular in Paris. Governesses and other nurses hover about if mothers, aunts and their friends are not on the spot. The dances are usually afternoon affairs, and besides the "two step" and "three step" the gavotte and minuet are popular.—The Gentlewoman.

Fighting Tuberculosis.

The Swiss people are determined to do everything possible to stamp out consumption. This summer more children than ever before were taken to "holiday camps," or "holiday colonies," which are generally in some mountain district, at heights of about four or five thousand feet. In the Jura, above the Lake of Biel, there are some of these holiday colonies nearly every mile. Holiday colonies are camps, of course, exist in other districts of Switzerland, but the Jura is one of the favorite places for them. One reason doubtless being that so few foreign tourists go there. The children, who sleep in tents, spend all most the whole time out of doors.

Great Painter's Studio.

Cecilia Beaux, whom most people credit with being the best known woman portrait painter in the world has built herself a remarkable house at Gloucester, Mass. It's such a wonderful house that people write it up and print pictures of it and of the equally interesting garden which runs down to the sea. And yet no one ever seems to think of writing up an equally important place, Miss Beaux's study. She paints all winter long in a high place overlooking Gray's park. Having the top apart from, her view is unobstructed. There is no ocean to be sure, but it is a splendid studio.—New York Press.

Blarney.

Honest Barney McGuffey, the silver-tongued orator of the Tenth precinct of the Twentieth ward, has just got back. "I hear ye've been over to the old country, Barney," said one of his admirers. "Sure and I have—and 'twas a fine reception they gave me there. 'And did ye go to Blarney castle?'" "Did that?" "But a foiner orator like ye self would never need to kiss the Blarney stone." "Well, that's what I thought, but no sooner had I got into the castle, and before I had time to defend myself, mind ye, the Blarney stone flung its arms about me neck and kissed me."—Kansas City Star.

Had a Ready Comeback.

An Irishman, passing a shop where a notice was displayed saying that everything was sold by the yard thought he would play a joke on the shopman, so he entered the shop and asked for a yard of milk. The shopman, not in the least taken aback dipped his fingers in a bowl and drew a line a yard long on the counter. Pat, not wishing to be caught in his own trap, asked the price. "Six pence," said the shopman. "All right," said Pat. "Roll it up; I'll take it."—Dublin Express.

Banana Flour Popular.

Banana flour specially prepared as a tonic food is making its appearance in Paris. Within a recent period this fruit was but little used in France and even now its consumption is limited. However, measures are being taken to increase the importation, and it is said that seventy vessels were recently fitted up for bringing the fruit to Europe. Banana flour has a much more extended use in England than on the continent, but efforts are now made to introduce it in France owing to its great nutritious value.

Cost of Ice for Army.

Hawaii furnishes the government with the cheapest ice that is supplied to the army—15 cents a hundred pounds—the monthly consumption being 450,000 pounds. In Chicago the army pays 25 cents, and there are ports where it goes as high as 75 cents and one dollar.

Bulldog Attacked Horse.

An extraordinary occurrence was witnessed at Castleford, Yorkshire, England, not long since, a bulldog making an attack upon a valuable mare, and having to be killed to rescue the horse. The dog was a valuable one, belonging to the landlord of the North-Eastern hotel. When the animal was passing along Station road, near the hotel, the dog suddenly flew at its throat, but failed to get hold. The animal was driven on towards its stable, but the dog could not be induced to leave it, and followed down a couple of streets until the shop was reached. There the dog got hold beneath the mare's body. It was impossible to free the unfortunate animal, and the dog was finally dispatched with a pole-axe. The dog had never before, it is said, shown any sign of mischief, and had, in fact, been so good-natured that children had been allowed to play with it. Its owner recently refused a good offer for it. The horse is recovering.

The Great White Sale.

Quite a nation was moving about in these snowy regions. And the crowd seemed to be black, like skaters on a Polish lake in December. On the ground floor there was a heavy swell, ruffled by a reflux, in which nothing but the delicate enraptured faces of women could be distinguished. In the caps of the iron framework, up the staircases, on the hanging bridges, there was an endless ascent of small figures, which looked as if lost amidst the snowy peaks of mountains. A suffocating hothouse heat surprised one at sight of these frozen heights. The buzz of all the voices made a great noise, like that of a river carrying ice along. Up above the profusion of gilding, the glass work and the golden roses seemed like a burst of sunshine, glittering over the Alps of this grand exhibition of white goods.—From Zola's "The Ladies Paradise."

Fuel-Consumption Test.

In the presence of a number of automobilists a gasoline consumption test was made by William H. Stewart Jr., of New York city, over a measured course to show the difference in fuel consumption of an engine while in the hands of the competent and in competent operator. There has been considerable discussion of this particular point, and interest was keen to know the percentage of difference in fuel consumption. The results were very surprising. The test showed that 34 per cent. more fuel was used by the incompetent operator. This applied only to the gasoline consumption. The actual depreciation of the car could not, of course, be estimated but it is safe to assume that the percentage of wear and tear was ever greater.

Busy Telephone Operators.

When you are tempted to be impatient with "central" because she can't give you your number with quite the speed of lightning, it would not be amiss to remember these facts. The British postmaster general has stated that the average time, on fifty thousand calls observed, taken from the moment of ringing up to the moment the operator responded, was 5.1 seconds, and the average time till the person answered 28.6 seconds. But that was in phlegmatic England. In nervous Chicago the corresponding average times were 3.1 seconds, and 25.4 seconds. How would you like to try to do it quicker than that yourself?—The Outlook.

Economical Anyway.

J. Willis Westlake, the noted Florida pomologist, said in a recent address at Lake Helen: "The orange grower must be an optimist to succeed. He can't expect ten thousand oranges from every tree at the start. He should show the spirit of John Blanc. Blanc's first orange crop, when he settled in Florida, wasn't much to boast of. The man, however, kept up heart. 'How did your oranges do?' a friend asked him at the season's end. 'Oh, we had a few,' he replied. 'Good ones?' 'Fine!' said Blanc. 'My wife uses them in place of lemons. It makes quite a saving.'"

New Kind of Stamp.

Never had there been such a commotion in the little home, and the most wildly excited person was the sister of the young mother who had just presented twins to her husband. Off she rushed to the postoffice for stamps to spread the great tidings abroad.

"Stamps, please," she said, as she flung down her money.

"How many, miss?" asked the clerk.

"Two!" she cried joyfully.

"What kind?"

"A boy and a girl."

Peril of Publicity.

Senator Tillman was talking about a politician who always keeps himself in the public eye. "He is as bad," said Senator Tillman, "as poor old Hamlet binks, who went to Ocean Grove for his vacation, and fell off from a pavilion at high tide and got drowned." "Poor devil!" said the reporter. "But how did he happen to fall off?" "He was trying," said Senator Tillman, "to keep himself in the center of a coastwise steamer's searchlight."—Los Angeles Times.

Finger Mark Identification.

German banks have begun to introduce the finger print as a mark of identification on checks. The method is already in use in the United States.

ENLARGED AND IMPROVED.

The Bryant & Stratton School, Boston.

In its new building, the school is removed from all surrounding influences which might distract the minds of pupils from their studies. The extension of Arlington Street during the past year has laid out the building by three streets, Boylston, Arlington and Providence, and made every foot of floor space desirable for school purposes. As our inspectors the various rooms he is impressed with the abundance of light and purity of the air—two qualities so essential to the health and best progress of the student.

The school's record is its reference, and the very best possible guarantee of its ability to prepare earnest young men and women for responsible positions in the business world.

Its patronage comes to it unolicited because the merit of its work makes it unnecessary to adopt the practice common with many schools of sending solicitors from house to house seeking patronage. Plans for the practice of business in which the individual teaching system is employed originated with this school. Each pupil has a special course of study planned out for him and carefully adjusted to his personal requirements. This splendid system of continuing study with practice enables pupils to a degree in accordance with their ability and application, and graduate at any time when they have passed the established requirements. The demand from business houses for graduates of the school the past year has been the greatest in the school's history.

Another feature which makes this school unique is the adherence to the calendar governing the regular academic institutions. The sessions are from 9 to 12 daily with no attendance on Saturdays or evenings, or during the summer season.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE—Next week will be the third and positively last of the engagement of "The Melstersingers in The Wild Woods" at B. F. Keith's Theatre. An entirely new program will be offered on this occasion, with new songs and new soloists. Second only in importance to "The Melstersingers" will be the appearance of Donald Meek, the popular character actor of the Castle Square Stock Company, in a brand-new comedy of country life written especially for him. Mr. Meek scored a decided success on his vaudeville debut at this playhouse last summer, and it is in response to thousands of requests that Mr. Keith has arranged to present him for a second season in a new playlet, Mr. Meek will be supported by an excellent company. His engagement is for one week only. Other excellent features of a fine bill will be Ben Deely and company in "The New Bell Boy"; Maurice Gosset, the fiddler with a fiddle, and Grace DeWinters, the kid ventriloquist, in a novel act; the Heuman Trio of wonderful cyclists; Carl McCullough, in "Footlight Impressions"; Cathryn Chaloner and company in "Kate's Press Agent"; a new comedy; "Carson and Brown, dancing experts; and The Balliots, wonderful experts on the Roman rings.

Entitled to It.

"Every time I speak in public I insist on being liberally remunerated," said the orator. "And quite properly," replied the strictly business man. "While your remarks may not be valuable, you are entitled to compensation for the risk you take of injuring your political future."

Libraries on Shipboard.

The navy department spends every year $30,000 for libraries for use on its ships. Each "ship's" library includes 300 books, mostly technical, and more or less expensive on that account. A "crew's" library is usually made up of about five hundred books on fiction and of such character suitable for entertainment. About one-third of the books are replaced each year. The changes are made upon the recommendation of those in charge of the ships, but it has developed that this is not a satisfactory method, as much depends upon the points of view on literature possessed by the responsible persons. So it is proposed to standardize the libraries by making the changes in Washington, applying them generally to all ships. It is further held that this plan would work for economy, effecting a saving of from ten to fifteen thousand dollars a year.

Risked Lives to Save Dog.

For five days the piteous howling of a black retriever dog at the bottom of a deep pit shaft disconcerted the neighborhood of Consett, Durham, England, not long ago, and at last several men risked their lives in rescuing it. The shaft is 120 feet deep, and having been out of use for many years, contains a good depth of water. Mr. Charles Musgrave, a local official, decided to make an attempt and on going to the bottom found difficulty in keeping his head above water. He was in great peril of being crushed to death by falls of earth, and his prolonged absence led to a number of men going down in search. He was discovered endeavoring to extricate the dog, which was in a terrible state of exhaustion and nervousness. I had to be conveyed by force to safety where it lay down at the feet of its grateful owner.

Daniel Webster's Clock.

A French clock is an interesting addition to the collection of relics and mementos of Daniel Webster, now in the possession of Dartmouth college, from which Webster was graduated in 1801. The clock is of intricate artistic design, a splendid specimen of workmanship, and for many years was a part of the furnishings at his home in Marshfield. The clock, the case of which is of Gothic style, 17½ inches high, and made of metal finished in fire gilt, leaving a surface of pure gold, was made in Paris about 1840. The dial is in the form of a rose window, and beneath is a door or gate within a Gothic arch. The top is crowned with a dome surrounded by minarets.

Queer, But Correct.

Prof. Brander Matthews, in his quality of philologist, said the other day in New York: "The past participle, 'gotten,' has gone out in England though it still lingers on with us. In England, however, 'gotten' is almost as obsolete as 'putten.' In some parts of Cumberland the villagers still use 'gotten' and 'putten'; and a pupil teacher once told me of a lesson of these past participles wherein she gave her pupils an exercise to write on the blackboard. In the midst of the exercise an urchin began to laugh. She asked him why he was laughing and he answered: 'Joe's put putten where he should have putten put.'"

Ameritise of Artists.

Robert Henri, the artist, was talking at a dinner in New York about the overfished and banal work of painting of the Bourgeois type. "Leigh Whistler," the English Bourgeois, was Whistler," said Mr. Henri, "one day, in Piccadilly. The two men sauntered through the Burlington Arcade talking art. 'But, my dear Whistler,' said Leigh, 'you leave your work so rough, so sketchy! My dear Whistler, why do you never finish? Whistler screwed his glass into his eye and gave a fiendish laugh. 'My dear Leigh,' he said, 'why do you ever begin?'"—Washington Star.

Lynn Man Got In.

A shoe salesman from Lynn was very anxious to sell to a large consignment in Cincinnati. The buyer of the Cincinnati house, who had a big sense of humor, bought according to whim. When the salesman's card came in he kept it and sent out the office boy with a nickel to pay for it and break the news gently that nothing was doing. The office boy returning with another card. "What's that for," asked the capricious buyer. "He said you weren't getting your money's worth," replied the boy. "He sells two of these cards for a nickel." The Lynn man got in.

Sugar in India.

Reports from India indicate that the area of sugar cane in seven provinces this year will be 2,331,700 acres. This is an increase of ten per cent over what it was last season. The returns from this area are put at 2,392,400 tons, or eight per cent more than it was last year. The planted area last year was 2,114,600 acres. The United provinces contribute 52.4 per cent. of the area.

Adam's Mistake.

Eve had just come in from the wood where she had gathered unto herself a fine new costume of autumn leaves. "How do you like my new dress, Adam?" she said, striking an attitude before him. "It's a peach," said Adam admiringly. "No, dear, it's a maple," returned Eve. It was about this time that it began to be rumored about that women have no sense of humor.—Lippincott's.

Wireless in the Desert.

A valuable discovery has been made recently by Marconi in relation to the use of the wireless system in desert country and that is that the use of masts and antennae are not at all necessary for the purposes of communication. This removes one of the great obstacles to the proposition of establishing a system of airmail routes over the Sahara, as it has been found a matter of some difficulty to find the way across the sandy stretch because of the absence of marks which act as guide posts. The discovery above referred to is that owing to the non-conductivity of the sand, messages may be launched to the ether from wires laid a short distance on the ground. In the direction of which it is desired to send the message. Dispensing with the pole in this manner greatly facilitates the use of the system in warfare, for the handling of the pole represents the greatest part of the weight and bulk of the outfit.

The Relic Industry.

The relic hunter is still abroad in the land, and his desire for the unique is fully met by several factories. In this and other countries whose business is to supply the demand of those who will not be "satisfied until they get it." Towahawks by the thousands are turned out in Kansas City and are sent to the Indian reservation in the west, where they are sold to tourists especially to foreign tourists. The manufactured article is said to look more archaic than the tomahawk made by hand. There is a relic factory at Valley Forge that runs night and day at this season turning out in a continuous stream broken swords and rusty gunstocks, pepperbox pistols, corroded bullets, blood-stained knee breeches, shot-riddled haversacks and other relics dear to the tourist's heart.

Bold But Unprofitable Retort.

"I passed that woman in the second floor apartment, downtown in Pet ticoat Lane this afternoon, with a wonderful new French hat on, and she had her chin up so high in the air she couldn't see anyone she knew," said Mrs. Knox with a tinge of resentment in her voice, as she began to pave the way to inform her husband that her own old summer awning was looking disgracefully shabby and ready for the church rummage sale. "That's nothing," retorted Mr. Knox boldly, "when a woman gets a new Paris hat it generally goes to her head." Then he suddenly remembered that he had not sprinkled the lawn for several days and decided this was as good a time as any to get at it.

Philosopher and His Cat.

When my cat and I entertain each other with mutual splash tricks as playing with a garter, who knows but that I make my cat more popular than she makes me? Shall I conclude her to be simple that has her time to begin or refuse to play as freely as myself have? Nay, who knows but that it is a defect of my not understanding her language (for double cats talk and reason with one another) that we agree no better? And who knows but that she pities me for being no wiser than to play with her and laughs and consumes my folly for making sport with her, when we two play together?—Michael de Montaigne.

It Looked That Way.

When Thomas P. Gore, the blimp United States senator from Oklahoma was in Indianapolis to attend the Marshall notification ceremonies he told a story to illustrate a political point he had made. "Old Abe was a negro in Arkansas who had never seen an automobile until he went to the city on day and was nearly struck by the machine as it went speeding down the street at about thirty miles an hour. The old man jumped to the sidewalk and gazed open-mouthed after the car. 'Foh de good Lawd!' ejaculated Uncle Abe, 'dat man's hosses mus' a beee goin' some when dey bruk 'way frum dat kerrige.'"

Distinction or Difference?

A group of New Yorkers were lounging on the piazza of a nearby hotel recently when a young man wearing exquisite clothes and a vacant stare, passed by on his way to the beach with a young woman on his arm. "You know who that is, I suppose?" remarked one of the party. "Oh, yes," was the reply. "Got a couple of millions, I understand. Just out of college. He was educated at Harvard university, was he not?" "Oh, no," said the first speaker. "He wasn't educated at Harvard. He went to school there."—New York Globe.

New Cure for Nerves.

The latest thing in the way of a cure for women afflicted with nervous troubles is knitting in bed. Her physicians are said to have originated the novel remedy. The preoccupation and concentration required for needlework when performed in a sitting posture between pillows and coverings is declared to be working wonders in women afflicted with nerves.—Gas Logic.

Iron and Steel Lead.

Of the more than $1,000,000,000 worth of manufactures exported from the United States during the year those of iron and steel aggregated about $275,000,000 in value; copper and mineral oils, each more than $100,000,000, and lumber and other manufactures of wood, nearly $100,000,000.

Executer and Trustee

Declining Years

You appoint as your Executor and Trustee a man in whose honesty and integrity you repose the greatest confidence and for whose sound business sense you have great respect.

But have you disposed of this matter satisfactorily? One usually selects those as old as one's self or older. The years go by rapidly and while at your decease the man you selected might possess those same qualities of honesty and integrity yet at the same time entirely lack that same quality of sound business judgment.

By appointing this Company your Executor and Trustee you will guard against the possibility of having your estate administered by an individual whose powers of business insight have been robbed of their effectiveness by declining years.

EDITORIAL

The failure of the aldermen to accept the statute authorizing the board to issue licenses for Sunday sales of ice cream, soda water, and confectionery is a matter of regret to all who understand the true situation, and I fear that the board acted largely upon prejudice and failed to give the subject its best judgment. For some years the aldermen have granted certain licenses as common victuallers to persons who were clearly not common victuallers within the meaning of the statute, the licenses being granted for the sole purpose of allowing these persons to keep open on Sundays to sell ice cream, soda water, confectionery and fruit, it being understood in passing that common victuallers are usually restaurant keepers. The places so licensed have usually been street, railway waiting rooms, or booths along the Charles river. The committee this year has endeavored to simplify the situation and advocated the acceptance of the Sunday opening act, which allows the aldermen to grant for these places, just the kind of license the Legislature comtemplated. I fall to understand the attitude of the aldermen who opposed this change. The argument of Alderman Murphy, that while the present board might be careful in granting a Sunday opening license future boards might not—if it can be called an argument—is answered by the fact that future boards can accept the act and go as far as they like in any event, and if precedent (of which considerable was said Monday night on another matter)
is to be of value, it would be far better for the present board to accept the act and by exercising the greatest discrimination, grant such licenses as are absolutely necessary, and thereby establish a basis from which future boards would not be liable to depart.
The act should be accepted and the present incongruous situation as to common victualler licenses eliminated.

The action of the aldermen Monday evening in levying betterment assessments on Los Angeles and All-ston streets, in which the city pays an assessment of $500 on a little over 120 feet frontage, less than one tenth of the total length of the streets improved, at a cost of about $1700, is only another argument against the acceptance of streets under the betterment law. An assessment of $500, about one third of the entire cost for a very small portion of the area benefitted is unfair to the city at large, however much it may help out the other abutters on the street. The land in question is the rear of the Stearns school playground and is absolutely
of no benefit to the city property.
Indeed, the street improvement allows the abutters on the streets named, an additional outlet towards Nonantum village, a fact they have improved by virtually establishing a driveway alongside the playground. The district beyond the streets named to the north, is sparsely populated and the assessment levied on the city would, if it was placed on a private owner, be outrageous. If persons buy land on unac-cepted streets, principally because such land is cheaper, they have no reason to expect the city to improve and accept such streets, unless the entire cost is borne by them. Any other course is manifestly unfair to towards property owners who have purchased land on accepted streets, at a higher cost, and unfair to the city as a whole. When, as in this case, abutting land owned by the city is taken as an excuse—and that is the real reason—to help out the abutting owners, it is about time to enter a protest.

The mental attitude of those aldermen who favor bonding the cost of street construction, under the betterment act, where most of the assessments are paid within a few years, and oppose bonding the cost of such permanent street improvements as widening, and rounding of corners, is a curious illustration of the point of view. The Finance committee proposed a clear cut bonding proposition, including the cost of street widenings,
the incidental cost of curbing, and the construction of certain streets laid out under the betterment act. A proposition which complied with the provisions of the new law on municipal indebtedness, which takes effect next January. The aldermen refused to authorize the bonding of the street widening but favored bonding the betterment streets, and thereby imposed about $10,000 of unnecessary expense on the tax levy of the present year. With a tax levy as heavy as that of the present year, it would seem that good financing to bond the entire street improvement work, as proposed by the committee which has given careful study to the question.

The rumor that Mr. Allison Burr will not be a candidate for nomination next fall for mayor is unfounded so far as I am able to learn. Mr. Burr, himself abroad, but all his friends assert with great confidence that his position on the matter is unchanged and that he will allow the use of his name for the nomination. Mr. Burr's fitness for the office is so manifest that strong support has been attracted to him since his name was first mentioned and a campaign committee is now being formed to forward his interests.

How can Alderman Murphy reconcile his opposition to a grant of the Street Maintenance appropriation for certain specific streets, and his argument in favor of exactly the same sort of an order for certain specific curbing. I suspect that some Nonantum district items can be found in one order and not in the other.

The aldermen deserve some criticism for their action Monday evening in adding $154 to the Curbing Appropriation and charging the same to the already overburdened tax levy of the present year. Curbing is in the nature of a luxury and it would do no harm at all to delay the granting of the petitions until next year.

The failure to make betterment assessments on Waban Hill road, a street constructed last year, before the summer vacation is most unfair to the gentleman who advanced a large part of the money for building the street.

It is said that the present bill board ordinance cannot be enforced and that the failure to liberalize it will make some trouble for the city during the vacation season.

The passage of orders calling the state primary for Sept. 23 indicates that politics are already beginning to receive some attention.

Senator Weeks makes a concise, readable criticism this week of the proposed new currency bill just introduced into Congress.

observing a safe and sane Fourth of July.

Origin of "Spinster."

"Spinster," as a term, owes its origin to the fact that in olden days the law did not permit a woman to marry until she had spun a complete set of linen. There was a particularly whole some restraint about some of the old laws.

Well Answered.

"Now, my little man," an English bishop once said to a bright young lad. "I will give you an orange if you can tell me where old is." "My lord," was the unexpected answer, "I will give you two oranges if you will tell me where he is not."

who, in deference to the parts they play, do not wish to wear the usual sized lenses.

Money in Butterfly Farm.

An Englishman operating a butterfly farm is said to sell to museum and collectors upward of 50,000 specimens yearly. He obtains as high as $50 for exceptionally fine ones, and his net income is said to be fully $2,500.

To Wash Blue Duck.

To wash the child's blue duck suit shake it free of all outer dust, then dip it in cold water containing oxgall in proportion of a tablespoonful to a gallon of water. Let the garment get almost dry, drying it in the shade;
then wash it quickly in tepid water using borax soap, or if you have not this, use a very little pure white soap wherever necessary to remove the dirt, and add a little borax to the wash water. Rinse well, dry in the shade, and iron while still damp, or at least not thoroughly dry.

Seeded Grape Pie.

Take your grapes, pulp them, set aside the skins, bring the pulp to a boil slowly, then press through a sieve mix with the skins. Take a cup of sugar, mix two tablespoonfuls flour with it, put with your seeded grapes add a lump of butter. Have a nice, rich pie crust; line your pan with it, put in grapes, then your top crust. Cut holes in it to allow the steam to escape. Brush the top with melted butter; bake in a hot oven to a golden brown. Serve a little warm with coffee.

Anxious Moments.

Speaking of anxious moments (although nobody was), there are those when you can't tell from what the toastmaster is saying whether he is introducing you or the other fellow.

PROPER USE OF CASSEROLE

Should Always First Be Tempered—Sudden Changes of Temperature to Be Avoided.

Before using a casserole for the first time, it is well to temper it; this is best done by covering it with cold water, then letting the water come to the boiling point, remove from the fire, and let the casserole remain in the water until it is cold.

Under no circumstances let the casserole be put on the stove without tempering it, as it says the Indianapolis News. If this is done the dish will crack.

Avoid sudden changes of temperature with the casserole; that is, do not take it from the hot stove or oven and place it in cold water or in a wet sink; this will prove disastrous to the dish.

Casserole cooking requires only moderate heat; if something is being cooked in the casserole at the same time that intense heat is required for something else, take the precaution of setting the casserole in a pan of water.

If the cover of the casserole does not set very closely, thus allowing steam to escape too freely, it is well to spread a strip of cloth wet with a flour and water paste and press it over the joining of cover and casserole
before setting the dish in the oven.
When ready to serve, the strip is readily pulled off.

In cooking anything in a casserole,
it is well to allow twice the time for cooking that would be required were the stew or vegetables or fruit cooked in the ordinary way.

TAKE UP ENGLISH DELICACY

Orange Marmalade Has Become Popular Dish in America—How It Should Be Served.

America has become addicted to the orange-marmalade habit. That which is bought, much of it shipped from over seas, is never quite so good as that which can be made at home. For every dozen thin-skinned oranges allow three lemons, all the fruit being washed and sliced as thin as paper.
Then cover it with water in the proportion of one and a half quarts of water to every quart of fruit, and allow it to stand overnight. Next morning the mixture is cooked slowly for two hours, sometimes a little more.
Sugar equal in amount to the cooked fruit is added and the cooking is resumed until the mixture jellies from a spoon, which will be in from a half to a full hour. There should be no guess-work in adding the sugar. Measure the cooked fruit carefully to get at the amount of sugar to be used.

Chicken Baked with Salt Pork.

Clean the required number of young chickens. Cut them down through the backbone, open, and flatten breast with a cleaver. In a large covered roasting pan lay several slices of salt pork. Place the chickens on these, skin side up. Dredge with flour and lay several slices of very thin salt pork on top. Add two cups of boiling water and bake slowly two hours, basting frequently and dredging very lightly with flour after each basting.
More broth may be added if necessary. There should be at least eight basting. Place, shouldered toast on a platter, arrange chicken on it, garnish with parsley. Thicken gravy with flour, add one teaspoonful of bu-ter and one cupful of rich cream, salt and pepper to taste, and pour over chicken.

Curry of Beef.

Cut up the meat in small pieces, add
two very finely chopped peeled onions, one teaspoon of curry powder, one peeled and chopped apple, one-half teaspoon of sugar, a little lemon juice.
Add one teaspoon of flour, one-half of a tumblerful of boiling milk and a banana and tomato if liked. Mix together. Place in the paper bag and then on broiler at once. Allow 45 minutes in a hot oven. Rice to be boiled and served separately if desired.

Plum Salad.

For a plum salad pure and pit small plums and fill the cavity in each with chopped nuts, says the New Haven Journal-Courier. Arrange on serving dish in circles of sliced bananas and top each plum and each of the banana slices with a bit of whipped egg dressing. Serve immediately with a garnish of crisp herbs.

Maplewood Pie.

Pare and grate some sweet, mellow apples, about a dozen; to a pint of the grated pulp put a pint of milk
two eggs, two tablespoonfuls of melted butter, the grated peel of a lemon add half a wineglass of brandy; sweeten to your taste; to be baked in a deep plate, with only a lower crust.

Chicken Fritters.

Cut pieces as large as possible from a cold, cooked chicken or turkey, season to taste, dip in fritter batter and fry a golden brown; serve with sauce tartare. The chicken may be dipped in eggs and crumbs instead of batter.

Ginger Snaps.

The secret of good ginger snaps is to use boiling water when mixing them,
cover the dough and let it stand for several hours before baking. —Home Department, National Magazine

Cottage Cheese Salad.

Add rich cream to the desired quantity of cottage cheese; place a spoonful on a lettuce leaf, and sprinkle over the top some finely cut onions.

PROPERLY MADE GRAPE JUICE

Steaming Is Considered Better Than Stewing If Best Results Are to Be Obtained.

There is something worth remembering about the making of grape juice, contributed by a student of domestic science: Crush and steam the grapes, instead of crushing and stewing them, as was the old method. To the crushed fruit add one quart of water to every 16 quarts of grapes, and place the kettle containing them over a second kettle containing hot water. It is claimed that the substitution of steaming for stewing does fuller justice to the grape. After they have been rendered thoroughly tender, pour the cooked fruit into the jelly bag and let it drip over night. By morning the sediment will have settled at the bottom and the clear top can be poured off. The juice is now ready for bottling. After it has been strained into bottles (glass fruit jars may be used as good advantage) covers and rubbers are put on and the bottles are set on a rack in the boiler, or on the shelf of the steam cooker. If you use the boiler, or a kettle, add cold water until it comes up about two inches on the bottle or jar. Bring the water gradually to the boiling point, and let the boiling continue from 30 to 60 minutes, according to size of jar. Seal the bottles, and the juice is ready to store.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS

Scorch marks of linen may be removed by rubbing with a fresh cut onion, the garment being soaked in cold water after.

Keep some folded newspapers handy upon which to place soiled pots and pans, and save cleaning smutty rugs from the tables.

When preparing a turkey or chicken, try rubbing it inside with a piece of lemon. It will whiten the flesh and make it more tender.

After cleaning the shelves and inside of pantry drawers, give a coat of varnish or enamel, and they will clean as easily as oilcloth.

Avoid open shelves in kitchen or pantry. Have at least a curtain to keep out the dust. A window shade of the right size is liked by many.

To prevent pictures from slipping and hanging uneven, hang them first face to the wall, and then twist around, making a cross in the wire.

Croquettes or other foodstuffs to be fried in deep fat should stand for fifteen minutes in the warm kitchen before being cooked, to brown well.

 Ragout of Lamb.

Cut the necessary amount of shoulder of lamb into square pieces of equal size. Take off the pink skin and saute or fry in a bit of butter—an ounce is enough for three pounds. Add some small onions and brown for 10 minutes. Dredge with flour, a tablespoon to a pound, and stir well for two minutes. Moisten with boiling water or white broth, a pint to a pound of meat, and season. Let cook for 45 minutes. Two minutes after it begins to boil thoroughly skim off the scum on the surface. Serve on a hot dish with green beans and an equal quantity of new carrots, cut in small pieces, steamed and well seasoned.

Open Apple Pie.

Line a rather deep pie plate with pastry and put a rim around the edge. Pare and cut tart apples into half-inch sections, lengthwise and stand them close together all around the edge. Then fill the center with sliced apples, all it will hold, filling in the cracks well, as the apples shrink in baking. Add sugar, a few grains of salt, nutmeg or cinnamon and dot all over with bits of butter. Bake in a moderate oven until apples are done and serve hot or as soon as cool. Not to good after first day.

Egg Cutlets.

Put two tablespoonsful of butter into a sauce pan; add two tablespoonsful of flour and blend over fire; add one cupful of milk, boil three minutes, stirring all the time; add two yolks of eggs, remove from fire, and add two tablespoonsful of chopped, cooked ham, six chopped hard-boiled eggs, seasoning of salt, pepper, and nutmeg. Turn out onto a plate to cool. Shape into cutlets. Brush over with beaten egg, roll in bread crumbs, and fry in smoking hot fat. Serve hot.

Boiling Cracked Eggs.

An egg that is cracked can be boiled by inclosing it in a piece of soft paper. When the paper becomes wet it adheres to the egg, and prevents it from coming through the shell. This process should be successful in every case where the crack is of a moderate length.

Washing White Stockings.

When washing white silk stockings use tepid water and pure white soap. Rub gently with the hands. Rinse in cold water and add a little bluing to the last rinsing water. This keeps them from becoming yellow.

Ginger Pudding.

One-half cupful molasses, one teaspoonful ginger, one-half lemon, one egg, one-half cupful milk, one teaspoonful soda, one teaspoonful cream tartar, one tablespoonful butter, one half cupful chopped raisins.

Water Sponge Cake.

This is a small sponge cake: One egg, one-half cup of sugar, one-half teaspoon lemon juice, three tablespoons of cold water, three-quarters cup of flour sifted with one teaspoon baking powder

WATER POWER IN NEW ENGLAND

Many Advantages Over Other Sections
In Fall and Flow of Her Rivers.

Industrial Boom Should Follow Their Use for Hydroelectric Purposes—Figures Show
She Already Leads.

The problem of harnessing our rivers and utilizing their power to move the wheels of commerce and industry is today a subject of ever increasing study, and it is one fraught with tremendous importance to the future of New England.

The increase in the price of coal, the fact, as shown by geologists' reports, that our coal supply is not inexhaustible, particularly the supply of anthracite, have turned our thoughts to the river, have been fast trying to avail ourselves of its friendly flow and utilize the enormous energy which it represents.

The increased attention given to this subject resulted a few years ago in the geological survey making a careful examination of the country's water power. In other words, that New England, New York and Pennsylvania and a few south Atlantic states, together with the Pacific, contained pretty much all that there was of it.

The following are the principal rivers whose potential water power is so important to New England and which should make it pre-eminently the place for manufacturing opportunities:

St. Croix River, Maine.
Total fall 128 feet in 84 miles; drainage area, 1,774 square miles; maximum rate of fall, 90 feet per mile at Sprague Falls.

Penobscot River, Maine.
Total fall 1,509 feet in 200 miles; drainage area, 3,331 square miles; maximum rate of fall, 197 feet per mile at Chesuncook Lake.

Kennebec River, Maine.
Total fall 1,022 feet in 138 miles; drainage area, 6,490 square miles; maximum rate of fall, 14.7 feet per mile near Moosehead Lake (source).

Androscoggin River, Maine.
Total fall 2,225 feet in 199 miles; drainage area, 3,038 square miles; maximum rate of fall, 16.2 feet per mile near Magalloway Lake (source).

Saco River, Maine.
Total fall 1,850 feet in 104 miles; maximum rate of fall, 94.6 feet per mile at or near source; drainage area, 1,750 square miles.

Merrimack River, New Hampshire and Massachusetts.
Total fall 260 feet in 110 miles; maximum rate of fall, 52.0 feet per mile at Manchester, N. H.; drainage area, 4,864 square miles.

Contoocook River (Branch of the Merrimack).
Total fall 85 feet in 55 miles; maximum rate of fall, 70 feet per mile at Berlin, N. H. (Drainage area included in Merrimack).

Connecticut River.
Total fall 2,038 feet in 375 miles; maximum rate of fall, 34.2 feet per mile at Connecticut Lake; drainage area, 11,263 square miles.

Housatonic River.
Total fall 983 feet in 123 miles; maximum rate of fall, 19.4 feet per mile at Falls Village, Conn.; drainage area, 1,933 square miles.

Labor is generally more plentiful, particularly skilled labor, where the conditions of living are the best, where there is the best environment for the home, the best educational advantages. It is for reasons such as these that New England has such a large population of skilled mechanics. It is for these reasons that years ago it became an industrial region almost without equal in this country; hence it must be that with the development of the enormous power lodged in her streams and its conversion into electrical energy possible of transmission over an extended area there should be no question but that this region is to be the scene of great industrial expansion through the superior advantages it will thus offer to manufacturers.

Hydroelectric power—the power of the flowing stream converted into electrical energy through the use of turbines—may not be cheaper than steam in some places, for its cost to the consumer varies with conditions. It seldom runs higher than steam and in many instances much lower—as, for instance, at Rumford Falls, in Maine, where the power of the river thus converted is supplied to nearby manufacturing establishments at a cost of a third of a cent per kilowatt hour. But even with its cost approximately that of steam, with coal at its present price, it cannot be doubted that the region possessing a large and well distributed supply of such power is going to prove attractive to industry and particularly to new enterprises, by reason of the fact that through its use there is saved to the manufacturer a large percentage of his capital which would otherwise have to be expended in a steam plant. This saving can be used to enlarge the size of the plant and increase its capacity. Consequently with the completion of even a few of such hydroelectric stations as are now being erected New England should see a growth in her industries, though these plants encroach but little on her potential water power.

That New England has long recognized the friendly power of her streams and been a leader in developing such power by the old methods in vogue before the present age of electricity is shown by the figures. The total developed water power of the country at the present time was estimated by the commissioner of corporations in his recent report at about 6,000,000 horsepower. Of this New England had about 36 per cent, New York 30, Minnesota and Wisconsin 17 and South Carolina 5. The minimum potential water power—that is, all the power lodged in the lakes and streams of the entire country—was placed at 25,736,000, including that already under development. The maximum was placed at 51,395,000. At the recent conservation congress it was estimated that the utilization of even this minimum amount would mean the saving of 600,000,000 tons of coal.

According to the census figures, more than two-fifths of the total power derived from water wheels by manufacturing establishments is found in New England. More than one-quarter of the total power of all kinds used in New England's many factories is supplied by water wheels. No such showing is to be found anywhere else in the United States. If this showing has been made with the old form of power transmission, revealing as it does how readily her rivers by reason of their great fall and flow have lent themselves to man's purposes in this respect, what must be the opportunities for her industrial growth in the new method of harnessing the stream, a method by which the power represented by the river's fall is taken and converted into electrical energy and distributed throughout a territory many miles in extent!

Today no longer does man have to come to the stream and build his plant at the brink of the fall. Instead he brings the power to him. Here is a method by which the plunging waters are led tamely through tunnel or canal so that the force of their fall may move mighty dynamos, a method by which the hand of man, so to speak, reaches out and wresting the power from the river, uses it to run his mills, light his streets and move his trolley cars, though these may be a hundred miles and more away. And yet this new method is practically in its infancy.

The following table gives the amount of water power her plants are developing today and what they are capable of, a distinction being made between those establishments designed to sell power for commercial purposes and those run in connection with manufacturing plants:

	Com- cial	Manu- factur-	Unde- velop-	Total
Maine	6,530	168,338	100,000	274,868
New Hampshire	16,450	103,658	13,000	133,108
Vermont	53,548	40,197	44,460	138,205
Massachusetts	70,837	11,321	14,231	96,389
Connecticut	32,000	15,519	4,000	51,519
Total	244,155	289,534	176,580	709,269

Here is a table of the potential water power of New England as estimated by the geological survey and revised in the bureau of corporations' report, both the minimum and maximum being given:

	Min- imum	Max- imum
Maine	$2,000	$71,000
New Hampshire	$62,000	$25,000
Vermont	$113,000	$56,000
Massachusetts	$42,000	$73,000
Rhode Island	7,000	16,000
Connecticut	80,000	164,000
Total	1,042,000	1,925,000

It will be seen from these tables that the amount of water power now being used in New England is about 40 per cent of the minimum and a trifle less than 32 per cent of the maximum as figured out by the government experts. The amount of power these plants are capable of producing if fully developed is about 77 per cent of the minimum and about 41 per cent of the maximum. At the present time New England has a total of thirty-one commercial plants in operation. And yet, despite this fact and the fact that 25 per cent of the power in her manufacturing establishments is water power, taking the mean of these figures it would appear as if, roughly speaking, she had half of her water power.

Hydroelectric development must of necessity have its limitations. The practical limit of transmission for the current generated by this method was recently placed by one of the leading engineers of the country at 200 miles. The expense of these transmission lines must needs be great, requiring, as they do, a superior type of construction to carry the high voltage cables and a protected right of way through the country. In the case of one Massachusetts company, the New England Power company, a strip 160 feet in width has been cleared for its transmission line. It is obvious therefore that that region in placed at the greatest advantage whose water power is the best distributed.

Great as may be the collective water power of a state it is at a decided disadvantage so far as its attractiveness to manufacture goes if it is concentrated at one spot like Niagara. It is 450 miles from Niagara to New York. In New England there is probably no populous center more than 150 miles from some large power site. In short, in no other part of this country is the water power so well distributed for industrial use as here. It offers a rare field for the development of hydroelectric power plants because all over New England these great water power sites are found near a market. Of New England can it be said that today she has a greater asset in her water power than Pennsylvania in her coalfields.

While hydroelectric development is comparatively new, capital has not been slow in seeking this form of investment in this region, as is shown by the total of her plants in operation and under construction. Only a few of the manufacturing states have developed power commercially to the extent of Maine or Massachusetts. In the New England Power company Massachusetts has by far the largest single development in the New England states. It is the largest development east of Niagara, covering three states in its operations. Today with four plants in operation it is developing 70,000 horsepower. Eventually it will have eight plants in operation with a total output of power amounting to 200,000 horsepower.

The electrical energy to be furnished by this company in 1914 will replace annually 225,000,000 tons of coal.

All told this development will represent an investment amounting to over $4,000,000. Today this company is moving cars in Worcester and will soon be supplying power to the trolley lines of Fitchburg. It is running cotton mills in Clinton and Fitchburg, wire mills and car works in Worcester, is supplying current for the lighting of Fitchburg, Gardner and Marlborough. It is selling power to local electric companies in smaller towns throughout a wide area. Its operations cover a zone reaching from Keene, N. H., to Monson and Uxbridge, in southern Massachusetts. Eventually its lines will reach as far south as Plainfield, Conn., and Providence, R. I.

This plan was finished in January, 1910. Its output in 1912 amounted to 64,000,000 kilowatt hours. The other plants of the New England Power company are located on the Deerfield river, which, rising in the Green mountains of Vermont, empties into the Connecticut at Greenfield, Mass. The great problem connected with this development was the creation of a storage reservoir of sufficient size to tide over the low water season. One storage basin has already been constructed and work has been begun on a second which will impound altogether 55,000,000 gallons of water, thus insuring an adequate supply of water for the power plants throughout even the driest summer. There are now three of these plants completed and in operation on the Deerfield river, each containing three generators with the capacity of 8,000 horsepower each.

One plant is located two miles above the town of Shelburne Falls, another is opposite the village, and the third two miles below it. Within a short time a fourth plant will be completed on the river just above the Hoosac tunnel, with a capacity of 20,000 horsepower.

Ultimately this company expects to develop 100,000 horsepower on the Deerfield river alone.

To carry this great load 175 miles of transmission lines are now in use or being erected. These lines are built on their own right of way and can be seen for miles around.

Second only to this development is that of the Turners Falls company, promoted by the Cabot and Crocker interests of Boston. At Turners Falls the Connecticut drops abruptly some thirty feet. Its falls have been used for power purposes by the old method for generations. The dam built in the sixties, has a crest of 1,000 feet. For hydroelectric purposes the old canal was widened a few years ago and a power plant installed which yields 7,000 horsepower. In this way the energy of the turbulent river has been rendered possible of transmission far beyond the river bank. Today a new dam is being built and engineers are extending this canal with a view of wresting still greater power from the river by leading it to a point two miles below where another fall of sixty feet will produce electrical energy equal to 40,000 horsepower.

The power which is being developed of Turners Falls is sold to a number of allied companies which act as distributors. In this way it reaches many towns, including Riverside and Millers Falls. Through the Greenfield Electric Light company it reaches South Vernon, Northfield, Bernardston, Deerfield, Colrain, Buckland and Greenfield, and through the Amherst and Easthampton Gas companies Amherst, Sunderland, Whately, Hatfield, Hadley, Easthampton and Southampton. Turners Falls is but forty miles from Springfield. It is aimed to extend the transmission lines ultimately to supply industries not alone in Springfield, but in Chicopee and Westfield. In many of these towns, particularly Turners Falls, hundreds of factory sites are within easy reach of this power, whose price necessarily cheapens as the length of transmission shortens.

Another recent New England hydroelectric development is that at Rumford Falls. It has resulted already in converting what was twenty years ago a wilderness into a modern city with a population of 10,000 people. Here where the Androscoggin river has a ninety-nine foot fall a station has been built developing 20,000 horsepower. Over a million dollars has been spent on two great dams. Instead of canals the rushing waters at Rumford Falls are led through great steel tubes into the power station. The mills of the International Paper company take over 11,000 horsepower alone. The Oxford Paper company consumes 5,000 more and the Fort Hill Chemical company 1,250. The Central Maine Power company, located at Oakland on the Mescalouchee river, is still another development with 6,450 horsepower developed and 23,000 undeveloped.

Connecticut is not without its hydroelectric development, for at Bull's Bridge on the Housatonic, there has been for some years in operation a plant developing 30,000 horsepower. Besides running the trolley lines of the Connecticut company in Waterbury and New Britain, the latter fifty miles away, this power is today running several industrial plants besides local lighting interests.

These are but a few of the most important of the central hydroelectric stations already established and in process of construction in New England by which a partial utilization of the immense energy of its water courses may be accomplished and the power thus generated sold commercially. Scattered throughout this region at the present time are thirty-one plants designed to sell power commercially as distinguished from the scores of mills which still take power directly from the streams on whose banks they are located.

That these stations have already had the effect of cheapening power to some extent for the manufacturer there is no doubt. The increase of such plants, which is bound to occur, is certain to have a still greater effect in this line, all of which will redound to the advantage of the manufacturer who seeks New England.

Today the rates for large quantities of power vary from 3 mills per kilowatt hour at Rumford Falls, Me., to 1.6 mills in various parts of Connecticut.

If used in large quantities there is without question a considerable saving over steam according to those competent to judge the results. In order to aid this development the industrial bureau of the New England lines has collected a list of available water power sites in New England and already there have been many inquiries for the same.

It is also about to undertake a careful tabulation of all the development work at present under way and which will redound to the benefit of New England's industries, whose promotion is one of the chief aims of the New England lines.

That manufacturers are beginning to appreciate the advantages New England possesses in opportunities for such development coupled with her supply of skilled labor there can be no question. It was her broad rivers and rushing streams which aided her settlement and stimulated her development in the early days of her history by affording easy means of communication and furnishing power to turn the water wheels of her infant industries. Today these same streams are stored with a dynamic force which when converted into electrical energy will be sufficient to move her mills and be the means of a new industrial growth rich in promise for generations yet to come. And the supply is inexhaustible.

WOOD—NODEN

Miss Ethel Gertrude Noden, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Noden and Mr. Leslie Bradford Wood of Newton Centre were married on Wednesday evening at the home of the bride on Nonantum place, Newton, the ceremony being performed at eight o'clock by Rev. H. Grant Person, pastor of the Eliot Church.

The bride was gown in charmeuse satin, draped with Chantilly lace and carried a shower bouquet of white peonies and valley lilies. Her sister Miss Annie B. Noden was maid of honor and wore lavender messaline, draped with shadow lace and carried yellow roses. Mr. Harold R. Noden, a brother of the bride, was the best man and the ushers were Messrs. Harold A. Foster and Fred Woolworth of Newton Centre.

A reception followed the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Wood being assisted in receiving their friends by Mr. and Mrs. George S. Noden. An interesting incident of the wedding festivities was the announcement of the engagement of Mr. Harold A. Foster, one of the ushers, to Miss Alice H. Ireland of Newton Centre.

Mr. and Mrs. Wood will reside at Newton Centre.

CORRESPONDENCE

To the Editor of the Newton Graphic:

Most school boys, at any rate the older boys, now grown to manhood have declared or heard declared Clever's oration against Cataline—"How long are you going to abuse our patience, etc."

These words, seemingly appropriate, these hot, sticky, summer days, as we move about in the Square to take the cars for Boston or Cambridge or the different parts of our town, or cross to the R. R. Station, or to some of the shops, or the Bank—only many of us do not often have to go to the Bank "How long" are we to bear the dust from the sand used to cover the stickiness of Tarvin—the disgusting mud it makes after a rain and the trouble in finding a clean, decent crossing of the streets?

It is true Commonwealth avenue is generally quite free from dust and mud, a fine place for motor cars to drive fast on, but what satisfaction is that to those caught in the dust and mud of Nonantum Square, or the shopping parts of the town, now tax payers find Commonwealth avenue fine racing ground.

"How long," I ask, are we to be subjected to this nuisance, it might be called, and the dirty, sticky, tarry dust that fills stores and houses, to say nothing of eyes and throats, arising from the sand and gravel spread broadcast to cover the tar to be ground up into dust at once?

Why could not the power, the authority that controls and uses our highways in experimenting and spent so much on preparing and repairing Nonantum Square a few years ago, have seen what Brookline and Cambridge have done with their great squares?

Is not a brick pavement worth trying in some part of our town?

Have not shop helpers, the citizens generally, the right to have clean streets, that can be easily swept and watered, safe and dry crossings free from oil or tarry mud?

I repeat, "how long" are we to bear without protest the whims, the fancies, the experiments, the neglect of our Street Commissioner.

D. G. F.
Newton, June 30th.

Finance, in bonding an accumulation of all jobs, provided they were construction matters.

Alderman Jamieson said that picking out the small jobs gives a wrong impression, and most of them had already been favorably adopted upon the order. We have been hammered by everybody to keep the rate down and after a careful study present a perfect fair, just, and straightforward proposition.

The bond issue was then defeated. Alderman Bemis, Cabot, Early, Foxhall, Jamieson, J. Murphy, Pratt, Richardson and W. 10 voting in favor, and Alderman Rittell, Blanchard, Cox, Gordon, Kins, Sullivan and Lak more, 7 voting against, the order being 14 favorable votes.

Subsequently President Blakemore had an order introduced authorizing the issue of $12,000 in ten year serial bonds to cover the cost of work already ordered for street work under the betterment act and it was passed with Alderman Bartlett and Cox voting in opposition.

An order for $550 for a new automobile for the Street Dept. caused some discussion, Alderman Sullivan opposing the same and asking for delay. Alderman Murphy said that if this appropriation is not made the Dept. will have to purchase two horses as the present machine is absolutely useless and in his opinion the horses would cost more than the auto. Alderman Sullivan's motion to recommend that the cost be charged to Street Maintenance instead of the tax levy. Alderman Richardson said that the Finance committee was making desperate efforts to straighten out the Maintenance account and urged the board not to make it a catchall for every conceivable item. This motion was also defeated, and the order adopted, Alderman Sullivan voting alone in opposition.

The Finance committee presented a plan for straightening out the present appropriation for street maintenance, recommending transfers to that account of the street railway tax, and $8000 from Extraordinary repairs, receding from the budget, $10,000 from Extraordinary repairs, and making specific grants for street work amounting to about $50,000, the balance of the appropriation to be used for cleaning, patching and work on less important streets, Alderman Richardson presenting the matter in a clear cut statement.

Alderman Murphy thought the responsibility of the 1913 budget was on the last board, who prepared it, and said that the list of streets submitted last year was radically different from that now given by the city officials. He thought it unwise to reduce the appropriation and the suggestion is made not to reduce the streets don't need the work, but because we ought to reduce the tax rate. He thought it a farce if time was spent to prepare a budget only to have it torn in ribbons.

Alderman Richardson thought that he had obtained a careful and intelligent opinion as to the street requirements of the present and future, separating maintenance from reconstruction. All the streets in the list ought to be resurfaced within the next three years and other streets will be given enough treatment to keep them in fair condition.

Alderman Cox queried the statement that we can map out a policy for the next three years, as the board will certainly change in that time. He thought it poor policy for the board to make appropriations for specific streets.

The orders were then passed, with Alderman Cox, Murphy and Sullivan voting in opposition.

Alderman Bemis opposed the passing under suspension of the rules of a new ordinance relating to billboards, saying that we don't know the merits of the ordinance and if it results in billboards he should oppose it. Several aldermen opposed suspending the rule and it accordingly goes over until the fall.

Alderman Murphy opposed giving the mayor authority to lease the old Jackson school house, without a definite knowledge of the use to which it was to be put, but the order was passed nevertheless.

An order increasing the Curbing appropriation some $1900 was favored by Alderman Murphy and it was adopted, although the entire cost was added to the tax levy of 1913.

Alderman Bemis presented an order to establish the street lines on the recently widened portion of Hammond street, and the ensuing debate brought out the fact that it would probably cost about $500. Alderman Bartlett, Cabot, Cox and Murphy voted in opposition, but it was adopted 13 to 4.

An ordinance establishing the tax limit at $12 per $1000 was adopted at the hearing earlier in the session being unopposed.

Betterment assessments were ordered levied on Los Angeles and Allison streets, with President Blakemore voting alone in opposition.

Alderman Murphy opposed the order accepting chap. 428 of 1909 to allow licenses to be granted for Sunday sale of ice cream, water, etc. He wanted to know if the act was in force. To grant it would be a discrimination, and to grant it would bring out a strong protest. He thought the drug stores were able to fill the demand for these things and people should buy their supplies on Saturday night. Grocery stores had as much right to keep open Sundays in his opinion as candy stores. The acceptance of the act was defeated by a tie vote.

At hearings held in the session, Mr. Edward Wyatt and Mr. Walter T. Kelley appeared in favor of pole locations on Upland road, Ward 2, asking that they were erecting new houses there and desired the Edison service.

In connection with hearing on petition for rearrangement of pole locations on Church street, Ward 7, Mr. Chas. W. Kent of the Telephone Co. stated that the petition was entered at the request of the Chief of the Fire Dept. and that it was for the purpose of placing all poles on one side of the street and therefore, straighten the line.

Mr. J. H. Sullivan, representing the Grace Church, appeared in opposition, believing the lines as now placed were satisfactory to all, and that if any work was contemplated now it should be the burying of the wires. In reply to questions of Mr. Richardson as to what work the companies were doing in the line of conduits, both Mr. Kent of the Telephone Co. and Mr. E. Gould of the Edison Co. stated that their respective companies were spending a large amount for this work in Newton each year.

No one appeared at hearings held on Edison poles on Page road, Court street, Auburn street, Islington road, and Old England road on petition T. G. Fuller to keep gasoline on Ripley street.

The jury list as submitted by the Registrars of Voters was approved. The board held a recess during the session to consult with Mayor Hatfield and for committee meetings and adjournment to Sept. 8th was reached at 1:27 A. M.

STATE FORESTER'S WARNING

As the Fourth of July is near at hand, the State Forester believes that it is very important that the attention of the general public be called to the law which prohibits the use of fire balloons, chapter 141, Acts of 1910, which reads as follows: "It shall be unlawful within any city or town in this commonwealth for any person to liberate or fly fire balloons of any description. Whoever violates this act shall be punished by a fine of not more than one hundred dollars, or by imprisonment for not more than one month, or by both such fine and imprisonment."

Observers will be on duty at the lookout stations throughout the State continuously over the holiday, and all violators of this law or any other relating to fires in the open air will be promptly prosecuted.

In past years serious fires have resulted from the use of these balloons, and it is hoped that this timely warning will prevent a repetition this year of a serious menace to the woodlands of the State.

"Jay Walking"

"Jay walking" is a recognized form of walking at any rate in the south, where a person who was addicted to it met his death, and the coroner's report used this phrase to describe what the man was doing. It appears that the "jay walker" is a walker who cuts across corners and goes across the street anywhere and at any angle, instead of making use of the crossing.

BARNARD-SPRAGUE

The wedding of Miss Sallie Sprague, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis W. Sprague, 2nd, of West Newton and Mr. Kenneth Holmes Barnard of Palmenton, Penn., took place on Monday at the Unitarian Church at Barnstable, Mass. The ceremony was performed at one o'clock by Rev. Julian C. Jaynes, pastor of the West Newton Unitarian Church. The bride was in crepe meteor, shadow lace and court train, with her veil caught with orange blossoms and carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. The maid of honor, Miss Mary A. Sprague, a sister of the bride, was gowned in white with blue chiffon over jacket, and wore a large black hat with blue tulle wings and carried a bouquet of old-fashioned flowers. The bridesmaids, who were the Misses Katharine G. Sprague, a sister of the bride, Mary Tufts of Boston, Louise K. Sprague of Clinton, Margaret Crocker of Newton, cousins of the bride, Lilian Burdakin of Dedham and Mary L. Hunter of West Newton, were dressed in embroidered white batiste with pink chiffon over jacket, large black hats with pink tulle wings and with bouquets of old-fashioned flowers.

Mr. Roger C. Barnard, Harvard '92, of New York City, a brother of the groom, was the best man, and the ushers were the Messrs. Samuel S. Crocker, M. I. T., '13, of Newton, Richard M. Everett, Harvard, '10, of Boston, Henry C. Everett, Jr., Harvard, '13, of Boston, Walter H. Sprague, Brown, '14, of Fall River, Walter Tufts, Jr., Harvard, '13, of Boston and Harold H. Griffin, M. I. T., '12, of Ashmont.

As the wedding guests were assembling vocal selections were given by Miss Claire Stephenson of Brookline, and the wedding music was played by Miss Malda Phinney of Barnstable, a friend of the bride.

An informal reception followed the ceremony at the home of Mrs. H. C. Everett of Boston, a cousin of the bride, being held in the same room in which the grandparents of the bride held their wedding reception a half century ago. Mr. and Mrs. Barnard were assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. Francis W. Sprague 2nd, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Barnard of West Newton, parents of the groom, and Mr. C. Gardner Sprague, grandfather of the bride.

The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Barnard of West Newton and is a graduate of Harvard '11 and M. I. T., '12.

Mr. and Mrs. Barnard will make their home at Palmenton, Pa., after August first.

SUCCESSFUL CELEBRATION OF THE 4TH IN NEWTON

AT NONANTUM	AT NEWTON CENTRE	AT UPPER FALLS	AT WABAN	AT LOWER FALLS	AT WEST NEWTON	AT NEWTON
Sports, Band Concert and Fireworks Given	The Usual Program Carried Out in Fine Style	Fine Horrible Parade and Good Sports in This Village	The Whole Village Joins in Celebrating the Day	Long Lists of Sports on the Playground	Fine Program on the Common Including a Horse Show	New Business Men's Association Makes Good
The celebration this year did not include the midnight bon fire of former years, but the program was varied enough to satisfy everyone. The flag raising on the Stearns school playground was, as usual, most interesting, and there was a great scrambling for the hundreds of small flags which were released as the larger piece ofunting reached the mast head. The Declaration of Independence was read at this time by Margaret M. Considine.	The usual elaborate program arranged by the Newton Centre Improvement Society was conducted this year on July Fourth, the celebration being held on the Newton Centre Playground. The long list of sports, which were conducted during the morning, caused the archery tournament, which was scheduled to have taken place to be called off. Baseball games and features for the children were held during the afternoon and in the evening the annual display of fireworks was set off on a raft in Crystal Lake. Box 6 was rung in about 9.30 in the evening for a fire in a shed on Clark street, owned by D. W. Eagles.	An antique and horrible parade ushered in the festivities of the holiday at Upper Falls, in which a large number of residents participated, and several hundred witnessed the amusing floats along the line of march. The program arranged by the committee in charge was on a much larger scale than the big celebration last year, and the day was enjoyably spent by all.	The parade of antiques and horrors starting from the playground at 8 o'clock the morning of the Fourth, commenced Waban's celebration. For this event the Waban Band appeared with twelve pieces, and with Mr. Don Hill in his old place as bass drummer. A cup as first prize was awarded to Mr. Robert E. Hall, who as a colored woman with several colored children, made quite a hit.	Newton Lower Falls' first celebration of July Fourth this year, proved far more successful and enjoyable than the committee had anticipated. The program was an elaborate one, consisting of a fine assortment of sports, ball games and entertainments for the children. The sports were conducted under the direction of John Donahue and Miss Marion Eaton, supervisors of play on the playgrounds, and throughout the day, children from that section and also parts of Auburndale contested for the beautiful prizes offered for the winners of the events. The summary of the events follows:	The observance of July Fourth by the West Newton and Auburndale residents, was on a much more elaborate scale, than was ever attempted before. Throughout the entire day fully 4000 people witnessed the celebration at all times, and there was scarcely a minute that some attraction for the enjoyment of the people was not in progress.	For the first time in many years, the village of Newton really celebrated the Fourth of July in fitting fashion. The newly organized Newton Business Men's Association was responsible for the affair, and great credit is due to the hustling chairman of the committee in charge, Mr. G. A. Aston. All the events took place on the grounds of the Newton Y. M. C. A. The program included a ball game between married and single men in the morning, which was won by the former, 9 to 8, and in which the principal features were the remarkable work of Newcomb at second, including a double somersault, which was in a class by itself, and the umpiring of Billy Hylands. And it was some game at that. This was followed by a goal game of ball between the Y. M. C. A. team and the Norwoods, won by the former by a score of 6 to 3.
The entertainment which followed in the school hall at ten o'clock, included a comedy sketch by Louis T. Caldwell, Joseph Antonelli, Sam. Longbottom and Jeffrey Landry, reading by Miss Antoinette Rufo, and selections by the Manning Brothers and Washington A. Coles.	Summary of sports:— Bag race for girls—Won by Elizabeth O'Rourke. Mildred Kneeland, Catherine Sullivan, Mary Mullaney, Lucy McClelland. Baseball relay for junior girls—Won by Mary Mullaney, Catherine Sullivan, Lucy McClelland, Elizabeth O'Rourke, Mildred Kneeland. Baseball relay senior girls—Won by Agnes Mulleney, Grace Kneeland, Annie Cameron, Marion King and Mildred Kneeland. Egg and spoon race senior girls—Won by Marion King; Grace Kneeland second. 75 yd. dash for boys—Won by N. Edwards; W. Monahan second; W. Furden third. Barrel race—Won by W. Furden; N. Edwards second. Relay race junior boys—Won by W. Furden; W. Hurley, P. Dean, W. Monahan, Linus Vachon. (Continued on Page 8)	The special prize of $10 in gold for the best float was awarded to Crystal Lake Court, No. 157, F. of A., representing an Indian Camp. An old stage coach, used on the plains, was awarded the first prize of $10.00, it being entered by Fred Fontenay and Walter Duggan. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Lees in "Silk Hat Harry's Divorce Case" took the second prize. The first individual prize of $4.00 was divided by James Gormley, who was dressed in the garb of a tramp, and Frank Sheridan as "Happy Hooligan." The second and third prizes of $3.00 and $2.00 were awarded to William Kerrivan as "Uncle Sam" and Arthur Henlvan as a mounted Indian. Messrs. Lane and Sheridan posing as a newly married couple took the fourth prize of $1.00. An honorable mention was awarded the eight members of the Athletic Association who paraded on motorcycles, dressed in costumes of Satin, and also to Richard Kerrivan who wore a costume made of the Sunday supplements of the Boston Globe. The judges were Alderman Thomas Sullivan, Mark V. Croker and Thomas L. Goodwin. (Continued on Page 8)	Mr. Charles H. Cook won second prize, and was also given a cup for his makeup as a Mexican. James Wiley, with his representation of "September Morn," won third prize. Miss Roxana Chadbourne won a special prize as a gypsy girl. Kendall Kellaway won a special prize as a tramp, and Kathryn Harlow as a Dutch girl, won a special prize. Brewster Cook and Fred Williams deserve mention for their part as the Sparrow Kids, and Miss Clara Wiley as a suffragette, was also good. The sports were started on the playground at 9.30 and had many entries, and were all well contested. The ball game on the playground in the afternoon brought out a large crowd of royal rooters and was won for the first time by the North Side team, by the score of 10 to 6. Captain Parent, taking possession of the cup for the coming year. Most of the Waban residents and many visitors lined Beacon street and the playground at night to hear the band concert and witness the display of fireworks. Many favorable comments were heard on the good work of the committee of the Improvement Society in giving such a fine entertainment. Summary of sports:— 40 yd. dash Class A—Won by T. Taylor; Philip Bache and J. Wiley tied for second. 40 yd. dash Class B—Won by Almsworth Rane; J. Horgan second; F. Scott third. 40 yd. dash Class C—Won by Elbridge Luck; H. Wardwell second; B. Running broad jump for girls, Class B—Won by Teresa Tangney; Bessie Cooney second; Pearl Cooper third. (Continued on Page 8)	The energetic committee in charge of the affair, had in mind that a ball game would not prove very interesting for the women and children, and throughout the morning Mayor Hatfield threw the doors of Players' Hall open, where an excellent entertainment of high class talent was given for their benefit. The program included feats of magic, toe dancing and a skip rope dance by Dorothy LaCrosse, and acrobatic clown, a Scotch sword dance and highland fling by May Devery and a comic farce. Every child present was given an American flag. Two entertainments were given, one at 9 o'clock for primary children and one at 11 o'clock for the grammar school children. The committee in charge included Mayor Hatfield, Henry B. Day, George A. Frost, Charles E. Gibson, George J. Barker, William F. Chase, Thomas J. Lyons, Fred L. Smith and Ernest Hermann. The fine list of sports were conducted during the afternoon, and the events were all closely contested, which added a great deal of enthusiasm to the affair. While the sports were being conducted Punch and Judy shows and several other entertainments was given for the children. A feature of the day's celebration was the horse jumping events which were conducted during the afternoon. But a small number of those present had ever seen horses take the steeple chase, and when the animals safely got over the high jumps, a thrill arose from the onlookers. Mr. Harry L. Burrage rode two of his pets, and the large crowd gave him an enthusiastic reception. W. H. B. Dowse's Sam took first honors, and Mr. Burrage's famous (Continued on Page 8)	Fred Houch, first baseman for the Norwood team, sprained his ankle during the game. In the afternoon the Cambridge City Band gave a fine program of music for two hours or more, and the athletic sports were run off under the direction of Mr. William Macpherson of the Y. M. C. A. In addition to the sports there were the usual attractions of the old-fashioned Fourth of July, including Punch and Judy, a excellent African dodger, the Hou, that Jack Built and Hoop La, as well as booths for the sale of ice cream and soft drinks, which did a rushing business. In the evening the band gave another fine program which was not fully appreciated on account of the display of fireworks. This was the crowning event of the day and gave great satisfaction to every one, for the fireworks were undoubtedly the best ever given in this part of the city. There were seven set pieces and plenty of bombs, meteors, rockets, serpents and mines, and the last set piece, in which the name of the Newton Business Men's Association was displayed between columns of victory, was greeted with cheers. Police Officer M. J. Keating, while attempting to quell a disturbance on Hovey street early in the morning, was struck twice in the face, but arrested his assailant later, James McHale. In court Saturday morning McHale was given three months in the House of Correction for this offence. Box 117 which was rung in about nine o'clock in the evening was for a small blaze on the roof of the house owned by John Flood, corner of Washington and Clark streets. (Continued on Page 8)

DANGERS TO BLONDES

PERFECT PREY FOR BURNING RAYS OF THE SUN.

Serious Complications in the Skin Are Set Up by Foolish Exposure—Some Precautions for the Fair One.

The brunette is more or less protected from the violence of the sun's rays by the very color of her skin and hair. The darker she is naturally the greater her protection, and the less care she needs take. But just the reverse is the case with the blonde. The fairer she is the more perfect prey is she for the burning rays of the sun, and the more dangerous is it for her to go about bareheaded, as so many of the girls do at the seaside and in the mountains.

If you are of light complexion and have ever been so foolish as to expose yourself in a bathing suit to the sun-rays on the beach for hours at a time, as some do, you will remember with considerable distinctness how you suffered from the blistering of your skin. You did not know, perhaps, that very serious complications in the skin were set up in this way, and that nature has all it can do to throw off the poisons generated by your foolish exposure.

The protection of your eyes by the shade cast by the hat-brim is no less important, for the glare of the strong sunlight, especially at the seashore, where the sun-rays are reflected powerfully from sand and water, is most trying upon the eyes and through the eyes upon the entire system.

The point of all this discussion is that there was never a more stupid, unphysiological and foolish fashion than that of going bareheaded in summer, especially for blondes, and as most of us are more blonde than brunette, it applies to a large majority of men and women living in our latitude. If you would be well and really enjoy your summer to the full be sensible enough to wear your hat, and if you want to be very sure add tinted glasses to protect your eyes from the glare.

NEW STYLES OF BRASSIERES

Coming of Warm Weather Has Brought Out Many Clever and Dainty Designs.

With the coming of warm weather many new styles of brassieres have been put on sale. The heavier linen brassieres, some of them edged with Irish picot and with inset motifs of Irish lace for decoration, have given place to flimsy, light brassieres of lace and net and ribbon. These thin brassieres have much of the strength of the heavier kinds and are as carefully fitted and made.

One of the dainty new brassieres is made of decollete wear, cut with a low V back and front. It laces in back and hooks in front, and so can be nicely adjusted. It is made of fine embroidery and lace, and lace straps hold it in place over the shoulder. It is really almost as dainty in appearance as an underbodice of chiffon, and of course it is far more durable, much more easily cleaned—for it can be put in the washbowl without suffering for it—and suitable for a woman much too stout to wear one of the chiffon bodices.

Some of the daintiest brassieres are made of heavy chunly lace mounted on net. They are but slightly boned, yet boned enough to keep their shape. They are a really beautiful foundation for a net or chiffon bodice, and they are as durable as the plainer brassieres of heavy linen.

SUMMER FOOTWEAR

One likes to have cool white foot wear to slip into after a day's sight-seeing, and the easiest sort is the pump or slipper. Buttoned strap slippers of white buckskin are pictured, together with smart yet sensible walking oxfords or patent and comfortable buttoned boot of patent leather with top of diagonal cloth.

Shrink Lace Before Using. It is much safer when sewing lace to thin fabrics to have the lace washed and shrunk before putting it on. There will be no danger then of puckering when the garments are washed.

To Take Off Shiny Appearance. Sponging with a cloth dipped in borax water and then pressing carefully on the wrong side will take away much of that shiny look from coats and skirts.

FROCKS FOR SUMMER

CLEVER SHOPPER CAN FIND GOOD BARGAINS NOW.

Reception Dress of Crepe de Chine Combined With Chantilly Lace Makes Charming Costume—Smart Designs in Cotton.

The woman who has been slow about securing her summer outfit has a tempting array of bargains to choose from now, and the clever shopper may find in the tumbling prices compensation for loss of the choice novelties. The most exquisite of the season's laces, embroideries and other trimmings were picked up early in the season and the same is true of dress material, hats, robe patterns, but there are enough lovely things left to satisfy even a fastidious woman and many of these lovely things are being offered at prices far below those asked two months ago.

The coat and skirt street costumes, usually the earliest items of the spring wardrobe are conspicuous among the sale bargains. One may be still in need of fluffy summer frocks and willing to pay good prices for them; but save in exceptional cases, the woman who is willing to pay well for her frothing frocks was long ago supplied with all such costumes needed for the season.

Attractive Afternoon Gowns. If the street frocks left upon the importer's hands are to be sold now they must be sold by virtue of striking reductions in price, and values really remarkable may be found by the shopper who is willing to make the rounds.

The same house showed attractive evening and afternoon wraps, reception and visiting gowns and lingerie gowns and blouses all marked at a figure far below the original price.

There was a stylish reception dress of crepe de chine combined with chantilly lace. The lace formed the overbodice with peplum at back and bottom of the skirt. There was also a charming little afternoon frock of green charmeuse trimmed with chiffon embroidered with jet beads.

Smart Designs in Cotton Materials.

At another shop there were bargains to be had in two good looking but more simple frocks of cotton materials. One was a crepe in a delicate shade of pink. It was trimmed with border bands of the material finely tucked. The skirt front was cut away at the bottom in pointed shape showing an underskirt of pale cream batiste and lace. The V at the neck was also filled in with batiste and lace. The sailor collar was hand embroidered. A narrow black and white patent leather belt completed this dainty costume. The other frock was of plain white sponge and basket weave. The jacket and lower part of the skirt were of the coarse basket weave material edged with heavily embroidered scallops. There were also scallop edged revers hand embroidered. The girdle was of a deep bluish purple silk.

Crepe de Chine and Chantilly Lace

MARY DEAN.

When Motoring. Among automobile luxuries this season are delightful little air cushions which are self-inflating. One needs only to unfold them from their small leather cases, which are in any color, and draw out the steen rubber lined bag full length, when, by means of a small patent arrangement, made of nickel, which looks like a lock, the cushion calmly blows itself up. When one desires to flatten it the process is also self-acting and instantaneous. These cushions are to be had in two sizes, and both fold down to the compactness of a legal envelope.

G. A. R. VETERAN DEAD

Joseph O. Perkins, commander of Charles Ward Post 62, G. A. R., of Newtonville, died early yesterday morning at his residence, 367 Central street, Auburndale. Death was due to heart disease, and he had not been enjoying good health for about a year.

Commander Perkins was born in Dorchester in Nov. 1845. When a young man he went to Lowell and he remained there many years of his life. He went to the war from Lowell.

Perkins settled in Lowell after he was mustered out of the army. He was a charter member of Post 185, G. A. R., of Lowell, and of the Highland Congregational Church of that city. He retained his membership in the church up to the time of his death.

He was well known in Lowell, as he was in Providence, where he lived for some time previous to coming to Auburndale. Mr. Perkins had lived in Auburndale five years.

He is survived by his wife, three sons, two daughters and six grandchildren.

Of his sons, John B. Perkins and Percy I. Perkins are connected with a power equipment company in Milk street, Boston. Joseph E. Perkins, another son, lives in Passaic, N. J. One of his daughters resides in Providence and the other in Concord, N. H.

POLICE NOTES

In the Police Court Wednesday Antonio Petranich of 238 Saratoga street, East Boston, was arraigned before Judge Kennedy on two counts of soliciting orders for intoxicating liquors.

On the charge of soliciting on July 5 he was found guilty and fined $50, and on the charge of soliciting on June 25 his case was continued until June 5, he being in the meantime under the care of the probation officer.

Liquor officer Richard J. Good was the complainant, having spent several months on the trail of the offender. After court adjourned inspector Goodhue of the Quincy police arrived with a warrant for Petranich and took him back to Quincy, charged with a similar offense.

Lot 25, Hotin of Adams street was fined $25 for assaulting Patrolman James A. Mills and $5 for drunkenness in court Monday. When Patrolman Mills attempted to place the man under arrest, he started a rough house with the officer, and before he was safely landed in the station house had bitten Patrolman Mills on the shoulder and hand.

Longevity Not Proved.

A collector of records of centenarians reports that the recent death of an Italian peasant woman at the age of 188. He mentions two other centenarians who have exceeded the age of the noted Tom Parr, who died at 152; one of these, Thomas Cam, is credited with 207 years, and the other, William Edwards, with 168 years. All these cases of extreme longevity are to be marked with an interrogation point, for parish registers are sometimes altered and tombstones tampered with.

Fire in Bank of England.

The first fire within memory occurred at the Bank of England, London, a few days ago. The fire broke out in the southeastern portion of the building. The flooring and joists were considered damaged. The outbreak was discovered by the Bank of England authorities, and subdued by their own appliances in 30 minutes. A lieutenant and a dozen men of the Irish Guards on duty at the bank, with fixed bayonets, assisted the police in keeping the crowd back from the building.

Map in the Nursery.

I have discovered that a large map of the United States hanging in the nursery, or where the children can see it, is a great educator. A map of your own state also, showing counties, townships, capitals, etc., will also help all the family to know more practical geography than may be studied in books. It is a good idea to consult both maps frequently with the children, to look up any strange towns read about in the paper. It teaches them to know their own country, state, city, etc.—Harper's Bazar.

Uncomfortable C.

Some years ago, says Brander Matthews in the Century Magazine, a friend of Oliver Herford was going to Europe on the Celtic, and the evening before his departure Mr. Herford called him up on the telephone to say good-by. He asked what ship his friend was going on, and some imp of the perverse prompted the friend to answer that he was sailing on the Celtic. Mr. Herford promptly responded, "Don't say that, or you will have a hard C all the way over!"

FUNERAL DIRECTORS

All the Newtons 296 Walnut St., Newtonville

CORRESPONDENCE.

The following letter from Representative Samuel L. Taylor of Westford, on the New Railroad law is printed as showing one point of view on this important matter.

Editor, Newton Graphic:—

Dear Sir:—

Recently I received a copy of the above paper containing a communication from George H. Ellis, the House Chairman of the Committee on Railroads, on "The New Railroad Law." As one of the 13 who voted against "Engrossment" and one of the 53 who voted to sustain the Governor's veto, I feel like scattering a few thoughts—so scattering that they will not be liable to make a "hit." First, then, a few words in regard to the attitude of Representative Ellis. For three years he has been trying to serve the public in the House, and I venture to say that not a member of the House can be found during these three years who for a moment would think of connecting him with any "deal," railroad or "Ellis Milk" bill. As a new member of the House, I only knew him at first, by those who had served with him previously, and the universal testimony was: "Mr. Ellis is above anything like a 'trade.' My own acquaintance with him in the House confirmed that testimony, but angels sometimes get taken in unawares, and men of the best judgment miss their calculations as to 'future' and the remedy to apply, and with all honest judgment and to serve the public, Mr. Ellis launched the so-called "Washburn" bill. (misnamed, he says). Let the title stand, George—time will prove that there is no honor in it for even the humblest member who voted for it. Now what is the railroad situation at the present time? In the debate in the House it was admitted by the friends of the bill the management of the Hartford and New Haven had bought railroad and hotel property and paid more than $50,000,000 more than its actual value, and the "Washburn" bill is the key to open the savings banks of Massachusetts and let just such wasteful management help itself liberally to more money to continue more wasteful management. It was further said in the debate that unless this or something like it was speedily done the Boston & Maine would be liable to go into the hands of a "receiver," stock in the Boston & Maine having dropped from 175 down into the fifties. It is proposed to make it look prosperous by unlocking the savings banks to the extent of twice its capital stock. I own a farm assessed for $2500. Will the savings banks open their doors and let me put my hand in and take out $5000? No, not even where there is good business management; but the railroads, right up into the jaws of a receivership, are to be allowed to do that trick.

Between the cry of a receivership and buying railroads and hotels and paying millions more than they are worth, where is the savings bank depositor that would voluntarily withdraw their money from the bank, and turn it over to the railroad management and say: "Here, Mr. Railroad, is my hard earned money. I know that you are headed towards that bourne from whence no financial traveler ever returns with enough to pay his debts; but take it, and go out and squander it on railroads and hotels." Any depositor who would do that act would do the "gold brick" act—they would take stock in an ocean steamer that was going beneath the billows for "nails." Now, then, if it is foolish for the individual to invest, is it any wiser for the "Washburn" bill to allow the trustees of these funds to invest said money for the individual depositor? If it is, will some one please rise up and explain where the wisdom comes in?

At the present time the railroads are badly crippled by interstate regulation nonsense. Of the "Thou shalt and shalt not" type of meddling, as to rates and freight, that ought to be left largely flexible to ripen and fall with the ebb and flow of changed conditions. While the labor that runs the train is not even tethered or restrained to the law of supply and demand; or, to state it a little differently, capital is crippled by interstate handcuffs, ball and chain. Labor is at liberty to fix its own rates and at the time of writing the trainmen on the Hartford and New Haven have voted more pay and less hours, or a strike—take your choice. Mr. Capital—either horn of the dilemma will do very much towards preventing declaring a dividend. As long as capital and labor are so unequally and unjustly yoked no vote of mine could be given to open the savings banks to increase the indebtedness of the railroads; not only in view of the fact of the method of railroading by the law of restraint and labor unrestrained, but with the recent receivership gobbling up of several prominent railroads in the West, the New York Central selling below par, the Boston & Maine passing its dividends, an event which has not happened for 73 years, autos and electric cars cutting into the passenger traffic, and auto trucks grabbing the freight, and millions for roads and hotels that were not paying running expenses when bought. Under these financial conditions and prospects could I be induced by any benefits in the Washburn bill other than in sections 15 and 16 to vote the savings banks the right to man the rigging. No, not yet, ladies and gentlemen, not until capital and labor are scheduled to do an equitable adjustment, and management is scheduled above the business career of the prodigal son.

We are over railroaded at the present time and freight and passenger traffic are being split into fragments; 30 electric railroads pay no dividend. The "Washburn" bill cannot remedy "over conveyance," and what the railroads need is "hands off," not more mandatory powers, but less. I have no use for a single section, part of a section, line, punctuation mark or fly speck in the whole "Washburn" bill. In so far as we have conservatively and safely guarded the investments of the savings banks in the past, and now, by the "Washburn" bill have flopped to the other extreme, with unrestrained wide open doors, it can be said of us, as was said of old: "Ye do strain at a gnat and swallow a camel." I voted against the bill because I didn't want to swallow a camel, not having eaten 50 cents worth of meat for the last 6 months, other than milk that contained more than 500,000 bacteria to the cubic centimeter.

I reiterate what I said at the "Mock Session": The bill is not true to facts in naming it the "Washburn" bill—it should be called the "Watermelon" bill.

HER LITTLE STUDIO

She Assumed "Hifaluting" Ways, But Was Only Just a Woman After All.

By M. A. TAFT.

"Woman's place is the home," he quoted at her in severe tones.

"That is the reason I refuse to leave my comfortable little flat and my nice little studio to follow a homeless army officer all over the world," she laughed back at him.

They were in the "nice little studio." The girl in her dark blue sculptor's apron, vivid and alert, her eyes brilliant beneath the thick, dark brown lashes was dabbling in clay. The man, a young army captain, home on a furlough, sat astride a chair, his arms over the back and his expression was gloomy as he watched her.

"It is all tommyrot, Edith," he said. "You ought to marry me for your own sake. It's your duty to your art to fall in love. Oh, I've read all the rubbish they write about it. You will never be able to 'express yourself' until you have 'known love.' Doesn't that sound well?"

"Aren't you ashamed of yourself, Dick?" the girl interrupted him indignantly, the warm color flooding her cheeks. "I don't know what you are talking about and you don't either."

"Oh, yes I do," he said. "I know about these artist people who have a great gift for the world. And it is very hard on the world or that part of it that cares for them. A woman particularly thinks she has to sacrifice everything to her 'art.' Look at that little Cupid you have made. He's a nice little chap I'll admit and you look at him with the rapturous eyes of a mother on her first born, but what is a piece of stone to a nice little flesh and blood—"

"Dick!" she interrupted with flashing eyes, "if you say another word like that I'll not stay here another minute."

He drummed sulkily on the back of the chair and remained silent.

As the silence lengthened the girl grew more cheerful. She looked at him surreptitiously out of the corner of her eye and a smile curled her lips.

"Besides, I've made a vow," she said finally.

"A vow!" he said desperately. He knew that having made a real resolve she had strength of mind enough to keep it.

"You will never marry?"

"Something like that," she answered and this time her whole face which she turned from him dimpled with smiles.

"Well, you'll be sorry for it," he returned, "for you know you are desperately in love with me."

"I have a very warm feeling for you, Dick," she said demurely. "I am as fond of you, almost, as if you were my brother."

Her dignified attitude as she said this, bending over the clay, belied a laugh which nearly degenerated into a giggle.

The man on the chair gave a grunt of disgust.

"It is for that very reason," she went on wearily, "that I should never think of marrying you. We artists are all—I heard a woman writer say it the other day—we are all cranks. It is impossible to get along with us. We must be alone, or our nerves get ragged edges."

"You are too blamed healthy to try that dodge about nerves, Edith," he interrupted rudely, in a very bad temper. "You couldn't bring a nerve to the surface to save your life—unless perhaps some one should do something to that beastly little marble chap over there and then perhaps your motherly instincts gone astray might rebel."

She continued, amiably, paying no attention to him.

"You may find us very sweet and lovely when you see us for a short time—"

"I don't find you at all sweet and lovely," he said crossly.

"But it would be impossible to spend a lifetime with us," she finished serenely.

"I'd risk it," he said shortly.

The girl sat down in a chair and laughed.

"Then I suppose you intend to marry the man to whom they were given."

"He must be found; they must be taken from him and returned to me." "What do your old beads look like?" He was still in a very bad temper.

"They are mahogany color, a peculiar shade and look old." "Do you know where the woman lives who sent them off?" She hesitated and flushed slightly.

"In Chicago, I believe." He started, but went on gruffly as he rose to leave.

"You will probably marry the man who received the red jade cuff links. He will undoubtedly be a married man with a large family of children. You will have him divorce the family to marry you and you will spend the rest of your life helping him pay alimony. That's the hifaluting way of the artistic temperament."

He went out still sulky and the girl, embracing herself with her two arms rocked back and forth and laughed softly at something that apparently pleased her.

It was the next evening that the army man sought the young sculptress. She was sitting before an open fire whose light brought out red tones in her eyes and hair, the same mahogany shade of the soft clinging gown she wore and the red jade necklace which accentuated the whiteness of her uncovered neck.

The moods of the two had changed. The young man was jubilant and "ears were very near the surface in the eyes of the girl. She rose as he came in and with no introductory words he burst out boyishly:

"What do you think of me for the red jade man? How are these cuff links?" He drew down his cuffs that she might see the two little mahogany-colored balls in each.

She scarcely looked as she answered colorlessly:

"Very pretty, but why do you wear them with evening dress?"

"The better to hug you, my dear," he cried as he clasped her in his arms.

She yielded gently, laid her head as if it were tired, on his shoulder, and for the first time he noticed her sadness and that there were tears in her eyes.

"What is it, darling?" he whispered.

"Dick," she said, "the academy has refused my little Cupid. I'm only just a woman after all."

"You always were, sweetheart, and a genius, too, and the academy doesn't know what it is talking about. We'll be married and go right off and then I guess they'll be sorry. You will marry me, won't you?"

"Yes, you know I always loved you, Dick," she whispered.

"Did you know I had the jade cuff links," he asked in the same soft tone.

She nodded and dimpled and blushed, hiding her face. "I met that Chicago woman," she said.

"You fraud! You darling!" he cried, and he kissed her.

There was a mistake. The academy had accepted the Cupid, but they say that the best way of the rising young sculptress, wife of an army officer, is a model of a baby a few days old.

It is the same young artist who engaged in living happy ever after, though married and a genius.

Is Golf a Piddling Game?

If it ever takes place, one of the country clubs adjacent to Philadelphia will be the scene of a novel contest which has been talked about. A man, who knows baseball, but never played golf, was talking to a professional golfer and remarked that the latter's pet game was at best only a piddling sort of affair.

"Well," said the golfer, "I'll wager you that I can play around this 18-hole course in fewer strokes than you can throw the ball, and you needn't bother to put it in the cups, but throw as far as you can every time."

Instantly the bet was made, and then the baseball enthusiast began to figure. The golfer could do the course in seventy-two strokes. To equal that the other would have to make seventy-two throws of an average length of two hundred and fifty feet, the course being six thousand yards. For an ordinary man this would be an impossible task. To throw a golf ball two hundred and fifty feet once might be done, but it would require an arm like Chief Bender's to do it seventy-two times in succession.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Growing Sponges From Seed.

Successful experiments in sponge culture have been carried on off the coast of Florida for some years. The plan most commonly adopted is as follows: "Seed" sponges are cut into small pieces and, after having been attached by wiring or splints to circular or triangular cement blocks, are dropped or lowered (depending upon the depth) to rest on the ocean bottom, where they remain for a year or two, until they reach a size proper for commercial purposes. They are then taken by the hook, when new cuttings are attached, and the cement blocks are let down again. Another method was to string them on a wire held horizontal stakes driven in the bottom. In doing this, however, difficulties arose. The sponges became loose and rotated on the wire, enlarging the hole made through them, and the action of the salt water corroded and destroyed the wires, until, after many trials and experiments, a lead wire with a copper core was successfully used.

AN INTERESTING EXPERIENCE

Mr. Martin C. Laffie, of Carleton street, Newton, probation officer at the Newton Police Court, returned on Wednesday from Gettysburg, Pa., where he had attended the semi-centennial of the great battle of the Civil War. Mr. Laffie was a member of the famous regiment known as Berdani's sharpshooters and served through the entire war. While at Gettysburg, Mr. Laffie met many of the Confederate army, whom he had faced in battle and they recalled many interesting incidents. Perhaps one of the most interesting was a story told by Mr. B. M. Powell, of Sumter, S. C., a member of the 12th S. C. Volunteers, who told of an incident at Fredericksburg, where a prominent Confederate officer was killed and when removed from the field, Mr. Powell, who was himself a sharpshooter, was ordered to fire at the Union men, quartered in a church steeple, who had shot this officer. While Mr. Powell was telling this story, Mr. Laffie recalled that he was the sergeant in charge of five men, who had gone into that steeple and he had ordered his men to attempt to reach the Confederate officer, who was some distance away. He remembered distinctly the shots fired by Mr. Powell and said that immediately after a solid shot struck the steeple and in time, for a shell burst inside the tower within a very few minutes. Mr. Laffie also met another Confederate sharpshooter, Mr. P. A. McDavid of Guenerville, S. C., and challenged both McDavid and Powell to try their skill at a target, but was unable to induce them to meet him in that fashion. Mr. Powell, who claims to have shot General Sedgewick at Spotsylvania, at a distance of 1700 yards, using an English rifle with telescopic sight.

Mr. Laffie states that something over 55,000 men were quartered at Gettysburg last week, the tents in which they slept covering acres of ground. Each tent held nine cots, and were arranged in sections and streets. At the head of each street was a cook tent, and where the veterans present obtained their rations, using their own knife, fork, and plate. The arrangements were most satisfactory and Mr. Laffie was one of the last to leave the grounds.

CITY PLANNING

The following article reprinted from a recent issue of the Boston Chamber of Commerce News, was written by Mr. Herbert J. Kellaway of Newton Centre, a member of the Chamber Committee on City Planning.

The fall of an apple in the garden of Sir Isaac Newton suggested the most magnificent discovery, the law of universal gravitation.

The new act establishing local planning boards in cities and towns of over 100,000 inhabitants is the apple that has fallen and should lead to the discovery of a universal law of planning and providing for the needs of the people. The act especially calls for the "careful studies of the resources, possibilities and needs of the city or town, particularly with respect to the conditions which may be injurious to the public health or otherwise injurious in and about rented dwellings, and to make plans for the development of the municipality with special reference to the proper housing of its people."

This is the beginning at the right end of city and town planning. What are the needs of the individuals that compose the city or town? The phrase, "Life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness" is the one that we hear most, as the ultimate goal for our citizens. The complex life of today is such that we cannot live to ourselves. We must come in contact with our neighbors and unless the inequalities of living conditions are remedied all must bear a part of the outbreak that occurs whether of disease or individual unrest.

A great change has come over the industrial life of New England in the last 50 years. The industries have grown from small and individual efforts to large factories. For instance the shoe business of New England and especially of Massachusetts was founded and carried on by means of small shops on their farms. On the farm they raised the necessities of life and in the shop in the off seasons, the shoes made brought ready cash. But men soon found that by united effort and the use of machinery the product could be increased and the output made continuous, with the result that we have the large factories of today.

The advance in the manufacturing plant has not been followed by an appropriate advance in the housing of the workers. Instead of the farm and garden of the former days we have the tenement and the three flaters. Men are renters, often here today and away tomorrow; no permanent home. How can one expect otherwise with such surroundings that there is not room enough even to dry the clothing without going onto the roof of the building.

One writer observed that "Give a man the secure possession of a bleak rock and he will turn it into a garden, give him a nine years' lease of a garden and he will convert it into a desert." Plant the worker's feet upon his own soil and you will have an interest that the varying shifts of agitation will never move.

Hitherto city planning has been criticized because it concerned itself with academic propositions; civic centers, magnificent waterfronts, boulevards, and methods of paying for street improvements. Some have said that the sum of city planning was making red lines of dream schemes with a ruler on a map.

The apple has fallen; now the whole State must and will study the needs of city and town planning. First diagnose the case and then prescribe the remedy of wise planning. First consider the individual needs, then the collective needs. With this as a skeleton to work upon, beauty and art can be made to clothe the structure at probably the same cost as of the garish and unsightly.

The waste and unavailable lands will be taken for parks and playgrounds; the water courses cleaned and publicly controlled against pollution; sites for factories and industrial establishments reserved at logical points contiguous to the lines of transportation; the sites for the public and semi-public buildings placed conveniently to the homes of the people that use them; the public offices and administration buildings grouped conveniently to the owners, the people; and the great public utilities so arranged and controlled that the people are served at the least expense and that each inhabitant shall have a home, however small, with room enough to breathe and to raise some of the vegetables the pioneer shoe-maker thrived upon.

But all this takes money, it is said. Yes, and so does the present method of building and crowding, increasing taxes and expense by reason of congestion, while open lands near at hand are kept as farm land at low valuations. Why not distribute and equalize the burden so that the unearned increment may bear its proper share in the development? There is land enough for every one now and for more to come. Our towns should be called "Home Towns" and our cities "Garden Cities." The act does not call for the study to be of gilded propositions, so often named garden cities with the idea that a certain income must be secured upon a very high cost of development, but rather a low rate of income upon a moderate type of development.

It will take the brightest minds in all the professions to secure the results desired; the architect with all his ingenuity and artistic ability to secure the most beautiful home at a very small cost; the landscape architect to study the ground in making the general plan that the resulting work will be at a minimum cost, the natural beauty pictures of satisfaction to the home lovers; the lawyer, with his training for equity and justice for all, in the new laws for development and taxation; the civil engineer, with his technical skill in supplying the needs of the public utilities; the financier to provide ways and means for handling the undertaking; the labor men with their insight into the needs of the workers; and finally the interest and co-operation of every citizen whether public official or private individual.

The apple has fallen. What does it mean for Massachusetts and New England?

First, it will mean the stability of her industries by having contented home loving workers.

Second, it will be the means of creating a clear-headed healthy class of workers that come each morning from homes plentifully supplied with fresh air and sunlight.

Third, it will mean the increase of revenues, resulting from the efficient help and high class of product.

Fourth, it will mean that industrial upheavals will be less frequent with a home-loving people.

Fifth, the need for the industrial upheaval will be less apparent because the inequalities of living will be minimized.

Sixth, the bringing of the world to recognize that New England makes the best goods, has the most skilled workers and that they are the best paid and housed.

SUPERVISED PLAY

Program For Second Summer Season Announced

The playgrounds of Newton were thrown open last Monday, and the large gathering of children who were on hand gave every promise that the second year of supervised play will be highly successful. In all nine playgrounds were opened by Superintendent Ernst Hermann, and the season will come to a close on August 29, with an exhibition of the season's work by the children.

The playgrounds will be open every day except Saturdays and Sundays during the season from 9 to 11:30 in the mornings and from 2 to 5 in the afternoon. The following activities will be carried on: Sand box play and sand modeling, building-blocks, rope quoits and bean bag games, story telling and dramatics, singing of folk-songs, folk dancing, all kinds of old and new ring games and also new and old team races.

A fine list of special games have been arranged consisting of touch ball, dodge ball, drive ball, first ball, tennis, tether ball, iron quoits, African dodger, hoop rolling, war games, basketball, captain ball, volley ball and field hockey for girls. Besides the more strenuous games, the children may spend their time playing checkers, dominoes, puzzles, paper cutting, crocheting, raffia work, and furnishing and constructing doll houses.

As a large number of children in the Newton Centre section have become followers of archery, it has been decided to adopt that game on the range at Newton Centre. A baseball league for seniors, juniors and midget division and one division for girls has been formed, and the games from the various playgrounds will play 30 games during the summer.

Another new phase of work has been inaugurated this year by Mr. Hermann, that of promoting several hikes by the children, as well as conducting Hare and Hound races and promoting war games. Several clubs, already started among the children, and these will assist materially in passing a pleasant time. Athletics of all forms will be conducted and a staff of assistants, who are well versed along these lines have been engaged for the summer. Athletic badge tests for boys and girls will be held twice a month, and to those who pass these efficiency tests, medals of the National Playground Association will be awarded.

The instructors on the playgrounds are:

West Newton Common (for boys only) Mr. Ralph W. Hyatt, Director. West Newton, Eden Avenue Playground (for girls and little children) Miss Martha T. Rice, Director; Miss Josephine Heffernan, Apprentice. Newton Lower Falls and Auburndale (for boys and girls of Newton Lower Falls and Auburndale) Mr. John F. EDITORIAL

The assessors are hard at work on the problem of raising the necessary funds to run our city government and with the large increases authorized by the present and past city governments and the almost reckless extravagance of our state legislature, our tax rate seems almost certain to make a new record.

From figures which are now available, the tax levy of $1,380,000 of last year will probably be increased by something like $150,000 due to an increase of about $30,000 in the state, county and metropolitan assessments
over which the city has no control, about $80,000 increase in the city budget and about $35,000 decrease in the treasury receipts. The last item is still uncertain, and may be increased or diminished a small amount but is a fair estimate at the present time. On a valuation of something like $80,000,000, which was the figure for 1912, this increase in the levy will require a tax rate of $19.20 or $19.40 or an increase of nearly $2.00 over the present rate of $17.40. While the assessors may find some additions to the valuations of the city, the fact that nearly four millions were added last year, largely due to the death of several wealthy citizens, the estates of which will not be taxable for as much this year, and the fact that the value of stocks and bonds are much lower this year than last, leads to the conclusion that if the assessors can even equal the valuations of 1912 they are doing mighty well. And even if the valuations are increased the normal and average amount of a million and a quarter, the increase will only affect the tax rate something like 15 or 20 cents. It seems likely therefore that Newton is facing a $19.00 tax rate for the first time in its history, and has reached the point where our city government ought to get down to hard cold facts of finance and not allow theorists to burden the present day tax payer with the expense of permanent improvements which will benefit generations to come.

It is not very difficult to foresee that the end toward which the present in-labor difficulties involving the various public service corporations, is tending, is state ownership and governmental control. It is very certain that private capital will not, under present conditions, be invited to the docks and bonds of such corporations. For no one knows where the demands of the employees will stop, if indeed,
their leaders ever intend them to stop.
On the other hand, the service being performed by these corporations must be continued, for transportation and telephones are indispensable in the present day and generation. With lack of private capital, the present methods of handling the business must inevitably be changed, and there can be but one result—governmental control which will mean less efficient service, higher rates and a large increase in the number of government employees and their increasing influence on the elections. The problem demands the best thought of the day and can be solved none too soon.

I print the communication from Representative Taylor of Westford on the new railroad law, with some hos-tation, and feel as if an apology was due to my readers, and yet the opportunity to show the people of Newton
the contrast between Representative Ellis of this city and such men as the Westford district sends to the State House, for instance, is too strong to resist. Ever resident of Newton who will take pains to compare the statement printed in the Graphic three weeks ago from Mr. Ellis with the one printed today, will, I am very sure,
come to the conclusion that Newton is indeed most fortunate in having men like Mr. Ellis represent the city on Beacon Hill.

The Fourth of July was observed in this city in a most satisfactory and highly creditable manner. The former record of unnecessary accidents, injuries and destruction of property was reduced to almost nothing and yet everyone had a far better time than before. All in all, the city can congratulate itself that sanity and reason have taken the place of recklessness and hoodlumism.

The possibility of a high tax rate makes it only more important that a sound business man like Mr. Allison Burr should be the executive head of the city next year. The fact that Mr.
Burr does not seek the office is only an additional reason for insisting that he should take it.

Do not kill the green beetles, as they are a parasite on the gypsy and brown tail moths.

Attention is called to the appeal in another column for materials for outdoor work on the playgrounds.

GETTYSBURG IN 1914

I also remember it in 1863. Altho not then under arms, yet I visited it a few days after its terrible and bloody baptism. It was then a small country town, nestled among the commanding hills that surround it, and was the seat of the Lutheran College and a delightfully intelligent people drawn hither by its excellent educational privileges. From this fact, Seminary Ridge, where the first day's fighting occurred, and where General Reynolds was picked off by a rebel sharpshooter, received its name. Immediately after the battle the whole region was under government control
as well as the railroads, so that visitors, unless burdened with solicitude for killed or wounded friends, had great difficulty in entering the town.
By stealth, when government guards were off duty, I boarded freight trains coming and going from Harrisburg and succeeded. Its hotels were entirely insufficient for the multitudes attracted there, so that the south side of a dirty board floor, with my head under the dining table, was my only resting place at night. Its homes outside of the farms were largely centered in and about the county court house, and hotels. Its inhabitants there were a simple, refined people and were unprepared for such a stupendous invasion, and many who lived there then, are alive, and of course they interesting experiences to narrate. The Rebel Army Corps, which by General
Lee's superior strategy, were pushing North, rapidly, without General Hooker's suspicion, altho warned by General Meade, afterwards commanding
the Army of the Potomac, in due time streamed in and about the beautiful plains surrounded by Big and Little Round Tops, Culps Hill, Seminary Hill and Cemetery Hills and of course took possession of everything in sight, and were having a fine time foraging for the first time on Northern soil, teaming with plenty. Their officers were loaded down with gold and greenbacks, so a rebel officer informed me, ready to pay for everything. In passing through York, Pa., on their way up, they demanded and obtained, so I was informed, $300,000, so that they were flush with the wherewithal. But instead of reaching Harrisburg, the capital, according to Lee's plans, they found it necessary to prepare for battle here, as General Meade's army was right on their heels, and to hills they repaired and threw up their defenses.
Cemetery Hill, which was the pivotal eminence and the apex of the triangular arrangement of the Union forces making the rebel position almost impossible, was immediately seized and fortified by General Hancock's superior foresight, who by many is considered one of the master minds in that great battle.

It is not my intention to write history, but only to relate the stories told by civil survivors. Upon the entrance of both armies in the streets, orders were promulgated by both sides, for the inhabitants to retire to their cellars during the firing and they obeyed.
One old resident with whom I roomed was then a young man, and with his father ran the only hotel in Gettysburg that would entertain the rebel officers, so that they enjoyed throughout the three terrible days, the confidence of those men as well as the Union officers. His curiosity led him to mount the ridgepole of their home to get some idea of what was going on in the country about. While there he was ordered down or the sharpshooters of both sides would pick him off as a spy.

The only civilian killed in the entire battle was a woman, Jenny Wade, who was struck by a fatal bullet that pierced two heavy doors, and entering her body, came out near her mouth, killing her instantly, while about her culinary duties with all the rest of the family in the cellar. Her body was found there and while the battle raged buried in her garden, and at the first opportunity placed in a casket, sent for a rebel officer and buried in the cemetery nearby.

The town of Gettysburg today is beautiful for situation. From its high hills the views are simply ravishing in rural verdure and splendor, and the whole country forms one magnificent government park crowned everywhere with beautiful and costly memorials of the great struggle in arms for the supremacy of national power over the divisive theory of state rights. Of necessity a location where waged for three days in 1863, one of the greatest battles ever fought in this world's history, where upward of 100,000 brave American soldiers on each side contested over every inch of the soil, with bloody ferocity and with losses of several thousand killed on each side and as many more placed hors-de-combat by serious wounds must of course be sacred ground and will ever remain the mecca for countless ages of all true Americans.

As I saw it in 1863, stone walls were demolished, with every foot of the soil bounded by them, stripped and denuded of every living vestige of vegetable life by the martial tread of the heroes of both sides. In a field of perhaps 3 acres I counted unburied 19 horses killed in battle with stench insuffer-able, and everywhere scattered in profusion the wreckage of war and its terrible desolation. In fact the killed were so insufficiently buried, and the weather so oppressive, that the government forbade the further digging and unburying of the dead, on account of the stench until frost came.

The immense barns of the neighboring farms were huge hospitals, where lay the brave boys who fell during the battle. It seemed like one huge desolate spot where hospital service was the only one in demand.

But how difficult it is to forget the past while the glories of a fiftieth anniversary were being recognized and celebrated. As the thoughtful old soldiers and civilians rambled over these spots so fraught with pregnant history, they cannot but dream dreams as they let memory have sway. They can almost see the hosts of General Pickett and Longstreet as they break away from the sheltering forests, each intent with consummate bravery and enthusiasm to obey the orders of General Lee, marching up those steep inclines, into the very mouths of artillery and musketry hell fire, four and five deep, pushing on while the forward rank falls in platoons, never again to war. Such bravery alone is possible to American soldiers and as one rebel officer exclaimed enthused

by the patriotic joy of the hour, "Yes, we can lick the whole world!" How do you make that out, Johnny? ask the Union soldier? "Why, didn't you lick us, and of course both of us North and South united, can lick the world." It seems like a dream, as you stand on Little Round Top, on the crests of Culps Hill, Cemetery Ridge, High Water Mark eminences and other sacred spots, and try to imagine the conquering and defeated multitudes in deadly warfare departing from this hallowed ground sick and sore of war only to resume it again as the conquerors compel their foes to return back into their own
South Land defeated and footsore.

It is well that the national and state government should pre-empt this vast aerage, and forever hold it as holy ground and there, bury the thirty thousand named, and the as many more unnamed heroes who gave their highest and last efforts with their life's blood to perpetuate the American Union, so desperately assailed by equally brave Americans. Here the other day this very soil was tramped and studied by the fifty thousand survivors who gathered here and there,
and told the stories of those fearful scenes in the days of years ago.

It is intensely fascinating to listen to those personal tales of heroism and sacrifice and there see them clasp each other in friendly embrace. Best of all the thought that the multitudes of Southern soldiers in gray, were even more enthusiastic, if that were possible, than their former enemies in blue, that the great war resulted as it did, for out of Southern wreckage arose a glorious and resplendent South, that would have been impossible as long as American slavery existed and blotted its escutcheon. No
North! No South! No East! No
West! Is the aromatic atmosphere that crowns our nation's destinies and places her far in advance of all others because we have settled forever that righteous postulate that a "Government of the people, by the people, and for the people must live forever, because it is born of God and His eternal purposes.

MRS. TOURTELLOTT DEAD

Mrs. Harriet Gair Tourtellot, wife of Mr. Samuel M. Tourtellot of 38 Braeland avenue, Newton Centre, died at her home on Wednesday of last week in her seventy-fifth year. She had been in declining health for the past year, yet her illness did not take any serious form until within the past few weeks. Mrs. Tourtellot was born in Boston and was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Gair. She lived there as a girl and young woman, or until her removal with her husband to Newton Centre to live about twenty-five years ago. Here she became deeply interested in the work of the Newton Centre Baptist Church, especially mission activities, and she had taken part in promoting these and helping the cause. She is survived by her husband, also a son, Gair Tourtellot of Chicago, and a daughter, Mrs. W.
Claxton Bray of Newton Centre, formerly Miss Fay Tourtellot.

Funeral services were held from her late home on Saturday morning last, at 10 o'clock, by Rev. M. Levy of the Baptist Church and the interment was in Newton Cemetery.

SPECIAL APPEAL

The Playground Department makes a special appeal to citizens for occupation material. All kinds of left-over materials of the dressmaker's are welcome. Add silks and cottons, spools, woolens, notions, thread, etc., all can be used to great advantage in occupation plays.

The children will be taught to make all kinds of pretty things for their dolls and their doll houses. All such materials should be sent to the office of the Superintendent at the City Hall, West Newton.

Graphophones

In order to stimulate the favorite pastime of girls and little children,
"Folk-dancing," we appeal specially for the loan of graphophones. If some citizens will loan their grapho-phones for the next eight weeks, we will be enabled to add a great feature to the outdoor life of our children.

CITY HALL

The coal bids for the year were awarded this week by Public Commissioner Walter R. Furber. The order comprises about 3200 tons for the entire city. For the supply in Wards 1, 2 and 7, the bid received by A. Brackett was accepted, and C. F. Eddy Company will supply the coal in Wards 3 and 4 and B. S. Hatch in Wards 5 and 6.

At the meeting of the Board of Health Monday afternoon it was decided to reserve all day Wednesday

DON'T KILL THE BEETLES

The State Forester has released something like 5000 Calosoma beetles on the south side of the city during the last three years, covering Newton Centre, Chestnut Hill, Newton Highlands and Waban, the last 1000 being released only last month. The beetle is of good size and a beautiful green in color with a tinge of orange showing on the edge. He is a determined foe of the gypsy and brown tail moths and has been quite a factor in their extermination. Many persons have gone out of their way to kill these beetles in their belief that they are another pest, but this idea is wholly erroneous, as the beetle does not destroy foliage but feeds on moths and grubs. Let the green beetles alone.

Gift for Bridesmaids.

One little bride, with more ingenuity than money, made photograph frames from material like her wedding dress, placed therein her portrait and that of her fiance, then had the whole thing mounted under glass with a small gilt rim of picture frame molding. Her maids were delighted with the gifts.

Baby Bonnets.

41 SUMMER ST. BOSTON

TO KEEP AUTO VEIL CLEAN

Washable Chiffon When Soiled Can Easily Be Cleaned If Care Is Exercised.

Cleaning adds so much to the original cost of any article of apparel that it is often well to pay a little more in the beginning to get something that will stand soap and water.

A washable chiffon veil, therefore, is a real economy. Of course, any sort of chiffon veil can be satisfactorily cleaned in gasoline, but it is rather unpleasant to have anything cleaned in this way come in close contact with the skin of the face.

When a washable chiffon veil is soiled fold it neatly and tuck the folds securely with basting thread. Then wash the veil carefully in soapy water and rinse it in salt water to set the color. Press the folded veil between a couple of heavy bath towels to get the water out, and do not wring it at all.

When as much water has been pressed out as it is possible to get out the bastings and pull them out. Lay one edge of the veil straight on the ironing board and iron it dry with a moderately hot iron. Then iron each of the other sides dry, and then iron the middle of the veil until it, too, is dry. By ironing the edges first the veil can be ironed without stretching or pulling out of shape.

Lay the veil flat on a bed for an hour or two after it is ironed. If it is ironed in this way it will keep its shape and will not wrinkle easily.

BEAUTIFUL GOWN

An elegant summer dress of hand embroidered lingerie with trimmings of shadow lace and light pink sash. Chiffon sleeves. This design is by Drescoll, Paris.

RATINE IS MOST PRACTICAL

Good Substitute for Other Lightweight Materials for the Summer Knockabouts.

Lines wrinkles, crash shrinks; voile is unsuited to any street suits save those for afternoon wear. What is the woman who must wear a street suit for a part of every day of the summer going to do, the woman who goes back and forth to business, perhaps, or who, for some other reason, must spend much time in street cars or trains?

Ratine seems to be a good substitute for other lightweight materials for the summer knockabouts. Its price by the yard is expensive, but it is wide. A good quality selling for $1.50 measures 66 inches, and of this width not more than three and a half or four yards will be needed for a coat and skirt.

Ratine, of course, has not the crispness of linen and crash, but it is moderately cool, and, if made carefully, looks light and summery. It shows creases and wrinkles hardly so much as serge does. The blue, green and other dark shades suitable for street wear do not soil easily and, when they are soiled, can be laundered without starch.

A ratine suit, with shirtwaists of cotton crepe, voile or tub silks, would make an ideal working outfit for the summer woman, an outfit at once durable, suitable, comfortable and in style.

Gift for Bridesmaids.

One little bride, with more ingenuity than money, made photograph frames from material like her wedding dress, placed therein her portrait and that of her fiance, then had the whole thing mounted under glass with a small gilt rim of picture frame molding. Her maids were delighted with the gifts.

Baby Bonnets.

The tiny baby wears a round Dutch bonnet embroidered in soft floss silk with rosebuds or daisies representing the only touch of color in an all-white scheme. Pinnings and cordings are much used on baby bonnets, and the little round hats for boys are decorated with row upon row of cording.

DON'T LET WRINKLES COME

Woman Should Use Preventive Measures to Keep Her Face Smooth and Clear.

I once heard a woman say: "The best way to treat wrinkles is to avoid getting them." This may sound absurd, but it is true. Wrinkles are caused by facial habits.

Laughing, crying, frowning or smiling will not make you wrinkles, unless you do one or the other habitually, then the face becomes "set." To keep the muscles of the face exercised will not give you wrinkles. Scowling and wrinkling the forehead when reading or studying, or when conversing, will, if continued persistently, soon show deep wrinkles in the forehead and about the eyes. You can check your self of these habits and thus avoid acquiring wrinkles.

If the eyes are weak or overstrained, it is easy to fall into the habit of drawing the forehead down in wrinkles about the eyes, thus giving your self a cross look that you probably do not deserve. Pressing gently the nerves around the eyes and stopping now and then to close the eyes, is very restful to them. If your eyes are troublesome, however, better consult an oculist.—Mme. Jeanne La Place, in the Woman's World.

NEW COATS FOR MIDSUMMER

Are Made Much on Same Styles as Earlier Spring Coats Were Fashioned After.

Wraps and coats for midsummer are made much on the same styles as the earlier spring coats have been fashioned after. Many of them are trimmed with fancy collars and cuffs of printed silk and some are trimmed with velvet ribbon and a few have lace collars and cuffs. The most popular colors seem to be black, navy, taupe, gold, Saxe blue and sand. Brocade charmeuses, crepe de chine and other novelty broades are all being made up into wraps suitable for warm weather use.

A few fancy linen coats in white, rose, tan and Saxe blue, in the new three-quarter length in cutaway effect will be worn this summer, and these are sometimes trimmed with cluny or ratine lace, or have embroidered collars and cuffs in Clusier or Balkin designs and colorings. However, the silks seem more popular, probably because they are newer and prettier.

Black Summer Hats.

All black hats are being shown for summer wear, and they are very smart. The shapes are growing gradually in size, and the latest fad is a black tulio fold hanging from the rim of the hat. This is not more than an inch in width, and gives a draped effect to an otherwise strictly tailored hat. Some of these new creations are trimmed with elaborate bows of black silk ribbon which stand straight up at the back. A black tagal sailor hat, of these hanging tulio folds as its only trimming.

A Place for School Books.

Provide a place for your children's school books, and so prevent their being lost and laid about all over the house. In one household I know of shelves were put up in an end part of the hall, each child having its own shelf. A curtain could be hung in front of the shelves to prevent dust from entering.

AT UPPER FALLS

Following the parade, which started along its line of march shortly after 6 o'clock, a baseball game was started on the playground between the married and single men, the former team being captained by Teddie Lees and the latter team by James Gormley. The game ended with the Single Men leading, 6 to 4. The athletic contests were run off during the morning, and as several beautiful and useful prizes were offered for the winners a good field of starters were on hand. In the afternoon, the Upper Falls Athletic Association defeated the Page Class in an exciting game, 2 to 1, the game going 10 innings before the home team sent the winning run over the plate. Estelle pitched a grand game, holding the visitors scoreless for several innings.

MR. DANA DEAD

Mr. William Jay Dana, who died last week Wednesday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Edmund Winchester at Waran, in his seventy-fourth year, was well known in Boston as a wood engraver of the old school, and in his work he had taken high rank. Examples of his handiwork are to be found in the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, where at times there have been exhibits of his work. Mr. Dana was born in Woodstock, Vt., and as a young man came to Boston, where he learned the art of engraving. For many years, or up to the time when wood engraving gave way to more modern processes work, Mr. Dana was prominent in his trade. He was a member of the Boston Art Club and of the Papyrus Club. He married Mary Caroline Smith of Taunton who died about eleven years ago. Mr. Dana is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Edmund Winchester, of Waran, and Mrs. Arthur Corner of Brookline; also a son, George C. Dana, of Brookline.

Simple funeral services were held at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Edmund Winchester on Pine Ridge road on Saturday morning, in charge of Rev. James C. Sharp, rector of the Church of the Good Shepherd and the body was cremated at Mt. Auburn.

NORUMBEGA PARK

The Sunday evening concerts are proving very popular, the management taking particular pains to make this feature interesting. Canoeing on the Charles is the ideal sport for the warm weather and thousands avail themselves of Norumbega's model boat-houses. The Zoological Garden with its baby inmates and other specimens, is always the centre of an admiring throng. The Grape Arbor Cafe, with its veranda concerts, is the place to dine, while the merry-go-round is a magnet which draws the most reluctant to ride on its prancing steeds.

YOUNG MAN DROWNED

William J. Malone, aged 23, of 79 Freeman street, Auburndale, was drowned shortly after 4 o'clock Fourth of July morning while swimming in the Charles River at Sandy Hook, in the north cove between Auburndale and Waltham.

With three companions, Malone was walking along the river bank when one of the quartet suggested a swim. All four undressed and dived into the river. Malone was more daring than the rest, and he swam far out from the shore.

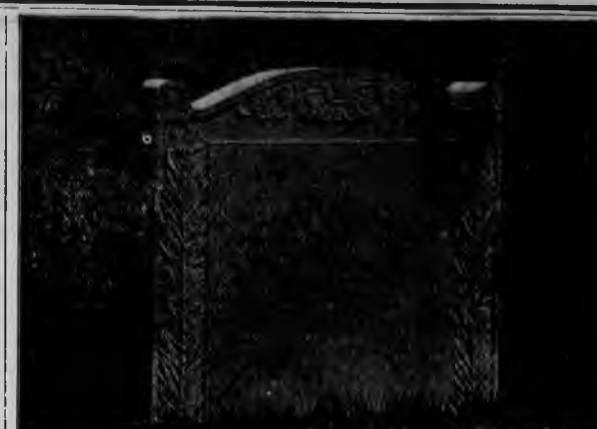

After making a loud outcry for assistance, Malone sank and did not come to the surface again. His companions shouted for help as they hastily swam out to where Malone had gone down. Metropolitan Police Officer George Coombs launched the emergency lifeboat and put out to the spot. After grappling with irons for about 10 minutes, the body was brought to the surface. At the police station where it was taken, two physicians worked for an hour, hoping there was still life in the body. Their efforts were useless, however, for Malone was dead.

The funeral was held Monday morning at St. Bernard's Church, West Newton. A high mass of requiem was celebrated at 9 o'clock by Rev. Francis Cronin.

The pall-bearers were Messrs. Fred Collette, Perley W. Delebarre, Fred Rooney, Thomas M. Hanney, Matthew McBride and Andrew Ward. The burial was in Calvary Cemetery, Waltham.

Death and Burial of Horace Beckford, a Well Known Veteran

Horace Beckford, aged 71, one of the most enthusiastic G. A. R. men in the state died Saturday at his home, 46 Bennington street, Newton, after an illness of three weeks. Mr. Beckford was born in Salem, Dec. 7, 1842, the son of William Beckford. He enlisted in Co. B, 40th Massachusetts Infantry and saw three years of active service, although he was for some little time confined in the Army Hospital with sickness.

MR. JAMES L. RICHARDS,
Who is an Arbitrator in the Elevated Controversy.

He was a member of the Lynn Post, G. A. R. and had always taken a deep interest in the work of that post as well as the Charles Ward Post in Newton. At the time of his death he was secretary and treasurer of the 40th Massachusetts Regiment Association.

He leaves two daughters, with whom he made his home, Miss Bertha M. of Wellesley College and Miss Frances H. Beckford and two sons, William H. and James M., both of Philadelphia.

Mr. Beckford was particularly fond of children and that his love for them was reciprocated, was manifested at his funeral when the children of the neighborhood brought little wreaths made by their own hands to lay on his casket.

Funeral services were held Tuesday morning at 46 Bennington street, Newton. Delegations from Charles Ward Post 62, G. A. R., of this city; Gen. Lander Post 5 of Salem, and from the 40th Massachusetts Regiment Association, attended.

The service was conducted by Rev. Laurens MacLure, rector of the Grace Church. The remains were removed to the Beverly Cemetery on a special street car, and Commander William Conway and the other officers of Gen. Lander Post conducted the G. A. R. service at the grave. The committal service was conducted by Dr. MacLure.

Many beautiful floral remembrances were received from the many patriotic bodies, with which he was affiliated. Mr. Beckford made his last public appearance at the Memorial Day exercises at the Bigelow School, Newton, where he told of his experiences during the Civil War. Mr. Beckford had made arrangements to go to Gettysburg with his company, but a few days before the reunion began he became ill.

The bearers were John Russell and Fred Bliss of Salem, who were tentmates of Mr. Beckford in the Civil War; Alfred Sanborn of Salem, Moses A. Libbey, Capt. John Ryan, J. C. Partridge, SVC, of Charles Ward Post, and

OUR DESERTED VILLAGE

Clever Parody Written By Mr. Abbot Bassett

Sweet Newton, loveliest city of the State,
Where every dweller thanks his lucky fate.
Regarding others with a lofty pity,
Who dwell not in the so-called Garden City;
Where coming Spring its earliest visit pays,
And parting Summer its farewell delays;
Where joy the portion was of one and all,
Ere thy fair form was wrapped in funeral pall,
Alas, Sweet Newton! all thy glories fled,
Thy damsels, bewitching and high bred;
Thy young men, skilled with racquet and with ball,
Who erstwhile trod with grace the dancing hall;
Thy matron, staidly, shrewd, alert and ready,
Apt at resource to keep her daughter steady;
Thy children, freed from school, whose singing laughter,
Would permeate the house from sill to rafters;
Thy teachers, stately monarchs of the school,
Adept at logic and the triple rule,
Who labor hard to train the infant mind,
And make it grow as by their skill inclined,
Who work for honor only, thinking not of pay,
Until a larger stipend beckons them away.
Near yonder corner stands the church whose spire,
Proud points the way for Christians to aspire,
Whose walls the clinging ivy doth enclose,
Where once the preacher's pleading loud arose;
All silent now, the pews deserted stand,
And desolation reigns on every hand.
The preachers, absent, off to Europe or the beach,
Old Nick's on hand, to solace and to preach.
The homes of culture all deserted are,
Securely sealed with locking bolt and bar,
No more progressive whist pervades the halls,
Dust, moth and damp invade neglected walls.
The club which delved to seek historic lore,
Adjourned till fall can entertain no more.
The ruined spendthrift, still puffed up with pride,
To some resort of fashion now hath quickly fled,
There will he angle for a lovely belle,
Whose golden blessings charm him passing well.
The cunning matron too, with subtle art,
Will at the mountains angle for a heart,
Not for her own but for her daughter's bliss—
A modest maiden, quite too long a miss.
And all thy intellect has taken flight,
Sweet Newton, thou art wrapped in darkest night.
Vain, transitory splendors, could not all Reprove thy tottering glories from their fall.
Where be thy vaunted legends, full and free,
Of ancestry and genealogical tree?
Where are thy grand dames, fames both far and wide,
Thy consolation and thy civic pride?
Your teachers, preachers, club men and your clerks,
All gone away—in Summer no one works!
The railway trains and harbor boats are crowded,
Thy thoroughfares in solemn silence broadened;
Thy lads and lassies, matrons and the teachers,
And even Satan's foe, the village preachers.

PLEASANT SURPRISE

Mr. Joseph Byers was tendered a delightful surprise on Tuesday evening, the occasion being an informal celebration of his 50th birthday.

A company of intimate friends assembled at his residence on Lowell avenue and showered him with congratulations.

Mr. Byers has been a prominent resident of Newtonville for 40 years, being a member of the Newton Club since 1890, a deacon of Elliot Church, Newton, and vice-president of the Stone Institute and Home for Aged People, and was connected with this institution since its organization.

Mr. Byers was the recipient of many beautiful flowers and also received cards and letters of congratulation from a large circle of friends.

BAND CONCERT

The following program will be given next Sunday at 3.30 P. M. at Fox Island, Charles River, by Teel's Band of Boston:

March—"The Chicago Tribune"
Overture—"Morning, Noon and Night"
Excerpts from "The Red Widow" Collection of Popular Airs
"Humoresque"
Scenes from "Il Trovatore" Operatic Potpourri "Broadway Review"
"Haviland's Happy Hits"
"Songs of the Sunny South" Finale—"The Stars and Stripes Forever"

All now are gone; go find them at the mountains,
Or by the sea, to study nature's fountains.
The woods ring merry with their laughter free,
And Newton's left to darkness and to me.
Sweet Newton, in midsummer days bereft,
The girls all gone, now only men are left.
In fond remembrance all our woes we drown,
And freedom comes when wives are out of town.

POOR BOYS' OUTING

Good Work Being Done at the Newton Y. M. C. A.

The first three one day outings for Boston boys have been held at the Newton Y. M. C. A. and they have accomplished their purpose with marked success. The first Wednesday of July thirty-eight active boys came to Newton. The second Wednesday thirty-nine came with their leader from Roxbury. The third thirty-eight Italian boys came from the North End.

The program as planned was carried out. Baseball was played in the morning on the athletic field, then followed a long swim in the pool. At 12.30 the boys sat down to a bountiful lunch consisting of sandwiches, bananas, ice-cream and cake. Mrs. G. A. Aston and Mrs. Whitney and Mrs. H. W. Bascom of the Woman's Auxiliary have had charge of these boys' lunches.

Newton citizens who have made these outings possible would have felt repaid if they could have seen the expressions of appreciation for the good time on the part of the boys as they left for their homes in the hot city. To many of the boys this will be their only picnic for the summer. The following song was sung in a hearty fashion by the group of boys from Roxbury to the time of "I want to be way down in Dixie."

"We like to go, we like to go,
We surely like to go on picnics,
Secretaries of Y. M. C. A. are just the men
To give them to us, and you bet they can."

We like the ride, we like the feed,
All these we get at Newton.
Swimming tanks and baseball, too,
Rah, rah, rah, hurrah for Newton picnics!
We want to say you are O. K.,
For we've had a dandy time."

Twenty more dollars are needed to carry out the work as originally planned for the summer. Eighty friends have given one dollar each. It is hoped by the committee that twenty more friends will send one dollar to J. W. Blaisdell, Treasurer, Newton Y. M. C. A., as soon as possible.

MR. TYLER REMEMBERED

At the regular quarterly meeting of Trustees of the Newton Cemetery Corporation held July 14th the enclosed memorial of Mr. Warren P. Tyler was read and approved:

The death of Warren P. Tyler which occurred April 1, 1913, caused a genuine sense of loss to the members of the Board of Trustees.

His was a life full of years, accomplishment and affection for his fellow-men. He was respected and honored as a useful citizen and a faithful friend.

In his official connection with the Newton Cemetery, which commenced soon after its foundation, his deep interest and wise counsel were important factors in the development of its beauty as well as in its judicious management.

His associate Trustees, do now make recognition of his genuine service and with it record the remembrance of a friendship which was a continuous delight and blessing.

GOOD BALL GAME

Upper Falls Wins First Game For Newton Championship

The base ball game last Saturday afternoon at the Upper Falls playground between the U. F. A. A. and the Newton Catholic Club of West Newton for the base ball championship of the city was as good an exhibition of play as could be seen anywhere, the big leagues, not excepted. Thirteen innings were played before the local team won by the score of one to nothing, and the entire game was filled with excellent pitching, and

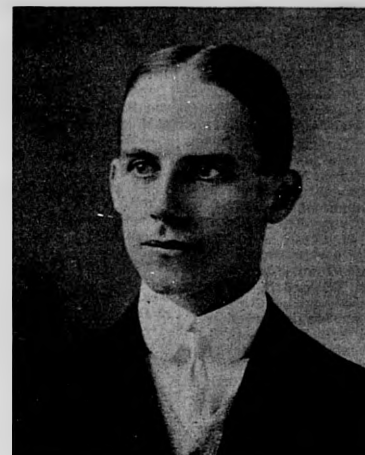

PLAYGROUND ACTIVITIES

Baseball Schedules Announced By Playground Director

Playground director Ernst Hermann has sent the following instructions to the various playground supervisors:

For this league the City will be divided into two sections:
Section A. Stearns, Cabot, Farlow Park, West Newton, Newton Lower Falls.

first class fielding. Both teams had "ringers" for pitchers, Upper Falls presenting Murray of the Everett High school team, and the Catholic Club, working Gill of Boston College. Both men were in great form, but two hits being made off of Murray and six off of Gill. The winning run was made in the last half of the thirteenth by Murray, who drew a base on balls, and was sent home by a fine double by Halliday. The remarkable feature of the affair being the fact that Halliday, who had been to the bat four times previously, had struck out three times in succession. Upper Falls had a fine chance to score in the ninth, when with two men on bases, having been passed by Gill, and no one out, the next three men, instead of sacrificing, as they ought, insisted in striking at the ball and incidentally striking out. The fielding was of the highest grade with the exception of Burke, who played second base for Upper Falls, who fell down badly in the first innings. Beal, third base for the home team, and Buckley, short stop for the Catholic Club, were right on the job, and Halliday and Linehan covered the left field in fine shape. There was a large and enthusiastic crowd present who encouraged both sides with liberal applause. Both teams play a second game in the championship series, tomorrow, on the West Newton common.

Section B. Newton Centre, Thompsonville, Newton Highlands, Newton Upper Falls.

The winning teams of the sections will play off for the Midget League Championship of Newton during closing part of season.

Boys of this league must be under 11 years of age and regularly enrolled members of the playground.

GIRLS' BASE BALL LEAGUE

Each playground will organize a representative Girls' Base Ball Team. There is to be no age limit. The games are to be played on a 60 ft. diamond and with the soft baseball. League Games will start week of July 21st.

MACOMBER-COLE

Miss Dorothea Fenwick Cole, youngest daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Thomas L. Cole, was married Monday evening at her home at 315 Harvard street, Cambridge, to Mr. Leonard Macomber of Newton Centre. The officiating clergyman was the father of the bride.

Only the near relatives and a very few intimate friends of the bride and bridegroom were invited. The bride was given in white, meteor satin, simply trimmed with lace, and her veil was caught with orange blossoms; her bouquet was of roses. She entered on the arm of her brother, Mr. Thomas Caslar Cole. Her only attendant was her two sisters, Miss Elizabeth Rutherford Cole and Miss Sophia Teresa Cole. The best man was Robert Jackson of Brookline. Mr. and Mrs. Macomber will spend the remainder of the summer at their camp in Maine.

AN EGYPTIAN BRACELET

By CORA JOHNSON.

The collector of antique jewelry emptied the contents of her jewel casket on the table, and turned to her companion, saying:

"Here is a bracelet which I am sure you will like. Examine it closely, for the workmanship is particularly beautiful and the large sapphire in the center almost flawless. It has an interesting history, for it once adorned the arm of Atossa, an Egyptian princess."

"One day while visiting Cairo, I stopped at the bazaar to make some purchases. Halting before a jeweler's booth I gazed at the display of antiques, rare examples of the ancient goldsmith's craft."

"Several rings appealed to me, but I could not quite make up my mind to buy. The jeweler, schooled through much dealing with tourists, realized this, and not caring to miss a sale, took a small ebony box from a shelf, which he unlocked and drew forth this bracelet, a necklace and several amulets."

"When I eagerly reached for the bracelet he smiled and said: 'I knew that you could not resist the jewel of Atossa, and when I relate how it came into my possession it will increase in value tenfold. An ancestor of mine was the favorite companion of the princess, not because she was of noble birth, but because the erratic Atossa wanted the most beautiful maidens in the kingdom for her associates, and she was among those chosen.'"

"Her name was Maroda and she played on the harp with wonderful skill."

"The princess seldom joined the court at its revels, preferring to enjoy the beauties of the garden on the housetops, surrounded by her maidens."

"When the Persians invaded Egypt and Cambyse occupied the royal palace with Pharaoh, Atossa pleaded with her father until he agreed that she should live in one section of the palace, seldom frequented by his household. Here her privacy would be respected and she could remain in retirement until the Persian guests departed."

"One evening, when the princess and her maidens were on the housetops enjoying the cool breezes of the night, a messenger summoned her to the king's presence. She was commanded to attire herself and her maidens in gorgeous raiment and appear before the guests."

"Atossa refused to obey, and the infuriated king sent angry soldiers, each of whom bore a strutting maid, on to the royal presence. Atossa knelt before her father, asking for pardon that she might return to her apartments."

"The evil had been wrought, however, for Cambyse commanded Pharaoh to consent to his marriage with Atossa. Too late the Egyptian king realized his grave mistake and refused his consent, for the princess was little more than a child and Cambyse long past his youth. Then the Persian king ordered his guards to seize the princess to carry her to his ship."

"As she left the banquet hall she took the bracelet from her arm and threw it to Maroda. 'Keep this for love of me,' she said."

"My ancestress never saw her again, and the bracelet has been in our possession ever since, but I need money and must sell it."

"I purchased the bracelet."

SALMON UP THE WILLAMETTE

Tributary of the Columbia Is Well Stocked With Fish, According to Reports.

Salmon are ascending the Upper Willamette in larger numbers than for years, says Lou Rathbun, deputy fish warden, who visited Oregon City recently and reported that schools of the fish were jumping up the ladders provided for them at Willamette Falls.

During the winter corporations engaged in logging above are permitted to place gates across the upper end of the ladders so as to conserve the water supply, and owing to high water it was not until recently that the gates were removed this season. Mr. Rathbun says that the salmon go upstream to where the McKenzie river is reached, as there is a state fish hatchery on the latter stream. Anglers are permitted to within 200 feet of Willamette Falls, so the travelling salmon are not disturbed gaining the upper river.—Portland Oregonian.

Wage Too Minimum.

An Irish M. P. is telling a story of a man who complained to three friends, an Englishman, a Scot and an Irishman, that his servant was constantly breaking china.

"What do you think I ought to do with her?" he asked plaintively.

The practical Englishman said: "Discharge her!" But as she was otherwise an excellent servant, her master was unwilling to do that.

"Then, take it out of her wages," suggested the thrifty Scot.

"That wouldn't do much good," was the reply, "for her wages are less than the amount of damage she does."

"Then raise her wages," said the Irishman promptly.—Pearson's Weekly.

AMUSING STORIES OF CHILDREN

A little girl once said to me, says Hilda Cowham in the August Strand. "Are there people on the moon?" I said I didn't know, but that perhaps there were. "Well, what do they do," she said, "when there's only a little bit? They must get very crowded, don't they?" Which was almost as perplexing as the query put to me by another little maiden, who asked, "What do angels do with their wings when they lie down and go to bed?" Very quaint was the idea of a little girl who once visiting a house where a small child had died recently. She was asked to draw something. So she drew a grave with some flowers on it. Her mother, on seeing it, said, "Janie, you mustn't do that! Mrs. wouldn't like it. You see, it reminds her of very sad things." "Oh, well," said the child, "perhaps it was thoughtless of me; but I can easily turn it into a beehive." And she did, with all the bees coming out.

Amusing, too, are these two "pet" stories. I once asked a little girl where her pet dog was. She turned and said to me, "Why, he's gone to heaven. He's there now, with wings and a crown on his head."

A little boy was once drawing ships, and I noticed that all his flags on the boats were half-mast. I said, "Why have you got all your flags half-mast on your drawing, Bobbie?" "Oh," he said in a hushed whisper, "all pussy's kittens died this morning."

EDITHA MISSES A TRAIN

By FRANK H. MELOON.

When it comes to secrets of the heart, what woman is not more than half clairvoyant? So it was that Miss Editha Loring-Jones, daughter of a baronet of England, had guessed, though snow-bound by a hyper-conventional chaperone, the love that plain John Paul—proudly an American—bore her.

It was true that Mrs. Orangela Whelpley, the chaperone, relict of the late Maj. Whelpley, who had obtained his final discharge at Calcutta from the hand of the world's greatest commercial general, had been strictly charged by Miss Editha's father to see that no upstart Yankee had aught to do with the young lady's affections.

Young people are meant for young people's company, and so Editha's heart went out to plain John Paul. Plain? Well, he had won a degree at college, and, as the leading lawyer of the little western town of Openvale, had been sent to the state senate, so that many of his letters were properly addressed to "Hon. John Paul." But he cared little for titles, being willing to dispense with even the ordinary "Mr."

As even the strictest chaperone can't make one a prisoner, it happened on an August day that when John Paul ran his new 20 horsepower car to the edge of the platform of Openvale depot, Miss Editha Loring-Jones, daintily in all the feminine "fixings," came with outstretched hand to bid him farewell.

"It's going to seem mighty lonesome out here after you're gone," he announced, mournfully, when the first greeting was over.

"At least, we can say good-bye without that horrid Mrs. Whelpley straining her ears to catch our last words, as if one could talk of nothing but love, love, love!"

"Why, where is Mrs. Whelpley?" She's got aboard the train. She's horribly afraid of being left, so she's taken the tickets for both of us and secured our seats. I've no doubt she's in fidgets, but she won't care to leave, although the train stops here ten minutes."

"Let's sit in the auto while we make our adieux," John suggested.

Editha complied.

"Our time is short," he said, glancing at his watch. "But if I speak hastily, I have time to tell you something you may care to hear, though I hardly dare hope you will."

"If I should miss that train—" she interrupted, nervously.

"Hang the train!" exclaimed the young lawyer, savagely. "Listen to me!" There was a new note of command in his voice, and Editha appeared resigned. Like most girls, she favored masterly men.

"In a few minutes, Editha, the train may—" "May?" she wondered—"be whirling you eastward. Until you came I enjoyed the wild, free life of my country. I partook of all its pleasures with a joy that saw no future when I should love and the girl I loved should be beyond my possession. This is changed now. For, Editha,—his voice trembled as only the voice of a very strong man can tremble under the suppression of strong emotion—"you must know that I love you!"

He paused to note the effect of his words.

"Yes?" she whispered.

He glanced at the frantic face of Mrs. Whelpley peering from the car window. Editha could not see it. She did not appear anxious to look in that direction.

The conductor struck the starting gong beside the door of the depot restaurant.

"All aboard!" he cried.

"You were about to say?" Editha asked, eagerly.

"That I want you to miss that train!"

"Why, what would I do? I haven't so much as a penny to my person!" she exclaimed.

"I will take you as you are," he persisted. "I don't want your money!"

"Oh, I didn't mean that. What I meant was that I've no way of providing for myself, if I miss the train," she explained, with a rueful smile.

"Yes, you have," he insisted, stubbornly.

"And that?"

"Is to marry me!"

Editha jumped from the auto with a low cry of alarm. The train was already in motion, and she had an excellent view of Mrs. Whelpley, the very picture of a disappointed chaperone, looking from the rear end of the last car.

Editha had missed the train, but John Paul was at her side. Turning toward him, she said: "Well, I did my best!"

And the two rode off in the auto to solve the problem in the most desirable way.

AID TO EARLY RISING

By GENE SHEAR.

"I heard you calling your son Joseph early this morning," remarked Mrs. Bottin, taking a chair in the kitchen, "and I want to say that if he is as hard to get out of bed as my Oscar I don't envy you your job."

"Hard!" echoed Mrs. Flunkitt, wearily. "Hard! I only hope the neighbors on the next street don't hear me calling him. Why, actually, I'm almost afraid at times to go up to his room to pull him out of bed, for fear I'll find he's given up the ghost completely. I can't see some mornings how any person could fail to notice the noise I make unless he was dead."

"We ought to have it like a woman who lived in my home town," said Mrs. Bottin, reminiscently. "That mother certainly was one lucky woman! Her name was Siller."

"The Sillers lived in a little four-room cottage—all on one floor, with the attic extending over the whole—and there was a mighty big family of 'em, too. There didn't seem to be room for all the young ones downstairs, so they laid boards on the rafters, or joists, or whatever you call 'em, and made beds for two or three of the boys up in the attic."

"Their oldest boy, Peter, slept up there, and he was a sleepy head if ever there was one."

"You went up into that attic by a ladder in a closet in the middle room, and in the summer Peter always kept his cot closest to that ladder. But when winter came along he moved right over the kitchen. He didn't mind the racket of getting breakfast for such a mob of youngsters; he

SUBDUING OF BERTIE

By R. E. HALLOCK.

"Your ring, Mr. Showden. Permit me," and the small circlet of gold was tendered across the short space that intervened.

"Thank you."

The canoe floated leisurely on the water, placid, serene and unruffled. That in a moment of carelessness I had spoken too harshly I did not doubt. Beyond, memory failed to carry me. Bertie had proffered me our engagement ring, a gift of long standing, and indicative of undeserved happiness for me.

I was plucked.

"Thank you," I repeated.

"It is entirely unnecessary."

"But my dear Bertie—"

"Miss Van Voorst, with the endearing adjective stricken out," she amended. Really, it's a useless waste of time to continue the conversation further, and, moreover, I have an engagement for this evening. Will you hurry, please?"

Half of our homeward course had been completed and in continued silence I guided the canoe along the rock-faced edge of Umbrella Island.

Rrrr-lpp!!! R-lpp!!!

A few shrill screams, wholly feminine, some hysterical laughter, a ducking or two, a stray scratch, considerable scrambling, and a pair of very bedraggled people sat on the bank and viewed the effect of the catastrophe.

The cause was a rock; the result was ludicrous. The bow of the canoe showed a ragged gap through which the water was eagerly rushing. Any hope of repairing it was out of the question. I turned to my companion.

"Bertie—dear?"

The corners of her mouth fell still further.

"Isn't it funny?"

"Vretch!" was all that she finally vouchsafed me. And then, maledictions on the perverseness of woman-kind, she burst into tears.

I reached out and took her hand.

"Think of our predicament, Bertie. Here we are stranded on the island, with no hope of rescue until morning at least. Night is already upon us. The moon is on its first quarter, and that means that it will be almost total darkness in a few hours. Darkness and no sound to enliven the terrible silence. We must spend the whole night here on this dismal, dreary island."

With a little shudder she drew closely to me. It was the opportunity I had desired. No rebuke met me as I slipped my arm around her.

In silence I slid the ring back on her finger.

She looked up half quizzically and then rested her head on my shoulder. Content once more in mind, I would have let it remain indefinitely, but a slight breeze penetrating my clothes aroused me.

Glancing down, I assured myself that the ring was indeed on her hand again. Then I kissed her and assisted her to rise.

"Come, Bertie. We must walk."

Without questioning she followed.

Picking our way as best we could through the heavy underbrush, we headed toward the opposite side of the island. Occasionally she would trip, and with a happy little laugh reach out for my assistance. It was eagerly given, and in the thrill that coursed through me at the touch I recognized the return of the former harmony. Once on the other side I turned unhesitatingly and led the way to a small cove.

At that point there was a dearth of foliage, and clearly defined in the moonlight there lay lazily at rest a rowboat, oars lying peacefully in the oarlocks.

"Bobby, you wretch! You knew this all the time!" She stamped her little foot in mock indignation.

"Bobby," she continued, in a very reproachful way that she assumed at times, "you deliberately told a falsehood. No rescue, indeed! And poor me shivering with the thought of trying to keep warm through a long, weary night. You are doubly a wretch!"

"Yes," I assented, for there was a twinkle in her eyes which belied the severity in her tone.

We were slowly nearing the shore. I rested on my oars and looked at Bertie.

"Bobby?"

The undercurrent of mischief in her voice caused me to take notice.

"Yes?" I said, questioningly.

"When did you learn that this boat was in the cove back there?"

"Early this afternoon."

"Did you notice the name on the stern?"

"No."

"I thought not. It's papa's boat; we left it there this morning, when we went over in the launch."

"Climbed Up on a Chair."

could have slept serenely through a fire, a flood and an earthquake all in one. His mother used to have her hands full—she couldn't climb that ladder to yank him out of bed as easily as you do your Joseph.

"One winter morning Peter hopped out of bed, late, as usual, and put his foot down between two boards that had slipped apart, so he punched a hole through the kitchen ceiling. His mother asked him and asked him to fix the hole, which spoiled the ceiling, but neither Peter nor his father ever seemed to find the time."

"One morning Mrs. Siller had an idea; it occurred to her after a full hour of trying to get Peter to get out of bed and come down and eat his breakfast so that he might not be late again in going to work."

"After everybody was gone that morning Peter's mother went in and managed somehow to climb the ladder into the attic. There she moved Peter's cot directly over the hole he had made."

"Next morning she called the young man once, then again, and then the third time. Peter didn't make the slightest sound. Then his mother went and got the broom, climbed up on a chair and began to poke with the broom handle at the bottom of Peter's bed. It was only a cot bed, you remember, and so it was too thin to protect him from that sort of attack. At about the fourth or fifth poke Peter yelled like a Comanche Indian and leaped out of bed. In three minutes he was downstairs, too."

"From that time on it was never very much of a job to get Peter up in the morning. A few pokes would do it nicely. Peter did move the cot away from the hole, but his mother went up into the attic and nailed the legs of the cot down, so it had to stay over the hole."

"Then Peter tried to take the beds that belonged to the other boys, but they combined against him and stopped that. Then he wanted to fix the hole, but his mother told him that the only way she'd have it fixed would be to have it framed so that the ragged edges wouldn't show quite so bad."

"Peter didn't care particularly for that sort of treatment, but he saw it would be no use to argue with Mrs. Siller, she was so determined. He took to getting up bright and early every morning, rain or shine, and when he got to being first at the store his boss liked it so well he raised Peter's wages."

"Hum!" said Mrs. Flunkitt, enviously. "I wish there would come an earthquake or something and make a hole under my Joey's bed."

WINNING OF A MAN

What Happened When a Real Man Entered Upon Winona's Horizon.

By HARMONY WELLER.

Winona sighed deeply. She felt that her reasons for sighing were many and good.

In the first place Winona firmly believed that the numerous suitors for her hand were merely after her money. She had not stopped to realize that her eyes were gloriously blue and her hair a shining mass of copper, nor did she know that her character was lovable and her mentality above the average. All she reckoned on was the fact that her money was a snare for fortune hunters and she doubted her swains, one and all.

Secondly, she sighed because she had had a splendid art education, yet wealth and social obligation had kept her from manifesting her talent. Winona had taken a course in interior decorating and in her heart she felt that she would reach supreme heights of happiness if she were allowed to dab paints on the walls of adorable little bungalows.

Thirdly, she sighed—and perhaps she sighed deepest—over the fact that a real man, the kind that would take her heart and life by storm, had failed to appear on her horizon.

"Perhaps I am just naturally hard to please," she reasoned, "but I simply cannot love a man who idles about in a steam yacht or touring car all day and who haunts the cabaret restaurants by night."

A tear squeezed itself from beneath Winona's lashes; then a second and third. After that her head went forward and she wept out her unhappiness on the Irish lace that covered her sofa pillows.

Her father coming in found her curled up like a kitten and with tears streaming down her lovely cheeks.

"Winny!" he cried, and took her into his arms.

"I am just terribly unhappy," she smiled at him through her tears. "I want a long brown painting apron and brushes and paints—and something to paint!"

"Bless my soul, child—you can have an entire shop if you want it. As for something to paint, I can give you a contract that will tax even your clever schemes for decorating."

Winona smiled into her father's eyes.

"Tell me quickly!" she demanded. "I will be so happy you won't know me—if I can just be a working person for once."

"I have seen an architect today about putting up a dozen bungalows on the West Park road. I want them to be little gems along the drive and the young chap I have chosen has ideas that I like. Now you and he can get together—that is if you can without actually coming to blows," he ended with a laugh. "I am not sure that I would let him know that you are my daughter," he added; "he might be inclined to give way to you—though Davenport doesn't seem like the man who would give in much to anybody."

Winona pouted, then bugged her father. Her cheeks were free of tears and her eyes sparkling.

"I love the idea! I shall go straight away and get a plain frock such as a working artist would have. You are a dear!" she cried excitedly and hugged him again.

When Winona met John Davenport she was not sure that they would avoid the blows that her father had laughingly suggested. The young architect had looked at her in a more or less supercilious manner when he had learned that he, in a way, was to work with her.

"He is evidently one of those unfortunates who think that anything feminine belongs seated at the side of a sewing basket. I will show him!" she decided and Davenport fell to wondering why the girl's blue eyes had narrowed in so peculiar a manner.

That was but the first of his wondering. From the moment he and Winona began to talk actual business he was kept in a state of continual surprise.

"She is a clever artist," he told himself often when some particular bit of designing was discussed. "And after all—the feminine mind should know more about a home than the masculine."

Had Winona realized the praise that Davenport was giving her in his mind she would have been even happier in those days of work when the bungalows were progressing at a splendid rate. But she did not know it and her heart was beginning to feel that a real man had entered upon her horizon.

Notwithstanding her first impression she knew now that John Davenport was a man whom any girl could be proud of winning. The close companionship and exchange of ideas gave her ample time to know him as she had known no other man. He would never idle away his days on yachts and motor and Winona smiled when she tried to picture him at a cabaret show or dancing the one-step.

"And I think he likes me," she told herself with a little happy sigh; "his eyes tell me so."

She was high on her ladder painting fleecy clouds on the ceiling when she heard his voice in the next room. He was speaking with some one whose voice was feminine and rich. Winona almost stopped breathing so suddenly had the seeming position struck her. The architect was showing the bungalow to someone.

"I like this the best of all, dear,"

the feminine voice went on. "The decorations appeal to me most. Could we take this one or has it been sold?"

"No—it is the last but one to go. I think we could be very happy here—it is just big enough for you and me, isn't it? I will make arrangements for the purchase this afternoon." He turned suddenly and sprang into the next room. A crash had sent the red blood out of his cheeks.

"Winona!" he cried and picked the girl up. She had toppled from her ladder and lay white and still in his arms. Fortunately she had fainted before falling and the limpness of her body had prevented serious injury.

"Oh-h," she sighed, and opened her eyes wonderingly.

Davenport's arms tightened about her and Winona felt him tremble.

"Tell me, dear—are you hurt?" he questioned tenderly. He glanced quickly up at the other woman who stood beside him. "Mother," he said, "I want you to know the girl I love—I have told you so much about her."

Winona drew a long breath and her heart took up the beat where it had left off when she thought her architect had been speaking to his future wife.

Later on, when they had decided upon an early wedding, Winona looked up at Davenport with rather frightened eyes.

"But I have stacks and stacks of money," she said and waited fearfully for his wrath.

"So have I, sweetheart," he laughed, "more than I can in any way take care of. So let's forget it and just be happy."

"We won't have much trouble doing that—will we?" Winona sighed happily.

"Is this the way you two build bungalows?" asked Winona's father, who stood in the doorway.

"Yes," and we are going to build one more," John Davenport said. (Copyright, 1913, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

MOST FICKLE OF ALL GEMS

Opals Readily Affected By Changes of Temperature, and This Has Brought Them Into Favor.

The superstition which causes people to regard opals with awe as the cause of ill luck, and even death, is due to a peculiar observation made many years ago. Opals were considerably in use in Venice during the plague and it was noticed there in the hospitals that before death the stone would sometimes brighten upon the victim's finger. It never seemed to occur to the people that the illness could produce a glow of color. They took it for granted that the stone occasioned the illness.

As a matter of fact, opals are affected by heat, even by that of the hand, and the fever, being at its height just before death, caused the colors to shine with unwonted clearness.

This confirmed the superstition, and to this day there are sane and able-bodied people who believe that a chip of this stone in the house can cause calamities.

Probably another reason for the distrust excited in opals is the fact that they change and lose their color. That is due to the softness and porousness of the material, and its capacity both for absorbing water and of parting with what it has, one of which tends to make it dull and the other chalky and opaque. They have been known to be carefully cut and laid away, and upon opening the paper had crumbled into dust within a few weeks.

A species of opal known as the hydrophane, found in small quantities lately in Colorado, has wonderful powers of absorption. In its usual state it is of a yellowish, waxy tint, but when water is dropped upon it the tint passes slowly away, and from being translucent it becomes transparent. On exposure to the air the water evaporates in an hour, leaving the stone as it was before.

All Serve the Fatalist.

Three students of philosophy sat on top of a high hill. One was a pessimist, one an optimist and the third had not declared himself.

When the first two were warmly discussing their opposing theories of life, a sudden gust of wind simultaneously lifted off three hats and sent them bowling down the hill. The pessimist and the optimist gave chase, but their companion remained calmly sitting on top of the hill and watched the others running after the hats. Presently each procured his own hat and the optimist picked up also that of the third man. Then they panted back up the hill.

"Whew!" gasped the optimist, as he handed over the hat to him who still sat on top of the hill. "I guess you're an optimist, too. You didn't seem to worry any."

"Why should I?" was the dispassionate reply. "I knew that 'mine own shall come to me.' You see, I'm a fatalist."

Education in Philippines.

An idea of the extent of industrial education in the Philippines may be gained from the fact that nearly four hundred thousand school pupils are engaged in some kind of industrial work. Twenty-six well equipped trade schools have been established in Manila and the various provinces, there is a college of agriculture at Los Baños and a college of engineering has been added to the University of the Philippines.—American Industries.

In view of my recent editorial in regard to the issue of bonds for civic improvements, I have been asked to state my general views on the subject.

In the first place, I believe that a municipal corporation must be viewed from a different standpoint from a business corporation or private business. In the latter cases, the increase in plant investment benefits the same stockholders, or the same persons, in the future, as when the investment is made. A municipal corporation, on the other hand, is composed of tax payers, who constantly change, the yearly ratio being over ten per cent.
Moreover, the tax payers of a municipal corporation are virtually a community association, meeting the running expenses of the community, and without expectation of profit. Holding this view, I believe it is unjust to the tax payers of any one particular year, to assess them for the entire cost of improvements which will extend far into the future. Posterity will use and enjoy the same, and posterity should expect to pay its share of the cost of the work. To illustrate,
—the tax payers of today are paying a certain proportion of the sinking funds, serial bonds and interest charges of our system of water works, sewers and school buildings. These charges constitute a virtual rent for the use of these public utilities, and I have no doubt that every citizen believes he is receiving good value for his money in this respect. The same is true of the building of Commonwealth avenue, the widening of Washington street and the abolition of the grade crossings in the city. These improvements required the immediate outlay of considerable sums of money
—more than the tax payers of any one year could afford to pay, and it was most fitting that the cost of this class of work be bonded. On the other hand, Newton has always paid for a certain portion of equally permanent improvements, like new drains, for instance, from the annual tax levy.
This work does not require a large initial outlay, and while it is in the same class as sewers, it can be done or left undone, as conditions warrant.
In this case, the cost of the work would not only impose on each succeeding year of tax payers, the payment of the serial charges, but the burden of interest charges, as well.
By making a direct charge to each tax levy of this work, the interest charges are saved. It would be equally advisable to take the same course with our sewer and water construction items, were it not for the fact that the present day tax payer would thereby pay not only his share of the initial expense of this work, as contained in the current charges for sinking funds, serial bonds and interest, but would pay the entire cost of the present day improvements, as well.
Some day it will be advisable to discontinue bonding sewer and water construction expense, and pay for this class of work as we now pay for extending our drainage system.

I believe, however, that street widenings, where land damages or original construction are large factors, should be classed as permanent improvements, and paid for by bond issues. Of course, where these widenings are unimportant, and cost but a few hundred dollars, it would be almost impracticable to bond. But where the expense exceeds possible $1000, or where the total expense of a number of such widenings is any considerable sum, say $8000, which is about 10 cents of the tax rate, I believe the future should help the present pay for the improvement. There should be a distinction drawn, however, between street re-surfacing, which is conceded as a routine expense, and a widening I have outlined above.

There is some discussion as to the wisdom of bonding the cost of automobile fire apparatus, and if it was planned to make a large initial investment, changing all our horse drawn apparatus to motor vehicles at one time, I would favor a short time bond to pay for the expense. But where it is proposed to replace this apparatus, at the rate of one new motor vehicle a year, I believe it is far better to make each year's purchase a direct charge to the tax levy.
While the new apparatus will presumably last a reasonable number of years, there is always the danger of accident and it does not fall into the same class as street widenings and other permanent improvements.

At Lowell yesterday the Lowell
Police ball team won from Newton
Police, 10 to 5. Up to the seventh inning
was anybody's game, but in the closing innings Lowell showed
strength with the bat and won handily.
Maloney was on the rubber for Lowell and his work featured. He allowed only six hits and fanned 10 batters.
He was given good support. O'Neil's
playing for the visitors was a feature.
This is the first defeat for Newton in
the Massachusetts Police League series.

There is always a ground for discussing the wisdom of bonding this kind of work, which is badly in need of new school buildings, for instance. A reported as building each year a new building and making it direct charge to the tax levy. Newton, where new school buildings are few and far between, should pay for such work, when done, by serial bonds.
Small street improvements have usually been paid directly from the levy.
Larger ones, or the total sum of several smaller ones, ought to be paid from bond issues. The subject is most interesting and will probably be debated for many years to come. But don't let us forget in the heat of discussion, that ten per cent of our tax payers change each year, and it is unjust to assess the present day and generation for the entire cost of improvements which benefit the future.

I do not favor bonding the cost of constructing streets laid out under the betterment act. The city should lay out streets under the betterment act in extreme cases only, and to put the entire cost of the work in the current tax levy, would serve as a deterrent to this sort of business. The assessments recently levied on Allison and Los Angeles streets, where the city, by reason of a small frontage on the street, was assessed about a third of the entire cost of the two streets, is a sufficient warning of what can be expected if the policy of laying out streets in this fashion is continued.

In conclusion, I believe that permanent construction, where large initial outlays are required, and permanent construction, where the work is not continuing, should be paid by the future as well as by the present tax payers of the city. Permanent work of a continuing nature where the annual expenditures can be equalized or regulated should be a direct charge to the current tax levy. The cost of equipment, re-surfacing and reconstruction of streets, and other expenses, properly classified as maintenance and repairs, ought to be paid in the tax levy. I am aware that the border line between maintenance and permanent construction, is sometimes indeterminate, and in such cases, it is my opinion that burden should be placed on the tax levy rather than on the future.

Governor Foss has made a wise selection in nominating Mr. Edwin O.
Childs, Jr. of this city as a member of the commission to consider the matter of drunkenness. Mr. Childs has made a study of this question in his city and besides this valuable experience, has the ability and the will to serve the Commonwealth with credit.

CITY HALL NOTES

The Registrars of Voters have completed revising the voting list, and show a gain of 379 over last year.
There was a loss of 370 by removal from the city and deaths. The total is now 6962, against 6573 at the city election last year. Ward 4, precinct 1, the largest precinct in the city, shows
the largest gain during the year, now having 732 names registered. Precinct 2 of Ward 4 is the smallest precinct in the city, having 118 names on the list.

Public Buildings Commissioner Walter R. Forbush will make certain repairs on the Rice School, Newton Centre, and the Franklin School, West Newton, both schools being the oldest in the city. It is planned to put the Franklin School in the latest sanitary condition and to improve the heating condition in the Rice School. It is probable that this work will be done during the summer vacation.

GEORGE HENRY SNOW DEAD
Mr. George Henry Snow, formerly a business man of Hyde Park, died on Tuesday at the residence of his son-in-law, Herbert M. Cole, 20 Somerset road, West Newton, at the age of eighty-one years. He had been in fairly good health, up to about two months ago, since when he had suffered from weakness of the heart, to which he finally succumbed.

Mr. Snow was born on Dec. 23, 1831,
in Gardiner, Me., and lived there up to the early eighties, when he removed to Massachusetts, to make his home in Hyde Park. He conducted his business in that suburb up to about six or seven years ago and on retiring went to West Newton, to make his home with his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Cole. He was married fifty-seven years ago to his wife, Miss Sarah Barton, of that place, a cousin of the late Miss Clara Barton of Red Cross prominence. Mr. Snow is survived by his wife and his daughter, who, previous to her marriage to Mr. Cole was Miss Dorothy Elizabeth Snow. Mr. Snow belonged to the Lowell Arcanum, Masons and the Odd Fellows, but in recent years he had not been active in his interest in these organizations.

The funeral was held Thursday afternoon at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert M. Cole, 20 Somerset road. Impressive services were conducted at 3 o'clock by Rev. J. Edgar Park, pastor of the Second Congregational Church of West Newton.

Appropriate selections were rendered by the Mendelssohn Quartet. There were many beautiful floral tributes, testifying to the esteem in which the deceased was held by a large circle of friends.

The burial was in the family lot in Mount Pleasant Cemetery, Augusta, Me.

The survivors are a widow, and one daughter, Mrs. Herbert M. Cole of West Newton.

NEWTON POLICE LOSE

At Lowell yesterday the Lowell
Police ball team won from Newton
Police, 10 to 5. Up to the seventh inning
was anybody's game, but in the
closing innings Lowell showed
strength with the bat and won handily.
Maloney was on the rubber for Lowell and his work featured. He allowed
only six hits and fanned 10 batters.
He was given good support. O'Neil's
playing for the visitors was a feature.
This is the first defeat for Newton in
the Massachusetts Police League series.

HOUSE WARMING

Newton Lodge, No. 110, Knights of Pythias, had a "house warming" in their new quarters, Odd Fellows Hall, Newtonville Square, Tuesday evening.
Grand Lodge officers were present and all the lodges in this section had representation, including Watertown, Brookline, Waltham and Boston. One of the most pleasing features of the evening was the presentation of a new Grand Chancellor's jewel to Will C.
Eddy of Auburndale by Grand Secretary Geo. E. Howe, who paid a high tribute to the work and results which Mr. Eddy obtained while Grand Chancellor. Brother Eddy responded in a very fitting speech. Dr. R. S. York of Boston and G. E. Wragg of Dorchester, both had some very entertaining remarks. Another pleasing and concluding feature was the presentation of an enlarged photo of Brother Eddy to the Grand Lodge by
P. C. James H. Wentworth of Newton Highlands. An excellent collation was enjoyed in the banquet hall upstairs
as a curtain drop.

MRS. HOYT DEAD

Mrs. Sarah B., widow of the late
John S. Hoyt, formerly of Chichester, N. H., quietly passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. William Warren, 15 Oak street, Newton Upper Falls, Monday evening, July 14.
She was born in Concord, N. H., June 22, 1841, and united with the Baptist Church of Pittsfield, N. H., at the early age of 13 years. Mrs. Hoyt was of a quiet, lovable disposition.
She was a Christian woman and a fond, loving mother. For the past five years she made her home with her daughter, Mrs. Warren, who tenderly cared for her. Mrs. Hoyt leaves a son and four daughters. Prayer was held at the home of her daughter Wednesday afternoon at 5 o'clock. The Rev.
James Carlon officiating, and funeral services were held at her former home in Chichester, N. H., Thursday, July 17th, at 2:30 P. M. Interment was in the family lot at Union Cemetery.

CORRESPONDENCE

Brattleboro, Vermont,
July 15, 1913.

Editor of Graphic,

Dear Sir:—
While strolling through a little cemetery in the town of Brattleboro,
I discovered a grave so interesting that perhaps your readers will also be interested. At the head of this grave was a small, gray granite carved rudely near the top of this slab is a tree with a trunk shaped like a bell mouth rife and limbs curling around like snakes. Below and on each side of the tree was a very ornate heart.

It bore the following inscription:
"Sacred to the memory of Colo. John Sergeant who departed this life July the 30th 1798 in the sixty-fifth year of his age and who now lies in the same town he was born and was the first person born in the state of Vermont."
"Lo where this silent marble weeps
A friend, a father and husband sleeps;
He gave them good Council while he had breath,
Advising them to prepare for Death."
THEODORE CHASE,
July 15, 1913. Brattleboro, Vermont.

O. Perkins, commander of Charles Ward Post, G. A. R., were held last Sunday afternoon from his late resifrom Charles Ward Post. Rev. C. L.

Merriam, pastor of the North Church, officiated, and was followed by the regular Grand Army burial ritual, under direction of Senior Vice Commander
William H. Partridge and Chaplain S.
P. Putnam. The comrades also sang "Nearer My God to Thee" and "The Vacant Chair." The burial was at being taken to that city in a special electric car. The pall bearers were members of J. Wiley Edmunds Camp,

Improvements are coming thick and fast on Woods Electric, represented in Boston by The Whittier-Gilmore Company. Following closely after the announcement of the frameless glass windows as an exclusive Woods feature, comes a new window raising device to take the place of the old fashion window pulley for raising and lowering the glass in the car doors.
On the new Woods models this is accomplished by means of a small handle mounted in the centre of the door.
Inside, just below the window. The window glass is easily raised and lowered by turning this handle. In addition to its neater appearance the advantages of this device are the ease with which it is operated and the fact that the window is automatically locked at any height.

ERA OF POKE BONNET

QUAINT SHAPES ARE JUST NOW IN HIGH FAVOR.

Only a Suggestion of the Original Model is Left in Some of the Modifications Which the Designers Are Providing.

The poke bonnet (and any number of variations of the original shape) is providing designers with profitable inspiration just now. Modification of all kinds, some of which retain only a suggestion of the original model, are the most popular and successful hats just at the moment.

These quaint shapes provide a real protection for the face and eyes, which is something; but it is because they are so becoming that the keen eye of the summer girl lingers upon them. They are bewitching and all the popular fabrics for midsummer, more especially lace, maline, figured silks with ribbons and flowers, seem to find their best expression in these shapes.

Other Bonnets follow in the train of the poke and the Corday bonnet-like hat shows signs of out-distancing it in popularity. Light colors, small flowers, lace maline, many plaitings and velvet ribbon are the features one gathers as predominating. Ties and straps under the chin appear on those bonnets made for youthful wearers. But the middle aged must beware of this feature—it is not for her.

JULIA BOTTOMLEY.

Fashion's Fancies

A wrap of abstinthe colored silk crepe is trimmed with three rows of shirring across the shoulders and has the collar and cuffs of gray velvet. The trains of the winter that swished about one's feet in snaky fashion are no longer essential to the evening gown and many of the latter are quite short.

Sashes for the summer frock of sheer material are fashioned of satin taffeta or ribbon. The long ends are finished with fringe, beads, ribbon flowers or embroidery.

The Parisian jewelers are displaying hatpins with extremely small heads. They are usually formed of a pearl surrounded with brilliants, and never exceed the size of a pea.

The smart headdress for evening wear consists of a narrow band of jewels worn low on the forehead and decorated at the side with a cluster of pearls, ostrich or osprey plumage.

The taste for the present glaring color combination has to be cultivated like a taste for olives or strong cheese and already the public is becoming quite accustomed to green and orange red and purple, blue and corals, or coral and bright brown.

Comfort for the Plump. There is little enough in present day styles to bring happiness to the stout woman. Her hips are a constant source of worry, in spite of the fact that her waist is just in style. And when she surveys the filmy chiffon and lace under bodies and the corsets that end at the waist she is filled with dismay.

But the bassettes of heavy allover embroidery, re-enforced with removable bones under the arms and in front and back, with stout tapes to hold them down at the waist, are a real boon to the plump woman. They are really dainty and attractive; at the same time they are substantial and serviceable.

Novelties in Bracelets. If your forearm is white and round and it deserves the decoration of a bracelet. Depending upon the size of your income or of your earnings, you may have a pretty and dainty bracelet of filigree silver bands joined by thin chains in coral. Just a wee bit more expensive are the beautifully engraved bangles in sterling silver and gold and a trifle beyond the income of the well-to-do wage-earner (who is thrifty) are the snake bracelets in gold, set with amethysts.

PROPER CARE OF EMBROIDERY

Should Be Cleaned at Home and Thereby Have Its Usefulness and Beauty Prolonged.

Every woman who embroiders and spends hours doing the finest kind of needle-work wants to protect it from the ravages of time as long as possible.

If given to the ordinary laundress, embroidered frocks, blouses and articles for the household soon lose their beauty. If sent to a professional cleaner's, they are a constant drain on the allowance. The most delicately embroidered article can be successfully cleaned at home if the following suggestions are observed:

All colored embroidery should be soaked in salt water for ten minutes before washing. This will preserve the colors.

Make a suds from warm water and a milk white soap. Rinse through several clear waters and hang up until partially dry. Roll up for half an hour and iron on a Turkish towel with a moderately hot iron.

Never hang up fine embroidery, but pin on folded towels until dry enough to iron.

If round or oval pieces show signs of gathering up after washing, perhaps it is due to the worker's tight stitches. To remedy this, stitch and pin out on folded towels while wet. Do not spare pins or trouble to have the piece perfectly straight and flat.

Scalloped edges demand careful treatment. Never pull them in shape, but lightly smooth each scallop in place and pin.

Never wring an embroidered article, but press the superfluous water out between towels.

MUST HAVE LINEN CARDCASE

Fashion's Decree Makes It Imperative to Include This Among Necessary Accessories.

The daintily embroidered cardcase of linen belongs among the necessary accessories, and the woman who does not already possess one should immediately begin to embroider the linen.

The needlework shops sell a variety of designs stamped on coarse or fine linen, according to the work you desire to place on it.

The thin lingerie frock demands a cardcase of handkerchief linen, embroidered with a very fine design; those done in eyelet embroidery are the most effective. If you do the tiny flowers and foliage in solid work, pad the petals first with darning cotton and cover this with fine mercerized cotton. Scallop the edges, using the buttonhole stitch, and whipstitch the sides together.

With the one-piece frock or tailored costume should be carried a cardcase of heavy linen. The design is not so fine on these and can be done with white or colors.

For instance, if you choose a cardcase of natural-colored linen, the design can be effectively done in white, brown or dark blue. There are a few designs to be worked with the Bulgarian colors, and these are extremely effective when done in the brilliant hues on a background of tan linen.

MATERIALS FOR THE TOURIST

Crepe de Chine Deservedly Popular—China Silk and Unlined Net and Lace Waists Useful.

Crepe de chine are popular and practical, as they clean easily. The familiar double frill is still used, as are also narrow frills which outline the front pleats, or follow the side fastenings. Narrow pleatings to match the frills are used as a finish for flat collars and turnback cuffs.

They have the button through collar and cuffs, with long shoulder lines. Crepe de chine is sometimes used in combination with net, lace or printed silk.

China silk waists also have the frill finish, but the designs are a little more on the tailored style. Striped wash silks are popular with travelers. Some of these silks have a white ground work with broad or narrow stripes in purple, gray, blue, rose, yellow or brown. Then, again, the groundwork shows a soft shade of gray, blue, rose or tan with white stripes. These silks are made in the mannish shirt styles.

Unlined net and lace waists are very practical, as they are easily laundered, thus doing away with the necessity of dry cleaning.

FOR BABY'S BELONGINGS

A clever way to mark a pillow or towel. The design could be enlarged for the pillow.

Pearl Buttons Now in Style. Pearl buttons on patent leather shoes are considered smart just now.

FURNISHINGS OF WHITE

IDEAL BEDROOM MUST HAVE NO TOUCH OF COLOR.

Not at All Hard to Acquire, and It Must Be Acknowledged That the Effect Is Infinitely Pleasing.

All-white bedrooms are a craze among young girls. Fortunately they are easily acquired provided one has a room, some fresh calcimine for the walls and ceiling, and a sufficiency of white paint with which to enamel the floor and the furniture. If the room has already been papered, every shred of the decoration must be scraped off and the walls cleanly washed before the calcimine is applied, as otherwise their surface, when dried, will not be of virgin whiteness. The idea of an all-white floor may at first seem an absurdity, but it will keep clean as long as a dark surface if white rag rugs are placed before each window, door and piece of important furniture, and, as every housekeeper knows, to wash a small rug is an easy matter.

Having given each piece of furniture a double coat of white enamel paint, make the counterpane, the valance and the hollow pillow roll of the bed of muslin embroidery, using the all-over for the spread and the roll cover and the half-yard deep flouncing for the valance and the long ends of the pillow holder. The top of the dressing table, if of glass, should sit over an equal-sized mat of all-over muslin embroidery, but if the table is wholly of wood, its spread should be of the all-over banded with St. Gall galloon and finished at each end with ten-inch edging. When this table has the regulation three-leaf mirror, its ends only need be lined with white cambric veiled with all-over, but if there is a single-leaf, detached mirror, it must be hung against a dorsal of cambric-lined lingerie, edged at top and sides with St. Gall. If possible, keep the chiffonier in the clothes press, as at best it is an ugly piece of furniture, but if it must be given bedroom space, cover its top with a scarf matching that on the toilet table, and veil its sides and front with curtains of St. Gall suspended from slender white rods screwed against the top's edges, and be resigned to the nuisance of pushing the draperies aside whenever it is necessary to open a drawer.

Drape the windows from top edge to sill with slightly gathered widths of the all-over finished at both ends with eight-inch edging and use similar materials for the shades of the lamp and sconces which are cheap in white china.

Nothing in picture and photograph frames is daintier than those in all-white muslin embroidery backed over strips of heavy white cardboard and easily taken off and washed when dust-soiled.

Where women once bought net or tulle by the yard they now buy it by the piece. They use it in a dozen ways to vary a gown, to add to its color scheme, to achieve some of those clever individual touches over which women have become enthusiastic since the cut-and-dried fashions in clothes have gone out.

It is an interesting subject, this one of individuality, and it has arisen with much gusto in the last few months; whether the cry for it produced the supply or whether the women's apparel produced the talk is hard to tell. What matters the cause? We are in the stir of the movement and it is one to develop and encourage, although it may produce during a short life more mistakes than successes.

PARTY DRESS.

Prize Cleansing Fluid. A society of arts in England some years ago offered a prize for the best process of cleansing silk, woolen and cotton fabrics—one that would not change their color or injure them in any way. The winning recipe was as follows: Grate two good-sized potatoes into a pint of clear, clean, soft water. Strain through a coarse sieve into a gallon of water and let the liquid settle. Pour the starch fluid from the sediment and it is ready for use. Rub the articles gently in the liquid, rinse thoroughly in clear water dry and press.

Fresh Bedroom. Personal cleanliness includes keeping one's sleeping room sweet and fresh, and airing the bed thorough every morning. To spread up a bed a few minutes after one is out of it may give to the room an air of neatness, but it folds into the bedding the close air of the night instead of letting it all go out of the window, to be replaced by the freshness of the morning.

NET TO MATCH GOWNS

WIDE AMOUNT OF ACCESSORIES FOR SUMMER DRESSES.

Gowns of Net Made High and Low, Girdles and Sashes of Net, Long and Short-Sleeved Gimpes, Some Varieties.

So enamored have women become of the various and interesting things that have been invented in net that they are getting together a wide amount of accessories for the summer made of this fabric.

Just think for a moment what can be done. There are gowns of net, made high and low; there are girdles and Japanese sashes of net, there are long-sleeved and short-sleeved gimpes, there are parasols lined with silk or made of several layers of white and colored net, there are petticoats and brassieres and fancy corset covers trimmed with chiffon roses. And this is not all.

There are small hats and large hats of black, white and colored tulle; there are Medici collars and Robespierre ones of net that is plain and net that is sprinkled with figures. There are net neck ruffs, there are huge roses and little violets and broad green leaves and pink moss rosebuds made of net to use as trimming on underwear, on room robes, on boudoir caps and on evening gowns. And the end is not yet. All any woman would have to do to enlarge her vision concerning the possibilities of net would be to make a tour through the shops.

It was some time before those who sell caught the contagion, but when they did catch it, net garments and accessories sprang into being overnight, and everyone who had an idea immediately worked it out, and therefore the windows and the counters—to say nothing of the advertisements in the papers—were filled with ingenious possibilities in this one fabric.

Where women once bought net or tulle by the yard they now buy it by the piece. They use it in a dozen ways to vary a gown, to add to its color scheme, to achieve some of those clever individual touches over which women have become enthusiastic since the cut-and-dried fashions in clothes have gone out.

It is an interesting subject, this one of individuality, and it has arisen with much gusto in the last few months; whether the cry for it produced the supply or whether the women's apparel produced the talk is hard to tell. What matters the cause? We are in the stir of the movement and it is one to develop and encourage, although it may produce during a short life more mistakes than successes.

IS CHARACTERISTIC OF AGE

Present-Day Dressing Makes for Bodily Ease and Comfort Necessary for Active Life.

Present-day dressing is nothing if not characteristic of the age, and it is noticeable that everything makes for the bodily ease and freedom necessitated by the active life.

We can hardly now understand the temperament of the woman who did not mind trailing about in a voluminous skirt with a wasp waist and a towering headdress.

Even in days much nearer our own a woman's body was just the internal machinery of a crinoline, her neck strapped up, and her whole head muffled with the ears and strings of a mighty poke bonnet.

Now we have little hats that hardly ask for a single hatpin, the hair-dressing that appears to have been done in a second, and the neck without a single support of any description to dig into one's chin.

Then what a position the washing glove has gained for itself! Once upon a time, unless it was for the country, the washing glove was not considered to be of much account; it was just a utilitarian thing fitted for urban use. But nowadays women demand that their gloves be tubbed as frequently as any other part of their apparel.

PRETTY NOVELTY

A very dainty novelty for the home and bazaar worker is easily made from shells at very little cost. This novelty takes the form of a fly rest, and makes a bright ornament when hung from gas brackets or any similar fixture. Very little is required in the way of materials—shells, baby ribbon, silver paper, some Sewalline and a brass ring.

NEWEST IN PARASOLS

SUMMER DESIGNS ARE ODD IN SHAPE AND COLOR.

Dome and Tub Shapes Are Most Popular Styles This Season—Flowered Silk and Plain Silk With Border Used.

A modern afternoon affair out-of-doors is as gay as a Dutch flower garden for bright colored parasols are conspicuous everywhere. Even the vivid red and emerald green parasols of a season or two ago are outclassed by the gorgeous models of this year with the Bulgarian medley of color bright-hued stripes or flowered design as trimming.

Striking as these new parasols are in color, however, and odd and unexpected in shape, few of them are really freakish. The new shapes are graceful, if surprising, and the eye has now become accustomed to bright strong colors in costume. If anything, moreover, may be gay with perfect propriety, surely it is a parasol.

Convenient Aeroplane Shape.

The aeroplane shape, long from the front, elliptical when opened, has a certain smartness and is very convenient for use with the long, narrow hats of the season. Very exclusive parasols are of black satin, with linings of bright colored silk, and have very long, carved handles of black wood with wrist-cord matching the color of the lining.

The dome and the tub shapes are the most popular styles this season and one sees more of them than of the exaggerated aeroplane and mushroom hat effects. Sometimes there is a double dome of "canopy top," as this model is called in the shops which looks like two soap bubbles, one blown within the other. The first, or outward curve of the cover may be of plain colored silk in deep green, or the fashionable Indian red, while the more steeply curving dome at the center is of Persian silk or flowered pompadour pattern.

One of the accompanying sketches shows a parasol of the dome, or bell, shape, made of black satin, trimmed with bands of bright colored pompadour silk. The stick is a black carved wood.

The other parasol in the illustration is of old blue taffeta, with a border of bright-colored pompadour silk.

Pretty Parasols of Flowered Silk.

Many of the prettiest of the summer parasols are of flowered silk, or of plain silk with deep borders of flowered silk, set off between bands of black velvet ribbon. Covered silk parasols also have a deep border, bands of heavy macramé lace or of scroll, or cubist patterned silk. Plain colored silk parasols in simple dome and tub shapes are given the essential fanciful touch by a shirred arrangement of silk between the ribs.

Shirring of all sorts are much used in trimming effects, as for instance, shirred silk border bands over cords, shirred chiffon or lace covers over corn colored or saffron silk.

Handles are as long as ever, and those swelling to a bulb at the end are the smartest. Some of the carved effects are very handsome, and the choice seems to be evenly divided between elaborately carved black wood handles and white wood handles in carved ivory effects.

MARY DEAN.

Attractive Table Plant.

Break off the top leaves of a pineapple by gently working them from side to side until they come out quite clean. Now put two spoonfuls of coarse sand in the bottom of a glass jar, and fill with water. Place the pineapple top in it where it broke off, and always keep it a little under water. Be sure and keep in the light, and after a few weeks roots will sprout. As soon as they are strong enough, put in a pot, and then in a small jardiniere. With a little care a lovely evergreen table plant will spread out which will last for years.

Dainty Summer Portiere.

Red bordered white toweling, held together with wide rick-rack braid, makes a pretty portiere to hang in a girl's room.

SUMMER HAT MADE AT HOME

Crownless Design of Net Probably Is the Best for Amateur Milliner to Attempt.

It is amazing how many amateur milliners have sprung up since the new kind of hat came into being. There are women, many of them, who do not mind paying a good price for a winter hat or a winter suit, but they draw the line at a fancy price for a summer hat or a summer gown.

They know the possibilities of the sun for bleaching out any color and they know how the open air life they lead takes all the character out of a frock. So they prefer to divide the money into many parts and make it buy many things, and therefore the chance of making hats at home has a strong appeal.

It all looks very easy, and the woman who has skill and a clever idea of line and color may be able to accomplish much, but a word of warning should be said to those who are not sure of themselves in the field of millinery. A home-made hat is often worse than a home-made gown, and the best of the latter is often spoiled by the former. The crownless hat of net is the best to attempt, as it is made startlingly like a neck ruff and held to the head with a band of ribbon.

There are women, you know, who boast that they have worn their tulle neck ruffs instead of hats, with a rose at the back and the looped up hair in the middle—for the hat is crownless—and their public admired and said: "How very becoming."

ARRANGING REAL REST ROOM

Apartment That Will Be Appreciated at All Times by the Women of the Household.

There are many women who go through life without a dressing use, but there are few who do not long for one. And even when the limited space of a house makes it impossible for the women of the household to have individual boudoirs, there is often one upstairs room which could be made into a sitting room or dressing room for their collective use.

It could be supplied with a comfortable couch, where breakfast or, other meals could be taken by any one tired or ill, with comfortable chairs for lounging and resting, with good light and a book shelf for magazines and books, with a writing table or desk, with a well stocked work table, a sewing machine, if it is to be used also as a sewing room, and a pier glass.

It could hardly be equipped with a row of dressing tables, one for each daughter or cousin or aunt or mother, who used it, as these would make it crowded, so the actual dressing would still have to be done in bedrooms. But it would prove a haven where its collective owners could go for help and advice, to see whether their dresses were on as they should be, to "get hooked up," to rest and read and get away from the tediousness of the bedroom when illness kept them upstairs.

WALKING SUIT.

Suit of pink charmeuse veiled completely by alternating black and white lace, which is fastened in front by straight bows in the color of the undershirt.

Summer Couch Covers.

Some of the new ones are from the Fetherland—cool and attractive looking affairs that are particularly suitable for bungalow or cottage use.

They are in full size and the natural colored grounds are covered with stripes in such cheerful hues as green, red, blue or gold.

THE POLITICAL DOCTORS

In days of old, practitioners of medicine were few. But when a patient called they knew exactly what to do. They bled him, and they starved him. They cauterized his skin. They paralyzed his stomach pouring noxious potions in. Thank God there were not more of them, and that the race was strong. For otherwise humanity would not have lasted long!

Practitioners of politics in our own day there be. Whose treatment is quite similar for this Land of the Free. They swear the patient's dying and the only way to save.

Our poor plague-stricken country from a deep and early grave. Is to bleed it of its income and starve it of its trade.

And turn its business stomach with ideas that are decayed.

Go easy, brother patriots; your patient is not dead.

He has drunk deep of prosperity, the wine's gone to his head.

He has "Congressional headache," "Attorney-General's heart,"

A Socialistic liver, and his nerve's muddled apart.

A little rest is needed, from legislative strain.

From false and ruinous doctrines; then he'll be himself again.

A gentle hypodermic of confidence and trust.

A knife for the malignant growth of cancerous scandal-lust.

A soporific sedative for demagogic dream.

A modern Maxim silencer for yellow journal screams.

A dose of common sense, hallucinations to dispel.

A little rest and quiet, and old Uncle Sam is well.

DIPHTHERIA SCARE

An Italian child suffering from malignant diphtheria, remained without medical attendance in a house in the Thompsonville section of Newton Centre for three days and was then taken by its parents on street cars to Boston to the office of a North End doctor and from there removed to the contagious department of the City Hospital, where it died last Saturday. As a result one other child is ill with the disease in the same neighborhood and precautions are being taken by the Newton authorities to prevent an epidemic.

The dead child is Tony Di Nucleo, four years old, the son of a laborer who lives at 19 Beecher place. It was taken to Boston last Friday and died the following day. No Newton doctors were called in the case and the people in the house did not notify the Newton Board of Health, the news coming from the house doctor at the hospital, where the child died.

Agent Russell of the Board of Health, visited the locality late Saturday evening and on Sunday morning made a second visit with Dr. Francis C. Curtis, chairman of the Board of Health. When the Italian women saw them approaching they seized their children in their arms and fled into nearby woods. After a time they were persuaded to come out and then all the children in the district, together with those adults who were at home, were treated with serum and their throats and noses sprayed.

Tuesday it was discovered that Antoinette De Malo, a small child living in the same house, was suffering from diphtheria and she was hurried to the Newton Hospital. It is not known how many persons were open to infection while the dead boy was being taken to Boston.

Believes Hens Once Had Teeth.

That hens had teeth in the olden days is the opinion of Professor Gilbert of Los Angeles (Cal.) high school. In a recent address before a local organization of naturalists he also told his auditors that the eggs of birds have greatly decreased in size since their teeth became extinct. Had they been marketed then as they are now, he considered, they would, at the present scale of egg prices, bring from $250 to $1,500 each.

SCHOOL REPORT FOR 1912

Supt. Spaulding Explains School Policy and Justifies the Expense Thereby Incurred

The report of the superintendent of schools for the school year ending June 30, 1912, and the fiscal year ending Dec. 31, 1912, has recently been issued.

The report of the school committee by Mr. William H. Rice, the chairman, who succeeded the late Captain S. Edward Howard, who died last November. The report contains an excellent likeness of Capt. Howard.

to an effort to cultivate more efficiently the field long since marked out. Expressed literally and more concretely, these changes are due to our efforts to educate adequately—according to individual capacity and need—an ever increasing percentage of the boys and girls of each year of age from six to about eighteen. Two purposes are involved: improvement in the quality of education afforded to every child; the

DR. FRANCIS GEO. CURTIS
Who retires as a member of the Civil Service Examiners for Newton

Dr. Spaulding, the superintendent, has a report of over 100 printed pages, together with many complicated tables. He shows what the Newton schools are trying to do, discusses whether or not the schools are doing what they try to do, submits the matter to the people of Newton for approval, and goes into the minutest detail as to the economy and efficiency of the educational administration.

He says: The Newton schools are trying to educate all boys and girls in the city from about four or five to about eighteen years of age; the schools are trying to educate every one of these children and youth with individual discrimination, that is, to develop the natural capacity of each so that he will be able and disposed to render the largest possible service to society throughout his life beyond the school.

The attendance of children beyond fourteen years of age—except in the extremely rare cases of illiterates—depends wholly upon their interest and the conviction on the part of children or parents that such attendance is worth while. While the law does not compel the boy or girl who has completed the work of at least the first three grades to attend school after reaching fourteen years of age, we are so firmly convinced of the supreme educational importance for all youth of the period from fourteen to eighteen, that we are planning and striving most earnestly to hold boys and girls in school through this period. We are doing this not blindly and indiscriminately, but with individual discrimination, adapting our methods and the work offered to individual needs.

Our schools are today working within the limits of the same field that they have been working for twenty years. The marked changes that have taken place in our school system, especially within the last half-dozen years, have not been due in the slightest degree to an effort to extend the schools' field of operation; they have been wholly due extension of education to larger numbers,—to those not previously reached. This explanation is made with the hope of correcting the wholly erroneous notion sometimes expressed that we are developing college courses in our high schools. There are several high schools in the country—and their number is increasing quite rapidly—that are doing two years of college work and receiving credit for it with the colleges. But there is not the slightest inclination on the part of the Newton schools to undertake any work of college grade; our proximity to more than a half-dozen of the best colleges and universities of the land makes such an upward extension of our work quite needless however desirable this may be in some places.

The present policy of the school department is something as follows:—Here are the children that we have to educate; these children differ not only in age and sex, but no less in natural capacities and possibilities; it is our duty to study the possibilities and needs of all these children individually, also to take discriminating cognizance of the opportunities and demands for service in the society to whose welfare these children must soon contribute, both as a duty and as a condition of their own maintenance; in the light of such knowledge as we may thus gain we must provide a curriculum, and all means necessary for the adequate and continuously progressive education of every one of the boys and girls of the community; we must constantly adapt our means and processes of education to meet not only the changing needs of successive groups of children and of society, but our increasing knowledge of these needs; as a last resort we must compel the attendance of children between seven and fourteen years of age, but even with these we shall rely chiefly upon the efficiency and individual adaptation of our educational processes; to secure the attendance of those over fourteen we

MR. HEBBERD APPOINTED

New Deputy Prison Commissioner a Resident of Newtonville

Mr. John B. Hebbard of Birch Hill road, Newtonville, and for the past two or three years, head of mathematics at the Technical High School, was appointed this week, the deputy prison commissioner for the Commonwealth and was sworn into office on Tuesday by Governor Foss. The appointment was made by the new Prison Commissioner Frank L. Randall.

Mr. Hebbard, a graduate of Harvard in 1909, has been for years an assiduous student of social ethics and of the management of boys of every kind, and says his new position will furnish him with work peculiarly congenial to him.

He is 35 years old, was born in Lowell, but was taken by his parents to Loraine, O., when very young, and lived there till he was 9 years old, when his family moved to Boston. He graduated at the Lincoln School in South Boston, at English High and in 1908 at Bridgewater Normal School. Since his graduation at Harvard he has continued to attend the Harvard Graduate School of Education and Social Ethics.

While at Harvard he was president of the Education Club in his senior year, and he sang in the Glee Club. For four years he was in charge of boys' camps at Winthrop, Me. He was also some years ago director of boys' work at Ruggles-Street Neighborhood House.

His earliest experience in teaching was as principal of a school at North Hanover, as supervisor of music at Bridgewater, and substitute teacher at the Burr School, Newton. Immediately after graduating at Harvard, in 1909, he became principal of the Center School, Medford, and remained there one year, when he became head of the department of mathematics at Newton Technical High School.

He will continue to live at 33 Birch Hill road, Newtonville. He is married but has no children. As Deputy Prison Commissioner Mr. Hebbard will be secretary of the Parole Board.

Y. M. C. A. NOTES

On July 28th the "Letter D" will carry another party of Newton fishermen for an all day trip. On account of the short notice we hope that any who read this announcement will immediately notify the Y. M. C. A. if they would like to be counted in on this trip. The fare is one dollar ($1.00).

A new game invented by Mr. Franklin W. Ganse, one of our Directors, and called "Racquet golf" was tried out at the Y. M. C. A. last Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Ganse presented the first set manufactured to the Association. Many friends of Seth Wood will be glad to know that he is coming to Newton August 9th to spend his vacation this year.

DEER HUNT

Newtonville Witnesses an Exciting Capture of Wild Animal

The people of Newtonville were surprised this morning about 8.30 to see a deer roaming about the streets of that part of the city.

William P. Hicks of 183 Austin street, Newtonville, notified headquarters that the animal was in the vicinity of his home, and that boys and dogs were chasing it. The automobile patrol, with three policemen were sent to the place, and the deer was finally found hurrying along Mt. Vernon street. The automobile was fast enough to head it off, and the deer leaped a fence and then jumped to the Boston & Albany tracks.

The drop from the street to the road-bed of the railroad is about 20 feet and the deer appeared to be hurt when it fell, as it was not able to rise and was quickly captured by patrolman Seaver and others who had been on its trail since it first appeared. The animal was placed in the patrol wagon and taken to Norumbega Park and turned into the pen with the other deer. The animal was about a year old and appeared to be pretty well tired out. Later in the day it was found necessary to kill the animal as its injuries were more serious than at first appeared.

TOO MUCH NOISE

An active campaign against automobilists who disregard the statute prohibiting the use of muffler cutouts is to be started by the Newton police. Countless complaints have been received from those whose homes are near thoroughfares on which there are hills and this is particularly true late at night and early in the morning along Commonwealth avenue where the noise of the exhausts on speeding cars prevents sleep.

Policemen in citizen's clothes are to be stationed at the principal hills and those who use cutouts will be summoned to court. One of the spots where the nuisance has become general is at the junction of Washington and Chestnut street, West Newton. Chestnut street is the thoroughfare across the city to Waban and Oak Hill and as the grade is steep the barking of mufflers is heard at all hours. In this case, however, in order to give the automobilists every opportunity to comply with the law, Chief of Police Mitchell is to have a warning sign placed in a conspicuous position.

POLICE NOTES

Fines of $10 each were meted out in the Newton Court Monday to Felix J. Pheberge and Andrew E. Wells, both of South Framingham, who were charged with creating a disturbance on a Boston & Worcester street car at Newton Highlands last night. Both paid.

For gambling on the Lord's Day, Joseph Hackett, 18 years of age, was fined $5 by Judge Copeland. He paid Hackett, who lives at 299 River street, West Newton, was arrested Sunday by patrolman Melissac of the Metropolitan Park Police, who surprised a crap game in progress near the bathhouse on the Auburndale shore of the Charles River, opposite Fox Island. With the exception of Hackett all the gamblers were fully dressed and escaped, but Hackett had nothing on but a pair of bathing trunks and made no attempt to run away.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT

Man Badly Hurt When Automobile Tire Bursts

By the bursting of a tire while climbing the grade to the Commonwealth avenue bridge over the railroad at Auburndale on Sunday afternoon, four men were thrown from the automobile, and injured, one of them being placed on the dangerous list at the Newton Hospital. When the tire burst the machine skidded, and the driver lost control. It shot up the embankment of the railroad and turned completely over.

Daniel Chandler, 51 years old, a carpenter living at 285 Webster street, West Newton, was pinned under the car when it landed upside down on the trolley tracks. He was taken to the Newton Hospital, where it was found he had suffered serious bruises and probable internal injuries. His condition was regarded as serious.

Walter Scott, 49 years old, a carriage worker, living at 820 Main street, in the Greenwood section of Wakefield, who owns and was driving the auto at the time, his 13-old son Irving Scott and the 20-year-old son of Chandler were the other occupants of the car. The three were thrown clear of the car as it upset.

They were taken to the Newton Hospital, where it was learned they had sustained only minor bruises and a severe shaking up. They left the hospital after having their injuries dressed.

Now is the time to fly from the broiling city, with its noise, its heat, its sweltering streets and discomforts, and seek refuge in the peace of the fields and woods, or in the cool, bracing, sea-washed beaches by the margin of the salt ocean. Yes, this is the time. The joys of the simple farm life with its pure fresh pleasures await him who will go. The pleasant, old farm house, unpainted for a generation, with its unventilated rooms and its feather beds appeal to us all. Beside it stands the old and odoriferous barn, where the music of busy flies breaks on the summer air, as they sip the skimmed milk and daily in the butter and things that wait the weary summer boarder. Fast by the picturesque barn stands the cool, old well which prepares the boarder for his doctor and undertaker when the summer days are gone. He hears the cackle of the merry hen as she drops the new-laid egg that goes to town; and he sees the pea-vines whose fruit is carried to market in the same old rusty vehicle that brings back to the farm the toothsome products of the cold storage warehouse that summer boarders may revel in rural grub.

By the sad sea wave the vacationist rusticates in a closet as cool as the boiler room of an ocean liner, built to accommodate him or his trunk, but never both; and with what gusto he eats the sweet fresh fish and quarry of the ocean deeps that come on ice from Boston. He joyously pays Touraine prices for lunch-cart fare and as he swelters in his cupboard at night, his dreams soothed by the murmur of the ocean, a sense of homesickness comes over him and he longs for the noise, the heat and decent food he abandoned at the reading of the vacation lures, illustrated, congesting an untrustworthy press. Then he comes home, wiser, sicker and poorer.—Truth.

LOCAL BOARD ABOLISHED

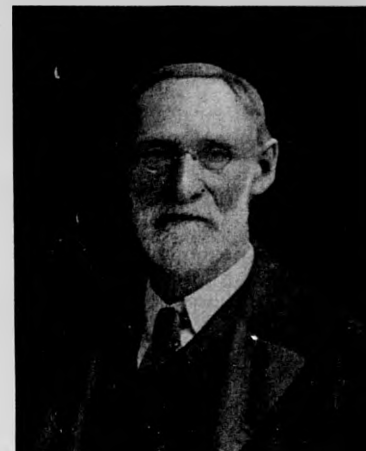

Civil Service Matters to be Handled Hereafter Direct from the State House

By order of the Massachusetts Civil Service Commission the boards of local examiners in the various municipalities are abolished, and the civil service work, will hereafter in the first division, be carried on from the State House.

The local board in Newton has been composed of three persons, Dwight Chester of Newton Centre, who has year 1885 and consisted of Col. Kingsbury, the City Clerk, Major Ezra S. Farnsworth and Arthur W. Pope. Col. Kingsbury declined to serve and Mr. Lucius G. Pratt was appointed in his stead. Major Farnsworth died in 1886 and was succeeded by Mr. Henry C. Hayden.

The labor service for the city has not been disturbed by this action of the Civil service commission and will be served since 1888, Dr. Francis Leo Curtis of Chestnut Hill, who was appointed in 1902 and J. C. Brimblecom of Newton, appointed in 1894.

The first board was appointed in the handled at City Hall by Mr. C. L. Hatch as formerly. Appointments to the clerical, police, fire and janitor force of the city will hereafter be certified from the State House.

WIN SECOND GAME

Upper Falls Athletic Association won the second game in the championship base ball series played against the Newton Catholic Club on West Newton Common last Saturday afternoon. The score was 8 to 3, and the game was far below the standard set the week previous on the Upper Falls playground. Both teams hit the ball frequently, altho Estelle, who incidentally won the 12th game he has pitched, had a little better of the argument. Gill was hammered for two home runs during the game, the second homer by Beals being in the nature of a gift as he had stopped at third, and came home on an error when the ball was returned to the diamond. Possibly the fact that Silver, catcher for the Catholic Club, injured his finger in the fifth inning and retired, may have made some difference in Gill's pitching, but the score was fairly close until the ninth inning, when with three men on bases, and no one out, Gill was succeeded as pitcher by Higgins, the High School pitcher, who came into the box perfectly cold. As a result, four runs were made by Upper Falls and the game was clinched. Estelle pitched a fairly good game but no where near as that played by Murray the week previous.

The next game in the series will be played tomorrow afternoon at the Upper Falls playground, and the home team will need but one more victory to claim the championship.

NORUMBEGA PARK

The Merry-Go-Round not only is making new friends but it already has a patronage of regular riders which is steadily increasing. Veranda Concerts are given every afternoon and evening at the Grape Arbor Cafe where the cuisine is excellent. The Zoological Gardens, with its host of admirers, is always the centre of enthusiastic crowds. The many other attractions of this resort are all well patronized. Sunday evening an excellent program has been arranged with some new motion pictures. Next week the management promises a vaudeville show of the usual high standard.

I have given considerable space
this week to the report of the superintendent of schools and his explanation of the present school policy. While there is considerable merit in the policy
he outlines, and there is no doubt but what the former educational methods tended towards benefiting only a portion of our children, the great danger, in my judgment, now that the movement has begun, lies in going too far to the other extreme.

The logical end of the new policy would give to each individual boy and girl, the exact educational training to which he or she required, and it is needless for me to undertake to say how much expense such a method would entail. It seems to me that the taxpayers are entitled to some consideration in this matter and that an increase in the cost of school maintenance from $237,137.26 in 1906 to $328-031.32 in 1912 and an estimate of over $375,000 for 1913 is a large factor in determining the school policy.
In this connection let me suggest that the taxpayers fail to appreciate the value of reducing the per pupil expense, so long as the total cost of the schools increases so rapidly.
There is considerable irony in the complacent attitude of the school superintendent that the per pupil expense shows a decided reduction, and his emphatic claim that the school expense for 1914 must exceed that of 1912
by over $50,000.

It seems to me that the duty of the school committee is plain. It should refuse to add further studies to the present curriculum, particularly in the High School courses, unless there is a public demand for the same by a sufficient number of parents, not putative, that is added to the approved
new courses, it should be the policy to drop one or more of the present studies, which are not receiving the proper degree of attention. In other words, it should be the policy of the school committee, to consider the needs of the pupils in the average, and not as individuals. If parents desire their children to learn other studies, than those which are required by the average pupil, it should be done at private and not at public expense. Dr.
Spaulding's enthusiasm as an educator ought to be under the control of a school committee which realizes that even the wealthy city of Newton cannot afford to do everything, even for its children.

The report of the superintendent is subject to several minor criticisms.
To one who is used to editing copy,
the verbosity of the report is really painful. Three pages in one instance are taken in making an explanation which could be as well and as clearly expressed in a half page. The average reader is also uninterested in the minute explanations of cost which have burdened the printed pages for the past two or three years. "Why lighting costs more by .02" and "Why janitors' supplies cost less by .01" are not of public importance. Such information is not necessary in a printed report. Persons who require this important information, can obtain it at the office of the school department and many pages of printed report at so much a printed page might well be saved.

Taken all in all, the report makes interesting reading and presents a subject which ought to be given the depest consideration and study by every parent and taxpayer of the city.

Approaching events cast their shadows before. The Milton tax rate jumps
$1.50 to $12. Arlington $1.80 to $22.60, Braintree, $1.40 to $20.40 and Watertown, $1 to $19.20. Where will Newton land?

COLLIGEN-HOSKINS

A quiet wedding was solemnized
Wednesday afternoon at St. John's Episcopal Church, the contracting parties being Miss Edith Hoskins of Manchester, England and Mr. James Colligen of Newtonville.

The ceremony was performed at 3 o'clock by Rev. Richard T. Loring, the rector, in the presence of a small company of relatives and intimate friends.
Miss Helen Cunningham presided at the organ and played Wagner's Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin as the bridal party entered the church.

The bride wore a beautiful gown of white embroidered satin and carried a bouquet of bride roses. She was attended by Miss Ethel Whitaker of Fall River as maid of honor. The bridegroom was attended by Mr. Sillas A. Seely as best man.
A reception followed the ceremony at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. H. G.
Seely on Watertown street. Mr. and Mrs. Colligen were assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Seely of New York. On their return from a wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Colligen will reside at 495 Watertown street.

HELPS IN HOME LIFE.

To remove the tops of fruit jars, wrap a cloth around them wet in very hot water; this will cause the top to expand.

Emery powder will remove the rust stains from steel.

A bottle of lime water and sweet oil, equal parts, mixed, should always be kept at hand in the kitchen, as it is an excellent remedy for burns.

A strong solution of soda and water will remove paint splashes from window glass.

Tea stains can be removed from cups and saucers by scouring with wood ashes.

A solution of salt and water will clean willow furniture. Apply with a coarse brush, and dry thoroughly.

A slate with pencil attached is very convenient to have in the kitchen for jotting down articles needed in the household. If such a memorandum is not kept one is apt to forget when in town the very thing needed most.

Beds should never be placed so that the sleepers will receive the full rays of the sun in the face when awakening. It is better to have the light fall from the side.

A weakening of the nervous system will often cause the hair to turn gray prematurely. Outdoor exercise and freedom from care and worry will frequently restore the color of the hair.

Plenty of pillows of all sizes and thicknesses should be kept in the sick room. A small one rolled hard into a long roll often gives great relief if slipped under the knees.

If kitchen floors are painted with boiled linseed oil, they are easily kept clean.

Peanut Sandwiches.

Peanut sandwiches are both palatable and nutritious. Peanut butter may be bought already prepared, or it may be made at home in the following manner: Shell and remove the skins from one quart of peanuts. Take out the germ and put the nuts through a meat grinder a couple of times. Add salt if liked, and a little olive oil or sweet cream to make a paste. Spread between thin slices of whole wheat bread.

Washing Clothes.

When washing white clothes that have become yellow the following is very good to whiten them: After they have been washed in the usual way, lay them to soak overnight in clean water, to which add a teaspoonful of cream of tartar to a quart of water. When dry and ironed they look as white as snow.

Banberry Tarts.

One cup raisins, ground; one lemon cut off both ends, around; one egg; beat the egg and stir all together; one cup sugar; one tablespoonful of flour. Make a rich pie crust, roll out and cut with a round baking powder can. Put half teaspoonful of mixture in center of each tin can and prick edges. Brush with milk; bake 10 or 15 minutes. Serve two on a pie plate.

The Gas Oven.

When using a gas oven always place a bowl of water on the bottom shelf. This prevents the meat, poultry or whatever is cooking from burning. When the cooking is finished the water does for washing-up purposes.

To Clean Doormats.

When cleaning doormats, especially if light colored, the following is very good: Put the mat into a bath of soapy water and scrub with a hard scrubbing brush, then rinse well in cold water, standing it up to dry.

To Polish Faucets.

Lemon Juice will remove tarnish from faucets.

His Mother's Crime.

A guild of godparents to save children from incongruous names is being suggested. The late Canon Hardley, author of a book on English names, told the story of what was probably the most idiotic name ever bestowed upon an unfortunate infant. A woman had her son baptized What, for no other reason than to cause amusement in future years when, being asked his name, he should reply "What"—London Chronicle.

KEEP SCISSORS IN KITCHEN

Unnumerable Ways in Which They May Be of Far Greater Service Than the Knife.

A pair of scissors in the kitchen are of invaluable assistance—not the lamp scissors or the dull pair that is black with age, nor the garden pair, nor yet those with the missing points, but a new, sharp, shiny pair that will cut.

It is a difficult matter, for instance, to remove the white pith from grape fruit with a knife; one digs and jabs, and finally cuts out the offending center and, incidentally, makes a hole in the fruit through which the juice drips onto the plate. Not so with the scissors. A snip, a pull, and there it is without trouble or mutilation.

And bacon! How few women can slice off the slippery rind, while with scissors every morsel can be quickly pared away without a vestige of waste. In cutting off the legs of a lobster, in breaking open the claws and cutting through the tail, the scissors will do the work uncomplainingly without the aid of the hammer and ice pick.

In preparing vegetables they are incomparable. Try them in cutting the roots from spinach, trimming rusty lettuce leaves, shaping flowerets of cauliflower, and cutting up asparagus. Dice up the pineapple with them, cut up the meat and fish for salads, remove the veins from shrimps, use them for the fish fins and save your fingers.

TOWEL DESIGNS ARE PRETTY

Natural Colors Introduced to Add to Effect, and Results Speak for Themselves.

When the dainty cross stitch designs in natural colors were fashioned in garlands from flowers and bookborders towels last year many declared nothing could be prettier, but now the darn stitch and the bias stitch, also in natural colors, have been introduced and they certainly are attractive.

At the present moment, however, no towels are meeting with popular favor like these variously termed the "medieval design," the "20th century design" and "Venetian point"—designations that are confusing in both period and place. There is some excuse for this, as the designs show the influence of lace's evolution and do not cling to any one decided type, but borrow beauty from all. The work is done in a sort of buttonhole stitch, combined with punch work.

Covering a chicken with cheese-cloth will prevent it from getting scorched or drying too much while roasting. When the fowl is ready 'or the oven set it in a piece of cheese-cloth, and baste it through this covering, only removing the cloth at the time the chicken is ready to be served, when you will find it has an exquisite golden brown color.

Naturistum leaves, the tiny green ones, give a delicious flavor to both hot and cold tea.

When making picnic sandwiches turn the loaf upside down, and you will find that you can cut thinner and sweeter slices.

Hamburg Steak and Potato.

Take a pound of cold boiled potatoes, pour on them a wine glass of hot milk or water, add a big lump of dripping, cold bacon fat or butter, mash to a pulp, then beat up with a fork until quite light; take three-quarters of a pound of hamburger steak, make into small cakes, sprinkle a little finely chopped onion on top of each cake. Make the potato pulp into thick, round cakes and put a cake of hamburger steak on each. Place in a well-greased bag. Close and seal it; cook in a hot oven for 25 minutes.

Graham Nut Bread.

One cake compressed yeast dissolved in cup of warm water with one teaspoon sugar. Let stand until foamy. Make soft sponge with four cups warm water, two teaspoons salt, one teaspoon lard, two tablespoons sugar, and white flour. Add the yeast and let stand until very light. Mix into soft loaf with one cup sugar, one-half cup walnuts cut fine and two and one-half pounds Graham flour. Let rise and make into four loaves. Bake in moderate oven one hour.

To Soften Butter.

When butter gets too hard for use in winter fill a bowl with boiling water. Allow it to stand for a few moments until the bowl is thoroughly heated. Empty out the water and place the butter in the bowl and place the steaming bowl over the plate of the steaming bowl over the plate of the steaming bowl. This may be done in a few minutes before one wishes to use the butter. There is no waste and the flavor of the butter is not impaired as by heating at the stove.

When Cooking Eggs.

Here is a fact worth knowing when you cook eggs: A spoonful of flour added to the grease in which eggs are to be fried will prevent them from breaking or sticking to the pan.

Rye Sandwiches.

Cut rye bread into very thin slices and any fanciful shape. Spread with a filling of cream cheese. Grate the cheese Rub to a paste with melted butter. Season with salt and pepper and spread.

WHICH ELECTRIC SHALL I BUY?

Before you decide, ask yourself another question—do you first of all want QUALITY in your car, or is your choice to be influenced mainly by certain "features" which have little to do with its efficiency.

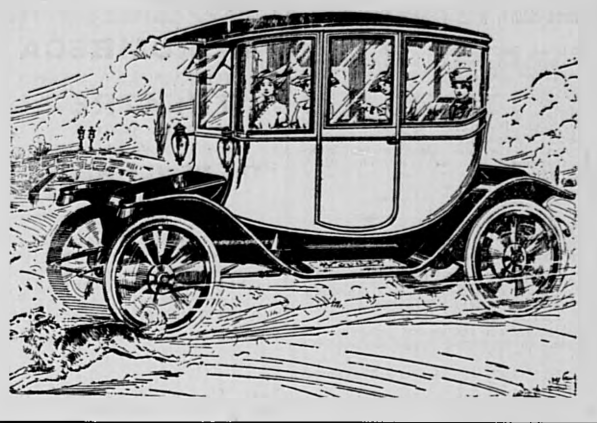

Knowing as you do that the good service you expect from your car depends primarily on quality of material, along with right design and construction—what's your answer?

The Woods isn't the only handsome Electric—it isn't the only one elegantly furnished and equipped—but it is the only Electric combining these desirable qualities with a proven record for durability and satisfactory service on punctureless, solid rubber tires!

The most timid woman may drive a Woods Electric anywhere without fear. The inter-locking method of control is simple and safe. We'd like to demonstrate how easily you can drive one of the new Woods Models.

BOYS IN CAMP

July 24, 1913.

The first half of the season at Camp Passaconaway has been very successful and the boys have enjoyed the many activities to the utmost.

On July 4 a track meet was held in the morning and in the senior events Alfred Sexton was the winner; in the junior events the winner was Harry Gibbs. At the swimming meet in the afternoon Wm. Wellman and Leonard Jackson were tied for first place in senior events, and Robert Hawks won the junior events. There was a fine display of fireworks in the evening. Much intra-camp baseball is played this year and the camp team has won every game to date, with one exception, July 19, the team won from Laconia, as follows:

Passaconaway 9, Lake City 8. Laconia, July 19:—Costly errors by the Lake City team lost the game with Camp Passaconaway at Pearl street grounds this afternoon. Features were the work of Bernier for Lake City and the pitching of Whitney for the visitors.

On July 19 the juniors attended the swimming meet at Stone Axe Camp and Alvan French won the cup, getting fifteen points, with Horace Hawks a close second with fourteen points.

The boys have climbed Mt. Belknap and Mt. Chocoma. From both summits there is a wonderful view of the surrounding country.

Not a Man's World.

This is not rightly a man's world. Great men are but dreams of women become militant. Women are the real inspirers of men; they ignite his every conception. Never yet has man sung, painted, prophesied nor in any way woven tighter the spirit of his time, but that his mother was first great enough to attract the gift; and more often than not, upon his maturity, the potential gift was startled into its supreme expression by another mother's daughter.—Will Levington Comfort.

LAWN WHIST

The Misses Gertrude and Sarah Leonard entertained a company of friends at a delightful lawn whist on Monday evening at their residence on Jackson road, Newton.

There were about 25 tables arranged on the lawn, which was attractively decorated with Japanese lanterns.

A program of popular music was rendered during the evening by an orchestra. Refreshments were served under the direction of Miss Katherine Coughlin.

The winners were Miss Katherine Kinchella, 1st ladies' prize; Miss Norton, 2nd ladies' prize; William Green 1st gentlemen's prize, and Frank Nelson, 2nd gentlemen's prize. The prizes for ladies were a silver card case and pocketbook; a hand-painted vase. The prizes for gentlemen were a hat-brush and cigarette-case.

POLITICAL NOTES

Mayor Hatfield announced yesterday that he will retire as a member and as chairman of the Republican State committee at the end of the present year. Mr. William F. Garcelon of this city will be a candidate to succeed him as a member of the state committee from this senatorial district.

Nomination papers are being circulated for the renomination of all three of our present representatives in the General Court. Hon. Henry E. Bothfield, and Messrs. George H. Ellis and Thomas W. White. Mr. White's decision to stand again as representative indicates that he will not be a candidate for the mayoralty nomination.

Simplify Life.

"I do believe in simplicity. It is astonishing as well as sad, how many trivial affairs even the wisest man thinks he must attend to in a day; how singular an affair he thinks he must omit. When the mathematician would solve a difficult problem he first frees the equation of all incumbrances and reduces it to its simplest terms. So simplify the problem of life, distinguish the necessary and the real.—From Thoreau "Letters."

must rely exclusively on the value of our educational offering as judged by the pupils themselves and their parents.

The ratio of the number of children in school over compulsory school age to the number within the compulsory age furnishes a significant index by which to compare the efficiency of the schools at different periods. This ratio is an index of the quality as well as of the quantity of the school's work.

In the last five years the number of pupils in the Newton schools over the compulsory age has increased more than three times as rapidly as has the number within the compulsory age.

The moment we admit the function of the public school to be that of educating boys and girls within certain ages, that moment we commit ourselves to the education of all boys and girls of the community within those ages; the different educational treatment required by different types of boys and girls furnishes no reasonable ground whatever on which to discriminate and to determine that those who can be educated in one way shall be educated, while those who must be educated in another way shall not be educated.

The policy to which we have committed ourselves in the administration of the Newton school system is the policy that is inspiring the progressive work of every school system throughout the country that is giving any evidence of life. If we here in Newton are pursuing this policy more consciously, with keener insight into its practical bearings, if we have progressed farther—thanks to many favorable conditions—in the realization of the fruits of this policy, than have some other communities, we need hardly fear that we are in danger of giving our city an unenviable distinction; for it is perfectly safe to prophesy that all important progress that will be made in public school administration in the near future will be in perfect harmony with this policy that we are here carrying out.

Dr. Spaulding gives many pages to the details of school expenses. The kindergarten expense was $18,737.29, or $30.82 per pupil, a slight decrease in the per pupil cost and a total increase of about $800 over the previous year. The grade schools cost $187,601.27, or $39.99 per pupil, a decrease in the per pupil cost of $1.42, and a decrease in the total expense of about $8,000. The high school cost $121,652.76, or 37 per cent of the maintenance expense, and no other city even approximates this percentage, the average being 23 per cent in 22 municipalities in the state. This is largely due to the fact that 25 per cent of all our pupils are in the high school. This cost is over $11,000 larger than in 1911, and over 16 1-2 per cent more pupils were educated than the previous year. The cost per pupil being $67.10 as compared with $72.38 in 1911. The number of pupils from the Newton High taking work in the Technical High has been steadily diminishing since the establishment of the latter school. This is to be regretted, for it indicates that many of the boys and girls are not deriving all the advantage they should from the opportunity provided. Every girl, no matter what regular course she may be taking, ought to take at least a year in the household arts department of the Technical High, not to learn to cook and sew merely, but to learn in a practical way something of the most difficult and most important of all womanly arts, the art of home-making. Most boys—many more than are now getting it—ought to have some practical experience in the wonderful shops of the Technical School.

The cost of the Technical High was $70,996.86, or $85.48 per pupil, and the Classical cost $51,595.90, or $67.10 per pupil. The average membership of our Technical was 820, and the Classical 769.

Dr. Spaulding predicts that the school costs will increase, first, because of the general upward tendency of the times, second, because the previous efforts to economize cannot be continued without impairing the efficiency of the schools, and third, because the present policy of encouraging school attendance up to 18 years of age will undoubtedly continue the disproportionate growth of High School attendance.

In the Newton Technical High School plant, there were organized at the beginning of the school year two distinct schools, the Technical School and the Vocational School, each with its principal, staff of teachers and corps of students; these two schools together constitute the Newton Technical High School. The courses known since the establishment of the Technical High as extra-technical courses both for boys and girls, were turned over the Vocational School, the Technical School retaining all other courses—the technology-college, technical, fine arts, and commercial.

bursament from the state of about $20,000 per year.

Dr. Spaulding devotes some space to discussing the question whether Newton can afford to continue its educational policy, and states that only 4 communities in the Metropolitan district had a lower tax rate than Newton; that 15 for these places levy a higher rate for schools; and 12 devote a larger portion of their revenues to school maintenance.

He closes his report with these:

"But where is the end? It is impossible to 'satisfy' the demands of the schools, it has been charged. The charge is justified; but so far from being a reproach, it should be regarded as high praise of the school policy and of the spirit of its administration. Satisfaction means stagnation. When any policy or when the administrators of any policy become satisfied, it is high time for a change, for no further progress is to be expected. The policy of the Newton schools does not admit of satisfaction so long as any educable boy or girl of the community is growing up without education, so long as the education provided for any boy or girl is susceptible of improvement."

The statistical tables show that the total cost of the schools was $367,489.85 of which $21,701.55 was for mechanical school equipment. There are 28 school buildings, with 199 occupied school rooms, and the total value of the school property is $2,016,600. There was a total school enrollment of 7714 and an average daily attendance of 6312, with 1712 pupils enrolled in the high schools, 5173 enrolled in the grades and 829 in the kindergartens. 279 teachers were employed, 46 male and 233 female, 75 in the High schools, 181 in the grades and 29 in the kindergartens, their salaries reaching a total of $255,142.44.

Tea in Universal Use.

Today tea is used the world around. It is the natural drink of Russia, extending all over the Russian empire and into Siberia. It is the favorite beverage of all Asia, including Tibet, India, China and Japan. In England, Canada and the United States tea drinking is practiced by practically every household. Millions and millions of pounds of tea leaves are consumed every year.

ALL JUMPING ON THE ICE MEN AND WHY.

The American people have suffered from a good many kinds of humbug in their day and generation, but the silliest of all silly humbings on record is without doubt the present hullabaloo against the ice men. It is the old story of man's ingratitude when he chooses to forget.

For millions of years the old earth rolled around with summer heat and winter cold. During all these years no human being thought it possible to take the winter ice and store it for summer use. Within the past hundred years it was found that ice could be stored. Fifty years ago there was comparatively little ice cut and there was little general demand for it, the cost being excessive.

Then came the ice man as capitalists and in a capitalistic way they reasoned that if ice could be supplied to the homes as well as the markets and wholesale users there would be a big demand and a possibility of corresponding profit.

The reasoning was right but the progress was slow because the people considered ice in summer as an extravagant luxury. Some indeed argued in the same old way that all changes were condemned, that ice in summer was sinful, because it was flying in the face of Providence who would have provided for ice if His Wisdom found it necessary.

But the immense value of the ice supply was soon apparent and the demand increased. Then the ice men made a study of cutting, storage, delivering and all the details that make up an important industry. More and more capital was necessary until there were corporations on a large scale all working to reduce the cost of gathering the ice and delivering it to the consumer.

Ice in summer at the prices furnished is now considered a necessity. Every season we have the newspaper lamentations about the sufferings of the poor and the dying of many thousands of children for want of ice, which the grasping greed of the ice men will not furnish free. These sympathetic souls in their appeals for other peoples money overlook the fact that in no other country in the world is ice considered such a necessity.

Then the people in their easy-going way can hardly understand why the same ice that was worthless and a nuisance in winter should cost money in summer. They know nothing of the work or the details or the uncertainties of ice crops. Rarely in recent years has there been one month of steady freezing with good ice cutting conditions. Snow storms make extra cost and slow work. In seasons like last winter ice cutting is almost impossible.

It is true that great progress has been made in mechanical plants for making ice and for refrigerating, but with all that can be done in this line it will be many years before the manufacture of ice can amount to more than a small fraction of the total supply of ice now called for.

The development of the ice business has been one of the industrial wonders, and no other industry of equal value of investment and product has ever given such remarkable results for the comfort and welfare of mankind. For this the ice men are condemned beyond all others.

The ice man, with all his weary round of climbing stairs with his dripping burdens and being ordered back for different shaped pieces, is expected to be an expert bookkeeper and expert weigher and be able to split up a block of ice so that the parts shall all be exactly equal in weight.

Every legislature or city or town council is eager to pass laws and make regulations for the ice man. He must answer every call and keep children from under his wagon wheels while he is delivering a five cent piece of ice on the top floor. There, by the way, he may find a sleuth of a pop-eyed official waiting to see if the five cent piece is not four ounces short weight.

All ice men are rated as thieves and ruffians, so courts are eager to sentence, and fool newspapers eager to work up sensations from the charges. What other human industry of any kind gets such insanely villainous treatment from the public?

Is any grocery delivery wagon so regulated and so followed by sleuths? Is any department store delivery so hounded? But milk and ice wagons are fair game for all sneaking informers.

It only remains for the pure food lunatics to get busy and show how the ice may be contaminated. Then get busy passed ordering all deliveries of ice in sealed glass jars, with weight certificate, date and place of cutting all filled out and signed by the high official ice inspector.

The cost would be enormous, surely, and poor people would have to go without. But think of the pages that a Cassidy could fill in the Boston American telling all about his great victory in bringing the criminal ice men to terms.

Attorney General Swift might also appear on his official endorsement—capitalist and Boston Market Reporter.
